HEAR CHIEF CROKER WILL SOON RETIRE

Report in the Department That He Will Resign at an Early Date.

LANGFORD FOR HIS PLACE?

General Impression That Tammany Has Arranged to Put In the Deputy Chief.

It was common gossip in the Fire Department yesterday that Chief Edward F. Croker is soon to retire. According to the report that has reached the rank and file, the Chief will send in his resignation within the next two weeks. While the report is generally believed by the firemen, none of the department officials, however, would substantiate it yesterday, and the politicians merely looked wise when asked about it. The Chief himself was said to be out of town when a TIMES reporter tried to reach him at Fire Headquarters.

Chief Croker, the report has it, is to step out so as to enter the Roebling Construction Company, in which his uncle, Richard Croker, is interested. The Chief is 50 years old, and, while his position at the head of the fire fighters can be his as long as he is physically able to perform his duties, it is given out that he is no longer fascinated with the life, and is anxious to go into a business career.

On June 22 the Chief will round out twenty-five years of service with the Fire Department, and on that day there will be presented to him a costly testimonial, to be purchased from a fund now being raised among the firemen.

Dr. Harry M. Archer, honorary surgeon of the Fire Department, who is a warm admirer of the Chief, has charge of the fund. From remarks Dr. Archer has dropped an impression has obtained among the firemen that this testimonial will be given as a farewell token to the Chief.

Gift of the Department.

The gift will be presented at an informal dinner to be given to the Chief, and it is believed that on this occasion he will announce his intention of leaving the department.

A TIMES reporter was told yesterday by one in touch with Fire Department affairs that information had gone out to certain of the Deputy Fire Chiefs to prepare for a civil service examination, which, it is said, will shortly be held to choose a successor to Chief Croker.

There are twelve Deputy Chiefs eligible to take the examination, and, if they all happened to strike the same average, any one of them, under the law, might be appointed Chief. Tammany Hall, according to current report, wants to have Deputy Chief Langford appointed to Chief Croker's place. So there will be no chance of his not attaining an average among the first three the plan to limit the contestants to that number has been hit upon.

Langford is a member of Charles F. Murphy's Tonawanda Club and has been a stanch Tammany worker. It is said to be Murphy's desire that Langford be made Chief of the Fire Department, and it is in keeping with Murphy's orders that word has been passed around to those Deputy Chiefs who are not expected to compete in the civil service examination.

Those who are to compete with Langford are said to have already been selected, and the others, who are not to try for the place, know that they are to stay away.

Inquiry from the Municipal Civil Service Commission yesterday failed to elicit any information concerning the examination of Deputy Fire Chiefs except that there was a rumor that one would soon be asked. The custom is for the department having vacancies to be filled through civil service to ask for a list of eligibles and for these to be notified by the Civil Service Commission when to appear for examination. The commission is compelled to include all the eligibles, and if any one is overlooked a new examination may be demanded. So it is wholly the affair of the eligibles themselves if they fail to compete.

Considerable comment has been occasioned in the Fire Department over the fact that Commissioner Hayes, who for a long time was Chief Croker's bitter antagonist in the department, has permitted the fund for the chief's testimonial to be raised. Without the Commissioner's consent Dr. Archer could not have undertaken the work of collecting the money from the firemen. That he has given his permission is taken to mean that the Commissioner and Chief have patched up their differences and that the Chief will leave the department on the friendliest of terms with his superiors.

Commissioner Hayes's fight with Chief Croker began during his first term as Commissioner, when the latter made various shifts of men that displeased the Chief. They were soon at loggerheads. Chief Croker declared that Commissioner Hayes made the shifts so as to give easy details at Fire Headquarters to satisfy Tammany politicians, Chief Croker's protests were of no avail.

An Old Feud.

After Hayes's election as Sheriff Chief Croker determined to even up their score. The night before the Commissioner's term expired the Chief quietly sent out an order rescinding all the details Hayes had made. The Commissioner heard of it just before midnight, and immediately countermanded the Chief's order.

Commissioner John H. O'Brien, who succeeded Hayes, followed out the latter's policies to a large degree, and the fight against Croker continued. It came to be regarded in a way as a war of Tammany Hall against Croker. The Chief, although things were made uncomfortable for him, refused to quit office. He fought Commissioner Lantry, who succeeded O'Brien. When Lantry resigned owing to the scandal growing out of rotten hose two years ago, and Hayes was appointed Commissioner a second time, the old fight with Hayes was renewed.

An effort was made to fix the blame for the rotten hose on Chief Croker, but he proved that it had been bought while Hayes was Commissioner, during his first term.

Croker emerged triumphant, and soon after this the Commissioner's attitude toward him underwent a change. Commissioner Hayes ceased making details objectionable to the Chief, and for the past year Croker has been allowed to direct the affairs of the department unhampered.

Croker has been reported several times during his eight years' service as the head of the fire force as being on the verge of resigning, but up to this time he has always declared he would never quit while any one was trying to get rid of him.

He showed his real fighting spirit after he was dismissed from the department in 1902, three years after being made Chief. Commissioner Sturgis suspended him after various charges had been preferred, including those of failing to safeguard the Park Avenue Hotel, improper management of several fires, accepting free passes of transportation, and secreting hose at the Polo Grounds. The charges were sustained, and after his dismissal the ex-Chief fought the case to the Supreme Court, which, in 1904, ordered him reinstated.

JAMES B. GENTRY PARDONED.

Actor, Slayer of Madge Yorke, to be Freed After Fourteen Years.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—James B. Gentry, an actor formerly well known, who murdered his sweetheart, Madge Yorke, an actress, in this city fourteen years ago, was pardoned by the State Board of Pardons at Harrisburg to-day. An organization composed of some of the most prominent members of the theatrical profession has worked hard to obtain Gentry's release. Thousands of dollars have been spent for counsel fees, and after Gentry's sentence to be hanged was commuted to life imprisonment his case came periodically before the Pardon Board, but the plea was always denied until now.

Gentry, who is confined in the Eastern Penitentiary here, will be notified of his pardon to-morrow.

The murder of Madge Yorke, for which James B. Gentry was sentenced to be hanged and finally sent to prison for life, was committed on the afternoon of Feb. 17, 1895, in this city. Miss Yorke was playing here with "The Baggage Check" company. Gentry, who was filling an engagement in Boston, had, his friends alleged, been seriously ill with the grip and was drinking heavily. He had an engagement to meet Miss Yorke in New York early in February, but through a misunderstanding he missed her at the railroad station.

Some friends in New York jokingly told him that Miss Yorke was receiving the attentions of another actor. From that time all trace of Gentry was lost until he burst unannounced into Miss Yorke's room in a Walnut Street Hotel here and, when she greeted him coldly, shot her three times in the brain and fled down a fire escape. Lydia Clarke, another actress, was in the room at the tme.

Gentry fell from the fire escape, broke three ribs, and his ankle, but managed to reach Fairmount Park, where he hid three days and nights, during blizzard weather. Then he gave himself up to a park guard. He was convicted and sentenced to be hanged June 27, 1896, but his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

Gentry has always maintained that he has no recollection of the murder of Miss Yorke; that his mind was a blank until he found himself in a hospital in this city.

CLOUDS HID SUN'S ECLIPSE.

Folk in Other Countries, However, May Have Been Luckier.

Astronomical enthusiasts near this city were disappointed yesterday because the clouds which shrouded the western sky in the evening shut off all view of an unusually interesting eclipse of the sun. At 7:12:18 o'clock the moon, according to calculations, was to slip gently between sun and earth. The eclipse was to last for twenty minutes, until, in fact, the sun sank behind the darkening Palisades.

Unfortunately for the astronomers, however, the clouds over the western sky kept growing deeper and deeper all through yesterday afternoon, and, at 7:28 P. M., there was not a single patch of azure visible.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Although preparations were made at the United States Naval Observatory here to take observations of the eclipse of the sun today, the cloudy weather spoiled the plans of the astronomers.

The eclipse here, however, was but partial, the only place where it was total being near the north pole, where few, if any, white men, with the exception of Commander Robert E. Peary and his crew, now in search of the north pole, had an opportunity to observe it.

The eclipse was visible over Eastern Asia and almost the whole of North America, Greenland, Iceland, and the northern part of Finland.

$4,000,000 FOR COAL LANDS.

Jones & Laughlin Make Purchase in Anticipation of Heavy Steelmaking.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn, June 17.—In anticipation of years of heavy steel making the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company to-day closed a deal for coal lands involving the expenditure of $4,000,000 in cash, though the coal lands thus purchased will not be developed for years. President B. F. Jones explained the big outlay as necessary "because it is desirable for the future coal supply of the steel company. The new tract is contiguous to coal land already owned and will be held in reserve, so no developments will be made there at once."

The fact that the Jones & Laughlin firm considers it good business to tie up $4,000,000 admittedly for some years is considered by business Pittsburg as an indication that there is faith in future business.

The Spang-Chalfant mills of Pittsburg report the booking of pipe orders in June up to date of 100,000 tons, which is a great record than that of any whole month heretofore. Specifications were ordered to-day for a new pipe mill to be rushed, since the present mills cannot handle the business.

INVADING FLEET SUNK.

Land Forces at the Harbor Forts Win a Sham Battle.

The first sham battle, by which the members of the Thirteenth Regiment, N. G. N. Y., are trying to school themselves in the art of war, occurred last night and ended in a victory for the land forces which manned Fort Hancock, at Sandy Hook, and Forts Hamilton and Wadsworth, at the Narrows. Fort Hancock was captured by the invaders, however, before the fleet was sunk as it tried to come through the Narrows.

The battle began at Fort Wadsworth and Fort Hamilton shortly after 8 o'clock when one of the numerous searchlights from Fort Wadsworth picked up one of the two lighters which served as warships and the two Government launches representing cruisers. The invaders were off Swinburne Island, about two miles from the forts, when they were sighted, and fire was opened upon them immediately.

Crews put off in small boats and tried to land in Gravesend Bay to attack Fort Hamilton from the rear, but after a lively fire from the big guns it was decided by the judges that the battleships and cruisers as well as all the small boats had been sunk.

PITTSBURG-BUFFALO RUN CUT.

New Train Will Clip Three Hours from Old Time of Eight.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, June 17.—The New York Central interests at Pittsburg threw a bomb into the camp of the opposition roads leading to Buffalo, to-day, by announcing a train which will make the run from Pittsburg to Buffalo in five hours and fifteen minutes, a cut of three hours in the former running time.

The fast train is the result of a fight over rates.

GOVERNMENT BEGINS SUGAR INQUIRY HERE

Subpoenas Issued for Earle and His Aids in Proceeding Under Sherman Law.

THE PAPERS CALLED FOR

Books and Correspondence to be Produced Before the Grand Jury on Monday—Wickersham Here.

It became known last night that subpoenas have been issued here for Receiver George H. Earle of the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company, his counsel, and the witnesses in the suit brought by that company against the American Sugar Refining Company to appear before the Federal Grand Jury here in a proceeding brought against the latter for alleged violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law.

The subpoenas, it was said, call for the appearance of several of the witnesses before the Grand Jury next Monday. It was learned further that representatives of the Government have already examined the evidence in possession of Receiver Earle, and that this will be used in the prosecution of the first great anti-trust case brought under President Taft's Administration.

One of the subpoenas served yesterday called for the production before the Grand Jury of documents used in the Pennsylvania Company's recent action which the trust setled out of court. The papers called for include the stock books of the company and practically the whole correspondence between Adolph Segal and Gustav Kissel, used in the recent suit.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Attorney General Wickersham had a long conference to-day with President Taft, after which he left hurriedly for New York. No information could be obtained at the White House as to the subject discussed or the occasion for the Attorney General's sudden departure. At the Department of Justice the same mystery that has marked that branch of the Government under the new Administration was maintained.

There is ground for belief that the Attorney General is impatient over the delay in getting final evidence in the Sugar Trust investigation. It is known that President Taft is deeply interested in this special bit of inquiry now in the hands of the Department of Justice, and, although two special agents have presumably been at work, no reports have been forthcoming, at least so far as the public is advised.

In the last week or ten days the Attorney General has been deeply immersed in the study of a mass of documentary evidence, and the belief here is that a great part of this was collected and submitted by George H. Earle, Jr., Receiver for the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company. This company, it is charged, was deliberately crushed by the Sugar Trust, who saw in it a rival that might in time become dangerous. Only a short time ago the trust practically acknowledged its activities toward eliminating its rival by returning a large sum of money to the men it had downed.

Mr. Earle denounced the Department of Justice in scathing terms, and declared that there was no possibility of getting justice under the present administration of the department. He went further than attacking the department, and was quoted as making a personal attack on Mr. Wickersham, his motives, and his former corporation connections. To this attack the Attorney General made no answer.

It is probable, however, that the investigation into the Sugar Trust's methods will deal as much with its suppression of a rival as with its defrauding the Government in weighing sugar at the port of New York. This has been acknowledged, and heavy restitution was made to the United States Treasury by the corporation. At the time the Government accepted the money from the trust it specifically reserved the right to prosecute it criminally at any time the Administration might see fit.

Although the department maintains its silence, it is well known that it is smarting under the accusations that have been made against it. The denunciation of George H. Earle, Jr., followed by the bitter criticism on Tuesday of Samuel Untermyer, counsel in the cases against the Sugar Trust, have hurt.

The appearance of Henry A. Wise, District Attorney at New York, at the department this week and his long conference with Mr. Wickersham is taken as evidence that the fight is being rapidly and thoroughly outlined. Mr. Wickersham's unexpected trip to New York is looked upon as part of the general plan of preparation.

SUE FOURTEEN HAT FIRMS.

Settlement with Hatters' Union Alleged to be in Violation of Agreement.

DANBURY, Conn., June 17.—Suits were brought in this city this afternoon by the Associated Hat Manufacturers, incorporated, of New York, against fourteen hat manufacturing firms in Danbury, Bethel, and New Milford for damages of $26,000 from each for alleged violation of the terms of agreements, and the bonds that figured in the recent tie-up of the hatting industry in Danbury and throughout the country.

Attachments aggregating more than $300,000 are being placed upon the real estate and bank accounts of the firms and corporations which are made defendants in the suits. The sixteen concerns sued made a settlement with the Hatters' Union last week, and the suits are the outcome of that settlement. The seven Danbury concerns which effected a settlement during the present week are not being sued, and their names appear in the list of those who figure as plaintiffs.

MANY HURT IN CELEBRATION.

Fireworks and Pistols Injure Sixty-five on Bunker Hill Day.

BOSTON, June 17.—As a result of the Bunker Hill celebration to-day sixty-five persons were treated at the hospitals of Boston and vicinity for injuries caused by fireworks and pistols, and many more were attended by physicians at their homes. There were no serious casualties, the efforts of the police to diminish the use of firearms and to confine the celebration to firecrackers and light explosives having been partially successful.

JAPAN NOT TO AID STRIKERS IN HAWAII

Her Consul Reports That Ignorant Workmen Are Misled by Anarchist Agitators.

LEADERS AGAIN INDICTED

Several Accused of Conspiracy to Commit Murder and Incite Crime—Editor's Replevin Suit Dismissed.

TOKIO, June 17.—The report that the Japanese of Hawaii had appealed to Tokio charging violation of treaty rights as an outcome of the strike agitation in the islands is based upon the fact that one of the agitators who were arrested at Honolulu sent a cablegram to a brother living in Japan requesting him to endeavor to secure the intercession of the Government in his behalf. Although he knew it was useless the brother conveyed the appeal to the Government.

A dispatch from the Japanese Consul at Honolulu says the strike situation is improving. All the men in two districts have returned to work. The strike, he says, is a result of agitation on the part of Anarchists, the worst element among the Japanese, who have been trying to persuade all their countrymen to join a union. They claimed that they would be able to increase wages, but in reality their purpose was to collect money.

The Japanese Consul speaks highly of the attitude of the local planters. He says also that after the arrest and conviction of the agitators the condition of Japanese labor in Hawaii would be improved, but he is advising the planters not to yield lest the men return to work without conditions.

The affair is not regarded seriously in Tokio. The Government gave assurances to-day that it had not interfered in the matter, and that it had sent no instructions to the Consul at Honolulu.

HONOLULU, June 17.—Following the indictments of several of the Japanese strike leaders last Friday, the Territorial Grand Jury returned additional indictments to-day against Y. Sogo, F. Makino, M. Negoro, K. Kawamura, Y. Tasaka, and Y. Arashira for conspiracy to commit murder and to incite others to crime. An indictment for assault was found against Y. Sugawara, who is accused of attempting to collect funds for the strikers by violence.

In addition to these indictments thirteen of the striking Japanese at the Waipalu plantation were indicted for attacking a police officer and rioting. As a result of the vigorous action of the authorities the strikers are discouraged.

The replevin suit brought to recover the papers seized in the office of the newspaper Jiji by Sheriff Henry has been dismissed. Japanese Consul Uyeno is investigating the alleged destruction of the safe of Editor Soga of the Jiji, which was broken open by the authorities.

Forty-five delegates from the Japanese Union on the Island of Hawaii, representing 9,000 laborers, have just concluded a session lasting four days and nights. They resolved not to strike or to help the Oahu strikers, but to present a statement of their demands and trust to the fairness of the planters. They ask for a ten-hour day at $1, for time and a half for overtime work and on Sundays, and for quarters equal to those of the Spaniards and Portuguese.

These demands will be presented to the planters' association on Monday.

HOKE SMITH FAILED THEM.

Presbyterian Alliance Wondered Where He Was—Expected to Speak.

"Where is Gov. Smith of Georgia?" was anxiously asked last night at the convention of the Alliance of Reformed Churches holding the Presbyterian System. Gov. Smith remained in Atlanta, Ga.

Gov. Smith, who was supposed to be in New York, having come from Atlanta to represent the laymen of the Southern Presbyterian Church, was to have spoken on the subject, "Calvin and the American Republic." That he was absent was not noted until the Rev. Dr. Alexander Phimister of Newcastle-on-Tyne, who presided, announced as the next speaker "Gov. Hoke Smith of Atlanta, Alabama." Previously he had referred to him as one of "four eminent divines" who were to address the session.

There were four speakers on the programme, those besides Gov. Smith being the Rev. Dr. George William Knox of this city, whose subject was "Calvinism and Liberty"; the Rev. David Woodside of Glasgow, Scotland, who talked of "The Influence of Calvinism in the World Today," and the Rev. Dr. J. I. Vance of Newark, who spoke of "The Worldwide Mission of Calvinism." Gov. Smith was to have been the second speaker.

"We will now have the pleasure of listening to Gov. Smith of Atlanta, Alabama," said Dr. Phimister, when Dr. Knox had finished.

"Where is Gov. Smith? Will he please come forward?" added Dr. Phimister when no response came to the introduction.

Everybody in the church looked around to see if by chance the big Governor of the Cracker State was present and failed to hear the introduction. But he was not to be found. As he had not sent a letter of regret it was hoped that he would appear before the session adjourned.

After Mr. Woodside had spoken, Dr. Phimister again called for the Governor, and one or two of the Southern delegates who knew him personally got up and looked around in the hope of discovering him.

After the meeting had adjourned an effort was made to find out if word of any kind had been received from the Governor. The only information to be had was that he had accepted the invitation to speak, and everybody was at a loss for the reason of his non-appearance.

WRIGHTS WORK ON IN MIDST OF HONORS

Salute of All Dayton's Whistles Finds Them in Shop—But They Are in Parade.

"THANK YOU," ALL THEY SAY

Welcomed by Fellow-Townsmen with Pomp and Pageant as Kings of Air, Brothers Work Spells in Between.

DAYTON, Ohio, June 17.—In the city in which a few years ago they began in obscurity their first experiments with flying machines, Orville and Wilbur Wright, the aviators, to-day received the homage of their townspeople. Escorted by brass bands, led beneath triumphal arches, through streets decorated with models of their aeroplanes, and praised in public speeches, the Wright brothers appeared not the least conscious that anything unusual was going on, and when that part of the programme was reached which read, "Responses by the Wrights," Wilbur and Orville each arose and said:

"Thank you, gentlemen."

In the first day of the two days' celebration in their honor this is what the Wright brothers did:

9 A. M.—Left their work in the aeroplane shop and in their shirtsleeves went out in the street to hear every whistle and bell in town blow and ring for ten minutes.

9:10 A. M.—Returned to work.

10 A. M.—Drove in a parade to the opening ceremony of the "Homecoming Celebration."

11 A. M.—Returned to work.

Noon—Reunion at dinner with Bishop Milton Wright, the father; Miss Katherine Wright, the sister; Reuchlin Wright of Tongonoxie, Kan., a brother, and Loren, another brother.

2:30 P. M.—Reviewed a parade given in their honor in the downtown streets.

4 P. M.—Worked two hours packing up parts of an aeroplane for shipment to Washington.

8 P. M.—Attended a public reception and shook hands with as many Daytonians as could get near them.

9 P. M.—Saw a pyrotechnical display on the river front in which their own portraits, 80 feet high, and entwined in an American flag, were shown.

When the fireworks were over Wilbur turned to Orville and said: "Let's hurry home; you know we have to get up early."

Meanwhile Dayton left nothing undone to honor these simple and modest men. Business was suspended, except for the sale of toy airships and postcards illustrative of the Wrights' career, the modest two-story frame dwelling in Hawthorne Street, and Huffman's prairie, eight miles east of Dayton, where in 1905 the Wrights made their first long aeroplane flight. Le Mans, France, the scene of many of the European flights of the Wright machine, was remembered in a banner which bore these words:

"The three great cities—Dayton, Washington, and Le Mans, France."

After the salute of cannon, ringing of bells, and blowing of whistles, with which the day began, the opening ceremony was held in a park beneath the trees. "Jonathon Dayton," representing the founder of the city, and dressed in Colonial costume and a wig, with a cast of characters, presented a pageant. The crowds were so great that people viewed the spectacle from fences, trees, and housetops. Casting his eyes skyward, Jonathan Dayton said:

"Mehtinks I see two great objects like gigantic birds coming from the eastward as if riding on the winds of the morning! What manner of birds can these be?"

"They," interposed another character, "are none other than two of Dayton's illustrious sons coming home from foreign triumphs with the greatest invention of the age. Let us welcome them."

It was after the welcome thus suggested that Wilbur and Orville Wright, sitting as spectators on the platform, arose and said:

"Thank you, gentlemen."

Conrad J. Schmidt, President of the local School Board, had thanked the brothers for the fame they had brought the city and other speeches had followed. Orville and Wilbur had been escorted by State militia, troops of regulars, and a brass band to the platform before which the pageant passed. The enthusiasm of their fellow-townsmen had known no bounds.

A few minutes after the ceremony the Wrights were back in their workshop, where the windows were covered with canvas to keep out the gaze of the curious.

Gen. James Allen, chief signal officer, accompanied by Lieut. Lahm of the Signal Corps, arrived here from Washington to-day with the gold medal authorized by Congress, which he is to present to the Wright brothers to-morrow. Gov. Judson Harmon of Ohio is expected to present a medal on behalf of the State, and Mayor Burkhart on behalf of Dayton.

WASHINGTON POST FOR GRANT

U. S. Grant, 3d, May Be Superintendent of War and Navy Building.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Lieut. Ulysses S. Grant, 3d, is said to be slated for the post of Superintendent of the State, War, and Navy Building here, in succession to Capt. John H. Poole of the Corps of Engineers.

The place is a coveted one and only officers of the Corps of Engineers are now eligible.

DOG BITES PERCY WILLIAMS.

Manager Was Lifting Fletcher's Bulldog Into His Automobile.

Percy Williams, theatrical manager, was bitten yesterday by Charles L. Fletcher's dog, a Boston bulldog, and the dog is now under observation to see that he hasn't got rabies.

Mr. Williams with Al Leech, another theatrical man, was stepping into his automobile in front of the Long Acre building in which his office is. He lifted the dog, which Fletcher had lent him, to put him in the car. The dog, quiet and docile till then, caught Mr. Williams's right forearm in his jaws.

The chauffeur and Leech grabbed the dog by body and throat and tossed him into the car. A crowd began to collect, crying "Shoot him! Shoot him!" Mr. Williams refused to do this, and the chauffeur managed to roll the dog in a blanket, around which he wound straps, tying them to the car so that the dog could not move, though his jaws were snapping.

Williams went into the Long Acre Pharmacy next door, where his wound was washed and dressed. The dog was taken to a veterinary.

QUEEN BARS PARIS HATS.

Helena of Italy Objects to Gigantic Modes and Adopts Mantilla.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 17.—Queen Helena of Italy has revolted against the mode of gigantic hats which French milliners have endeavored to impose on Italian women of fashion. She and most of the ladies of her Court do not wear hats of any description, says the Rome correspondent of the Paris Journal, but instead have adopted a sort of light mantilla to wear in public.

The movement of protest against the "ridiculous fashions inflicted on us from abroad" is said to be spreading throughout the Roman aristocracy.

POPE RECEIVES FREGOLI.

Stops Latter's Secretaries from Taking Snapshot of the Interview.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 17.—A Rome dispatch says that Fregoli, the famous quick-change artist, has had an audience with the Pope. His holiness good-humoredly remarked that Fregoli had so bewitched the inmates of the Vatican and the Cardinals themselves by his astounding performance that for the last two days they had seemed incapable of talking about anything else.

While engaged in conversation the Pope espied Fregoli's secretaries on the point of taking a snapshot as a souvenir of the interview.

"No, no; you mustn't do that!" he exclaimed in protest. "It's against the rules. The Pope, you know, is the servant of God, but men sometimes make him the servant of interest and the devil."

MANY KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Disastrous Storms in Austria—Ten Dead in One Building.

VIENNA, June 17.—There have been great loss of life and damage to property in the Sanok district by thunderstorms. Many houses have been struck by lightning, and the occupants killed.

In one case a barn in which fifty people had sought shelter from a deluge of rain was struck, and ten men were killed.

McCLELLAN REIMBURSED.

Gets City's Check for $83,576, Part Cost of Defending Hearst Suit.

Mayor McClellan received a check for $83,576 from the City Chamberlain yesterday, representing the additional allowance made him by the courts to cover the expense of fighting the recount case.

The matter had been held up in the Controller's office for some time on account of the absence of vouchers from the bill. On the strength of opinions from Judge Patterson of the Court of Appeals and the Corporation Counsel, the bill has now been paid. As itemized it runs:

Eugene Lamb Richards $40,000, disbursements $9,585; ex-Supreme Court Justice Hasbrouck $15,000, disbursements $57.87; Parker, Hatch & Sheehan $10,000, disbursements $1,823.32; Dykman & Carr $4,000, and George A. Gregg $2,500, disbursements $610.

NAVY BAN ON CIGARETTES.

Sale on Ships Likely to be Prohibited on Schroeder's Recommendation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—If Rear Admiral Schroeder has his way, no more cigarettes will be carried in the stores of the ships of the American Navy. The Admiral made the recommendation to-day to Secretary Meyer that an order be issued prohibiting the sale of cigarettes in the navy, and Mr. Meyer has taken the matter under advisement.

The Admiral's suggestion is made as the result of a long and thorough investigation of the matter. He does not believe the sailors should be permitted to smoke tobacco in that form, for, in his opinion, it tends to injure them physically and does not benefit them mentally. Admiral Schroeder has long been an enemy of the cigarette.

MUST PAY $500 DAMAGES.

Interborough Ordered to Pay Back Money Dropped by an Italian.

A jury in Justice Greene's part of the City Court returned a verdict yesterday for $500 damages in favor of Gelrino Rosatti of 207 East 106th Street in his suit against the Interborough Rapid Transit Company over a lost pocketbook, alleged to have contained $500.

Rosatti contended that in June, 1908, he was returning from Brooklyn with $500, a loan which a friend had repaid, and as he and his child were leaving a Third Avenue elevated train at Eighteenth Street the little one slipped and fell. In his endeavor to assist the child to its feet the pocketbook fell out of his hand and dropped just inside the gate.

Rosatti testified that he asked a guard to return the pocketbook, only to be told that he must "go to the office."

He further said that upon inquiry at the "Lost and Found" Department of the road, no pocketbook answering the description of his had been found. This was the defense of the defendant company, together with the testimony of J. P. Rogan, a guard on the train, who said that the incident as told by Rosatti had never occurred. The plaintiff had two witnesses who testified that they had seen him drop the pocketbook.

TRUANT BOY A LIFE-SAVER.

Paroled Youngster Rescues a Drowning Boy from Morris Canal.

Ten-year-old George Ward of Barrow and Grand Streets, Jersey City, rescued from drowning yesterday Michael Milkuski, a Polish boy of 176 Grand Street, who accidentally fell into the Morris Canal in the South Cove.

Ward was sentenced to the New Jersey State Home for Boys at Jamesburg for eighty-five cases of truancy. He pleaded for clemency, and Judge Carey of the Hudson County Common Pleas Court decided to give him another chance, paroling him. This was several days ago. Since that time he has attended regularly at No. 9 School, where he is a pupil.

Yesterday he was late and his clothes were wet. When his teacher, Mrs. Clements, learned what had happened she exclaimed:

"I knew there was good stuff in that boy."

It was Mrs. Clements who appealed to the Judge for the boy's parole.

MRS. GOULD AT PARTY; HOSTESS INJURED

Footman Saw a Blood-Stained Arm—Guests in Tears, Mrs. Gould in Cellar.

NICOLL AND SHEARN CLASH

Gould's Lawyer Charges Blackmail—Broker Chapman Says Mrs. Gould Drank on Yachting Trip.

Herbert Schmidt, who was footman to the Howard Goulds from October, 1904, to May, 1905, furnished the sensation yesterday in the sixth day of the trial before Supreme Court Justice Dowling of the separation suit brought by Mrs. Viola Katherine Gould against Howard Gould. Schmidt, who is about 30 years old, went on the witness stand about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and from then until court adjourned, at 5:15, had the crowded room listening intently as he told an extraordinary story of Mrs. Gould's conduct at a party she attended in this city in March, 1905.

The party was given by Mrs. George Underwood Kirkpatrick, at her home, 8 West Eighty-seventh Street. Among those present, according to Schmidt, were the wife of Gen. Henry L. Burnett, Mrs. J. P. Kissam, and Mrs. Clara Tailer, who is now Mrs. Irving Schmelzel. Schmidt's story was that on the morning of the party, Mrs. Gould, who was staying at the St. Regis, sent him with a note to Mrs. Kirkpatrick, saying that she was ill and probably would not be able to attend.

Later in the day, however, Mrs. Gould changed her mind and decided to go. She ordered her automobile and was driven to the Kirkpatrick home. Schmidt said she was intoxicated. Arriving there, Mrs. Gould entered the house, leaving Schmidt waiting. In a short time, the latter said, Mrs. Kirkpatrick's maid came out and told him her mistress wanted to see him. Schmidt said he went upstairs and entered the dining room, on the first floor, where he saw five women. Among them were Mrs. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Burnett, Mrs. Tailer, and Mrs. Kissam.

All the Party Guests Weeping.

"All the ladies were weeping," said Schmidt on his redirect examination. "Mrs. Kirkpatrick was awfully upset and had blood on her arm. I saw Mrs. Taylor sitting on a chair, weeping, and holding her hand to her eye. Mrs. Kirkpatrick asked me to go and find Mrs. Gould. I went down the back stairs, looking for her in the yard first, as Mrs. Kirkpatrick said she was afraid Mrs. Gould had jumped from a window.

"Not finding Mrs. Gould in the yard, I went into the cellar and found her there leaning against a wall. I walked by her without saying anything, and went upstairs and told Mrs. Kirkpatrick that I had found Mrs. Gould. She told me to go down again and ask Mrs. Gould to come upstairs.

"I went down and found her in the same place. I asked her to come away. She said: 'Tell Mrs. Kirkpatrick that I won't put my foot in her house again.' I told Mrs. Kirkpatrick this and then went out to the automobile.

"After waiting about fifteen minutes, Mrs. Gould came out with Mrs. Kissam and Mrs. Burnett, one on each side of her, and they helped her into the automobile. I took them to the St. Regis, but none of them got out. It was then about 5:45 P. M. I then drove them to Mrs. Kissam's house, where she alighted, and then went on to Mrs. Burnett's home, where both Mrs. Gould and Mrs. Burnett got out. I returned to the St. Regis."

Mr. and Mrs. Schmelzel sailed for Europe on the Cunarder Mauretania on May 26 last, saying they did not expect to return until September.

Schmidt's story, told with the assistance of De Lancey Nicoll, counsel for Howard Gould, caused a profound sensation, coming as it did after a comparatively dull afternoon of deposition reading. Mrs. Gould fixed her eyes on her former footman while he was relating it, and, although she frequently broke into incredulous smiles, she was plainly disturbed.

Mr. Shearn, on cross-examination, got from Schmidt that he is at present living at 147 West Twentieth Street and is employed at Considine Brothers' café as a waiter. He said the Kirkpatricks lived on the second floor of an apartment house. The back stairway which he went down to find Mrs. Gould, he said, was the servants' entrance.

Q. Wasn't Mrs. Gould crying when she came out of the Kirkpatrick house? A. No, but her face was red.

Witness Paid to Work for Gould.

Schmidt said that when they got to Mrs. Burnett's house, Mrs. Gould told him to fetch her maid, Bertha, from the St. Regis right away, which he did. It was 11 o'clock, he said, when Mrs. Gould arrived back at the St. Regis, Mrs. Burnett accompanying her.

Q.—Wasn't Mrs. Burnett's maid, Julia, with them? A.—I don't know.

Q.—But you borrowed $20 from Julia, which you didn't pay back.

Mr. Nicoll objected to this and was sustained. Mr. Shearn got the witness to admit that after Mrs. Gould arrived home she sent him for Dr. Holbrook Curtis, and also that Dr. Curtis had been in regular attendance on Mrs. Gould around this time.

Schmidt admitted also that he had been active in Mr. Gould's interests in the suit. He said that he had an arrangement with Mr. Watson, the associate of Mr. Nicoll, whereby he (Schmidt) was to spend his spare time trying to find former employes of the Howard Goulds. He had been successful, he said, in finding the witness Richards, who testified on Tuesday, and two former chauffeurs, Ernest F. Heins and a man named Murphy.

Q.—Don't you recollect telephoning to Mr. Nicoll in the presence of Heins, 'How about that $100 you promised me?' A.—I did not. Heins would not make a statement saying that he had seen anything wrong with Mrs. Gould.

Schmidt admitted that he had been paid for this work at the rate of $5 and $10 at a time, but said that he had not received more than $20 altogether.

The morning session yesterday witnessed the first serious clash between the opposing counsel. Melville D. Chapman, the stock broker, who was formerly connected with the firm of E. R. Chapman & Co., had been called by Mr. Nicoll to testify as to Mrs. Gould's behavior during a six weeks' trip to the West Indies which he made with the Goulds in December, 1905, on their yacht, the Niagara.

Mr. Chapman did not hesitate to say that his hostess had been drunk on several occasions, describing them in detail. While he was testifying Mrs. Gould regarded him with open contempt. Frequently she would smile broadly.

Mr. Nicoll and Mr. Shearn Clash.

The storm broke when Mr. Shearn began his cross-examination.

Q.—Are you on Mr. Gould's payroll? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—Has Mr. Gould furnished you with large sums of money in your business? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—What firm were you connected with? A.—E. R. Chapman & Co.

Q.—Didn't Mr. Gould put money in E. R. Chapman & Co? A.—No, he simply had an ordinary broker's account.

Q.—Didn't he put $100,000 in your firm? A.—No.

Q.—Aren't you under any financial obligation to Mr. Gould? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't you write a letter to your wife on Feb. 14, in which you stated——

Mr. Nicoll was on his feet in an instant objecting. Justice Dowling sustained him, which caused Mr. Shearn to appeal to the court to allow him to prove that Mr. Chapman was under financial obligations to Mr. Gould. But the court was adamant.

Mr. Shearn explained that he wanted to impeach the credibility of the witness. He then handed Chapman a photographic copy of a letter dated Brunswick, Ga., Feb. 14, 1907, which the witness admitted was in his handwriting.

Q.—You sent that letter to your wife, didn't you? A.—No.

Mr. Shearn also handed to Chapman three similar letters dated Feb. 12, 15, and 17.

Q.—I again ask you, didn't you send those letters to your wife? A.—I haven't any wife.

Q.—Did you have a wife then? A.—They are in my handwriting.

Q.—To whom were they sent? A.—To the party named in them.

This brought Mr. Nicoll up with an agry protest.

"This is just a part of the blackmailing tactics which have been pursued all through," said Mr. Nicoll.

Nicoll Charges Blackmail.

Mr. Shearn turned white with anger.

"Your Honor, will you permit me to be insulted in this manner?"

Justice Dowling remarked that Mr. Nicoll's remarks were highly improper and unwarranted, and he thought Mr. Nicoll should apologize.

"I demand an apology," said Mr. Shearn, turning to his adversary.

"I won't apologize for a statement of that sort. There has been a systematic attempt at blackmailing all through this case, and I can prove it."

"There has been nothing in this trial to warrant such an accusation," said Justice Dowling, "and your remarks are offensive to the court."

"I am sorry I have offended the court," replied Mr. Nicoll, "but that is as far as I will go."

With that Mr. Nicoll resumed his seat. Mr. Shearn was laboring under intense anger. For fully a minute he stood utterly unable to say a word. Finally he began:

"I ought to be permitted, your Honor—" but he could get no further.

Justice Dowling relieved the tension by instructing Mr. Nicoll to call another witness and suspend the cross-examination of Chapman. He said it was evident that Mr. Shearn could not proceed.

Mr. Nicoll looked at his opponent, and seeing his agitation said to the court:

"I think Mr. Shearn has put an undue emphasis on my remarks. He seems to think that I have made the charge against him personally of being engaged in an attempt to extort money. I meant the opposite side of the case. I know Mr. Shearn to be an efficient and zealous member of the bar, and I apologize to the court and withdraw my remarks."

"I am the opposite side of the case," replied Mr. Shearn, not the slightest appeased, "and I resent the remarks as much against my client as against myself."

"I think your resentment is perfectly proper," said Justice Dowling.

Both lawyers resumed their seats. Mr. Nicoll, who had regained his good humor, leaned over to Mr. Shearn, evidently wishing to consummate his apology.

"Don't speak to me," said Mr. Shearn. This closed the incident.

Broker Tells of Yachting Trip.

Mr. Chapman testified that he lived at Great Neck, L. I. He said he had known Mr. and Mrs. Gould some time and was their guest on a trip on the Niagara to the West Indies, which began on Dec. 16, 1905, and lasted until Jan. 26, 1906.

Q.—Did you observe the manner and language of Mrs. Gould toward Mr. Gould during that trip? A.—I did. She was defiant in her manner when she had been drinking. At times she was very affable and pleasant, and at times she was not.

Q.—You noticed the change after she had been indulging in liquor? A.—Yes.

Asked for a description of Mrs. Gould's conduct, Mr. Chapman said he heard her tell Mr. Gould that she was "boss" and proposed to have things run her own way. On another occasion, the witness testified, he heard Mrs. Gould tell a steward "that she was boss and to take no notice of Mr. Gould, who, she said, was not competent to manage affairs."

In Santiago Harbor, Chapman testified, Mrs. Gould became much excited because one of the shades over a lamp was out of position. She claimed the light shone in her eyes, called a steward, told him she was boss, and then discharged him, telling him at the same time "that if necessary she would discharge all on board, from the Captain down." On another occasion, when the Niagara was in Havana Harbor, the Goulds entertained the American Chargé d'Affaires and his wife on board. Mrs. Gould was under the influence of liquor and scolded her husband.

"She appeared to be dissatisfied with every one," testified Mr. Chapman, "and left the table. I don't think I saw her again until we got to New York. Mr. Gould invariably made efforts to calm his wife, and was very considerate in his manner toward her."

This concluded Chapman's direct examination. The interrupted cross-examination was never resumed, as Mr. Shearn announced at the beginning of the afternoon session that, in view of Justice Dowling's ruling to exclude the photographic letters, he would not question Mr. Chapman further.

While Mr. Shearn was cross-examining Mr. Chapman Mrs. Gould seemed highly pleased at the broker's discomfiture. She laughed outright when the questions concerning his wife were being asked.

The first witness yesterday was Andrew Frederickson, night watchman at Castle Gould from September, 1906, to February, 1907. He testified that he saw Mrs. Gould at her country home on Nov. 7, 1906, the worse for liquor.

"As I was making my rounds I noticed a fire in the kitchen garden and saw a woman walking away from the fire," testified the watchman.

Q.—Did you go up to that person? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who was it? A.—It was Mrs. Gould. I said "Good evening," but she did not answer, and walked up to the main house.

Q.—What was on fire? A.—There was straw burning in three places in the garden.

Q.—What direction was the wind? A.—It was toward the main house. While I was putting out the fire I heard loud voices at the main house, and when I got there Mrs. Gould and her butler were in the kitchen. She asked me was I the man she met. I said yes. She shook hands with me and told me to get the key for the alarm. She appeared to be intoxicated.

Mr. Shearn, at the suggestion of the Court, did not cross-examine Frederickson, who had apparently been called to confirm the statement made by Malloy, the Superintendent of Castle Gould, that one of his men had reported to him that Mrs. Gould had attempted to fire the house.

Athol Udall, Jr., was the last witness of the day. He had worked for a year as a builder at Castle Gould.

"Did you ever see Mrs. Gould under the influence of liquor?" asked Mr. Nicoll.

"No, I don't believe I did," replied Udall.

Mr. Nicoll repeated the question, but met with no better success, so the witness was dismissed.

The reading of two depositions consumed two hours of the afternoon session. They were those of James Clark, a colored bell boy, and Clarence Bullen, a colored waiter, both employed at the Carroll House, Lynchburg, Va., where Mrs. Gould frequently stayed when visiting her Blue Gap farm. Both deponents were examined concerning what happened at the hotel on Nov. 18 and 19, 1906, when both Dustin Farnum, the actor, and Mrs. Gould were guests at the hotel.

Clark's testimony was unimportant. Asked for a description of Farnum he said he was "a tall, heavy man with a mass of shoulders and hair bushing out under his hat."

It developed that the reason Farnum was in Lynchburg on that occasion was that he was appearing at the local theatre.

Bullen, in his affidavit, said that Mrs. Gould occupied Rooms 14, 15, and 16 at the hotel. He described Farnum as a "spare, slim fellow with black curly hair."

Farnum, he said, occupied Room 116, on the fourth floor far away from Mrs. Gould. The night of their arrival, Bullen deposed, Mrs. Gould gave him an envelope addressed to Mr. Farnum, inviting him to take supper with her. She ordered supper for two. Farnum accepted the invitation and said he would be down in a few minutes.

Bullen told how Mrs. Gould showed him how to lay the table. He placed Mrs. Gould at the head and seated Farnum on her right. They were three-quarters of an hour eating the meal, and when he had cleared it away he left them together. The suite of rooms connected by sliding doors. Bullen said that he did not see Mrs. Gould's maid in the room at any time when he went there.

The next morning they took breakfast together in the same way. When Mrs. Gould ordered the breakfast she came to the door and opened it about a foot. Twenty minutes later, Bullen deposed, when he took the breakfast up Mrs. Gould and Farnum were seated in the room. This was between 8 and 9 o'clock.

About noon, Bullen said, he went to Mrs. Gould's room to take the order for dinner, (they dined at midday,) and Farnum was still there. Again a meal for two was ordered and eaten.

The same state of affairs existed when supper was served that evening, but a little later on when Bullen took up the silver Farnum had gone and Mrs. Gould left the hotel that night.

Mr. Shearn read an affidavit from Pullen in which he said that no liquor was served to Farnum or Mrs. Gould during their stay at the hotel. Pullen was closely questioned concerning his acquaintance with men named Radigan and Mumford, who, it was said, were detectives in the employ of Mr. Gould.

One of these men, according to Pullen, endeavored to get him to take a note to Mrs. Gould. Pullen said he thought the man was trying to strike up an acquaintance with Mrs. Gould.

Both deponents were brought to New York for the purpose of having their depositions taken. This was done in Mr. Nicoll's office. Both had their expenses paid, while Clark admitted having received $20 for spending money, which he was to divide with Pullen. A laugh came when it appeared from Pullen's deposition that he never saw any of this $20.

Each deposed that he expected to be reimbursed for the time lost.

At this stage adjournment was taken until to-day.

THAW HEARING GOES OVER.

Attorney General to Ask for Change of Venue to New York County.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 17.—Harry K. Thaw, committed to the asylum for the criminal insane after acquittal of killing Stanford White, was produced here to-day before Supreme Court Justice Mills on the writ of habeas corpus obtained by his attorney, Charles Morschauser, from Justice Gaynor. Although he must wait until July 6 before the application for a trial to determine the question of his sanity will be passed on, he managed to obtain several concessions from the strict discipline of the Matteawan Asylum.

Among other things Thaw will be permitted to sit up until 9 o'clock at night while he is getting his case ready for presentation instead of retiring at 8 o'clock with the other inmates. Mr. Morschauser complained also that when he went to consult with Thaw they were obliged to sit in a room with a lot of "jabbering idiots," and Justice Mills suggested to the asylum authorities that they give Thaw a room for consultation purposes away from the other inmates.

The lawyer declared that his client could not get decent treatment at the asylum. He said also that District Attorney Jerome was hounding Thaw. "He is here to-day," he said, "for the purpose of persecuting this unfortunate young man."

"You shouldn't say that," broke in Justice Mills, "when Mr. Jerome is here by request."

Justice Mills then asked Dr. Baker, Superintendent of the asylum, about his treatment of Thaw. Dr. Baker said that there were two wards of patients, one of whom went to bed at 6 P. M. and the other at 8.

"Thaw is in the latter class," said he, "and I see no reason for making an exception in his case."

Justice Mills replied that as it was a matter of only one hour he could see no harm in allowing him to sit up until 9 o'clock while he was preparing his papers.

The fight of the prisoner to escape from the madhouse went over until July 6 for the reason that Mr. Jerome and a representative of the Attorney General's office, who appeared for the asylum authorities, asked that the proceedings be transferred to New York County. The Attorney General said that inasmuch as the original trial had been conducted in New York County by the District Attorney of that county, the ends of justice would be better served by moving the present proceedings there for hearing.

Justice Mills directed the Attorney General to submit an order to Justice Gaynor to show cause why the case should not be heard in New York County, and pending the decision of Justice Gaynor, adjourned the hearing.

The prisoner's aged mother, Mrs. William Thaw, was in the courtroom, and at the close of the hearing broke down and wept. Thaw hastened to her side to comfort her, and she threw her arms around his neck and embraced him. The grief of Mrs. Thaw upset Mrs. Coply Thaw and Mrs. J. C. Thaw, and there came very near being a scene in court. With the family were the Rev. Dr. W. E. McEwan, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church of Pittsburg, and the Rev. Robert Christie, professor of the Western Theological Seminary of Allegheny.

Thaw appeared to be in good health. Mrs. Evelyn Thaw was not in court.

ALDRICH WILL AGAIN DELAY INCOME TAX

Committee Considers Wickersham's Draft of Corporation Tax Measure on Taft's Plan.

BAILEY TO CONTINUE FIGHT

Decided That He Shall Handle the Income Tax—Brown Urges Free Print Paper—House Insurgents Meet.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—When the question of the income tax and its proposed substitutes comes up to-morrow under the Senate order adopted a week ago, Senator Aldrich will for the third time move to postpone. An effort is being made to-night to obtain unanimous consent for the consideration of the whole matter at the end of the schedules, but, failing to obtain that consent, the organization has no doubt of its ability to carry a motion to postpone to a day certain.

A conference of the Democratic Senators, a meeting of the Finance Committee, and informal and almost continuous conferences among the insurgent Senators has made practically no change in the situation to-day. Attorney General Wickersham is at work drafting a corporation tax measure on the lines indicated by the President in his message, and a tentative draft of that amendment was briefly considered by the committee this afternoon. No decision was reached, however, and in view of the certain postponement of the whole matter it was said to-night there would be no meeting of the committee to-morrow.

It was learned to-day that at the special meeting of the Cabinet members yesterday, when the proposed corporation tax was fully considered, much time was devoted to the question of what should be made taxable. President Taft's first idea, as has been published in these dispatches, was to tax only the funds available for dividends. That had been abandoned, however, before the matter reached the special message stage, and yesterday's Cabinet session was unanimous in favor of laying the tax upon the net earnings of corporations. That brought up the question of what should be considered net earnings, and whether funds devoted to meeting interest on bonds should or should not be included.

It was finally agreed that all receipts of corporations above expenses of operation and maintenance should be held to be net earnings. That is, the item of "net earnings" will be held to include what are usually called "fixed charges." Of course, interest on bonds is a fixed charge, and under this proposition it will be taxable. It was held that any other provision would put the law practically on the basis of taxing merely the funds available for dividends.

There is a strong impression in Administration circles that the agreement upon this corporation tax will render it much more easy to obtain what is termed "a satisfactory revision bill" in conference. There is no doubt that President Taft and his chief Administration advisers have received assurances that there will be changes in conference tending to make the bill more nearly conform to the numerous pledges the President gave during his campaign for election.

While Democrats and the remnant of the income tax supporters to-night are determined still to vote for the income tax, while favoring the constitutional amendment proposed by the President with a willingness to accept finally the corporation tax as the best they can get, they are both puzzled as to their course in case the corporation levy is proposed as a substitute for the income tax. In that case, the prevailing sentiment in both camps seems to vote against the proposed substitute while if is in that form, but when it replaces the original income tax proposition, to vote for it.

The Democrats were in conference for two hours, and no more definite conclusion was reached. Although the meeting was afterward described as perfectly harmonious, about the only final decision was to allow Senator Bailey to handle the tax amendment on the floor and to continue in general their advocacy of the income tax. To-morrow they expect to vote, as heretofore, against a motion to postpone, though among many of them there is a tendency to accept the proposal to postpone until the end of the schedules with any reasonable assurance that final action will be taken then.

Senator Brown of Nebraska introduced this morning his joint resolution sending the proposed income-tax constitutional amendment to the States. It was at once referred to the Committee on Finance, where it will be considered and probably amended.

The point just now that seems most at issue in drafting the proposed tax on corporate earnings is the line at which exemption shall be made. It is realized that for purposes of economic administration corporations below a certain capitalization, or perhaps with earnings below a certain point, are not worth pursuing, and that the smaller concerns must be exempted from the provisions of the law.

The gradual working out of the schedules on the Senate side and the feeling that the end may come within a fortnight or two in that body have led to a reawakening of the House insurgents. There the old rule insurgents, who came so near overthrowing the Cannon régime on the organization of the House, form a nucleus around which are gathering certain elements discontented at the treatment they received in the disposal of the Tariff bill.

The whole aggregation will meet to-morrow if enough of them are in town, and try to map out some plan for forcing concession on the tariff when it is sent back to the House by the Senate. News of what was brewing reached Speaker Cannon this morning and throughout the day he seemed in no pleasant mood.

Senator Brown made a long speech in favor of free print paper and wood pulp. He said in part:

"The testimony before the House committee," said Mr. Brown, "shows that the International Paper Company itself went into Canada and purchased a large amount of print paper to keep the American publishers from buying it, and this they parceled out among their foreign customers. Because of this purchase of foreign paper the trust had too great a supply on hand and was compelled to shut down twenty-four paper machines, while the surplus was being consumed in American presses. And the protected laborers on these twenty-four machines were compelled to find other jobs."

In opposition to Mr. Brown's statement that print paper can be manufactured as cheaply in the United States as in Canada, Mr. Frye said that skilled labor in Canada is paid as much as in the United States. Unskilled labor which, he said, is 80 per cent. of the whole labor involved, is paid 30 per cent. less in Canada.

Mr. Aldrich said the House committee in recommending the $2 rate on print paper did not take into consideration the difference in cost of wood at mills in Canada and the United States, and the Senate committee had added $2 a ton on that account.

"These very papers that are asking for free paper," said Mr. Tillman, "are the very headlights of protection, and they deny me the opportunity to buy this coat, or these shoes," illustrating by pointing to the articles of his attire, "yet they want free paper."

Looking about the Senate with a deep scowl, Mr. Tillman brought his foot down on the velvet carpet with resounding effect as he added, "They are humbugs." Then he took his seat.

The Senate agreed to the committee amendment fixing the duty on illustrated postcards at 15 cents per pound and 25 per cent. ad valorem. As stated by Mr. Smoot, this was an increase from 5 cents a pound, or 325 per cent. ad valorem, the very great increase being made necessary on account of the intense German competition, which was supplying the domestic market with postcards showing American views.

Politicians Not Much Impressed by Strength of New Non-Partisan League.

With the Committee of One Hundred launched on the sea of municipal politics, men experienced in the political game from practicing it for 365 days in the year either in Tammany Hall or the Republican organization observed yesterday that it did not make so much of a splash after all in hitting the water.

The Tammanyites took new courage over the thought, for in a sense the strength of the Committee of One Hundred will be an index of the strength of those who will be arrayed against Tammany in the municipal campaign. In the Republican camp the supposed weakness of the Committee of One Hundred was viewed with comparative equanimity, although the committee is expected to form one of the important factors in any fusion movement that there may be this Fall in opposition to Tammany. The Republican politicians figure that a Committee of One Hundred which won't be in a position to cut a whole lot of political ice on its own hook will be easier to "manage"—that is, to whip into line for a straight Republican ticket.

When the Republican County Committee met last night for the last time prior to September and adjourned without taking the initiative for fusion, by appointing a Conference Commitee, it was made clear that the Republican organization would "lie low" and wait for proposals from the other anti-Tammany organization before it makes as much as a move to fuse. This tallies with statements made in the last three weeks by men hign in Republican politics in this city.

The Committee of One Hundred will meet at 4 o'clock this afternoon at 82 Beaver Street to effect organization. It was hinted yesterday that James B. Reynolds of Settlement and Packingtown fame may be made Chairman. Subcommittees will be appointed to do the routine work and look about for opportunities to fuse.

"Little Tim" Sullivan said yesterday he was glad for the committee's sake that his friend Isaac A. Hopper, dethroned Tammany leader of the Thirty-first Assembly District, had been picked as one of the Hundred.

"I hope he'll convert his ninety-nine confrères," said the Hon. Tim, with wicked emphasis on the first syllable of the last word.

The Republican County Committee at its regular meeting last night authorized the Executive Committee to issue a call for the primaries, which this year will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 21.

Thomas F. McAvoy, Chairman of the Tammany Executive Committee, announced yesterday that he had appointed the Tammany "Steering Committee" for the City Convention. The committee is composed of five members with Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy, Chairman. The other members are Daniel F. Cohalan, J. Sergeant Cram, Eugene McGuire, and Michael Garvin. The two latter are from the Bronx. The committee will settle the question of borough representation in the convention.

KILLS WIFE; TRIES SUICIDE.

Husband Dragged from Car Tracks by Neighbors and Tied.

William Ely Westervelt, a boss mason, of Teaneck, N. J., shot and instantly killed his wife shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday morning. Westervelt is now a prisoner in the Hackensack Jail.

Westervelt says that while intoxicated he was showing his wife how to handle a shotgun in the event of a burglar entering the house, when there was a sudden explosion and both barrels of the gun were discharged. The first shot struck the woman under the jaw on the right side of the neck. The second shot took effect in the right leg. Assistant Prosecutor John S. Mackay says he cannot understand why both discharges of the shotgun should have been accidental, and he expects to prove that Westervelt shot his wife after a quarrel.

Westervelt gave the alarm of the tragedy when he walked along Queen Anne Road in his pajamas, crying out that he had shot his wife. L. J. Dirig, an exporter; Richard Palmer, a publisher, and Frederic Danrau, a florist, were awakened by Westervelt. On their way to the Westervelt house they stopped a trolley car and prevailed upon some of the passengers to go into the house as witnesses. They found Mrs. Westervelt dead in a bedroom on the second floor.

Mrs. Palmer, who accompanied her husband to the Westervelt house, says that when she asked if Mrs. Westervelt had been killed, Westervelt replied:

"Yes, and if you don't shut up I'll kill you, too."

He grabbed her by the arm, but the other men seized him and attempted to tie his hands and feet. But he broke away and running out to the road threw himself across the trolley tracks just as another car was approaching. The motorman saw him, however, and stopped the car in time to prevent him from thus committing suicide. The neighbors thereupon caught him again and tied him to the porch.

Fined for Speeding.

Among the automobilists convicted of speeding in Special Sessions yesterday was Rex E. Beach, the author. He paid $5 fine for going twenty-five miles an hour on Riverside Drive, between Seventy-ninth and Eighty-third Streets, last December.

Mr. Beach said he was going up a hill and had adapted his speed to that of another car. Unfortunately, the car in question turned out to be a police automobile.

William J. Stanley, actor, pleaded guilty to speeding as a fourth offense, and was promptly sentenced to serve three days in the Tombs and to pay a fine of $100, or serve ten more days.

Joseph J. Ryan, son of Thomas F. Ryan, who was arrested on April 11 while speeding up Broadway, appeared through a lawyer from Paul D. Cravath's office and was fined $5.

LONDON MEN BUY DIME BANK BUILDING

Charles Kaufman and E. H. Cuthbertson Lead British Invasion of New York Real Estate.

RECORD PRICE PAID FOR IT

Plot at Broadway, Sixth Avenue, and Thirty-second Street Held at $1,500,000 by City Investing Company.

Charles Kaufman and Edward Hedley Cuthbertson, London bankers, who also have large interests in Australia and in the De Beers diamond mining syndicate in South Africa, have bought the Union Dime Savings Bank Building, at Broadway, Sixth Avenue and Thirty-second Street, from the City Investing Company, of which Robert E. Dowling is President. Samuel Goldsticker was the broker in the transaction.

None of the interested parties would disclose yesterday the price for this little "real estate diamond," which, for its size, has been regarded for some time as one of the most valuable bits of ground in the city. Mr. Dowling's company bought it something over two years ago for $1,000,000, and he has been holding it at $1,500,000. The area of the plot is almost exactly 4,000 square feet, so that Mr. Dowling paid $250 a square foot for it. At $1,500,000 the property would show a square-foot price of $375, and even assuming that this figure was shaded a little to a quick cash purchaser, it is probable that the actual price has been exceeded only by the $600 a square foot paid for the southeast corner of Broadway and Wall Street.

Messrs. Kaufman and Cuthbertson will not get possession of the property for nearly a year, the Union Dime Savings Bank, in the original sale to the City Investing Company, having arranged to keep the building until its new building at Sixth Avenue and Fortieth Street has been completed.

The Londoners, according to Mr. Goldsticker, have no plans for the future of the property. They came over here about three weeks ago with the real estate bee in their bonnets and asked to see the best there was. Mr. Goldsticker showed them the old bank building. He showed them Broadway on one side of the building, Sixth Avenue on the other, with its tunnel, surface road, and elevated lines, and Thirty-second Street in front leading to the Pennsylvania Station in one direction and to Fifth Avenue in the other.

He showed them the big addition to the Hotel Martinique going up diagonally opposite, at the northeast corner of Broadway and Thirty-second Street, and the big excavation for the new Gimbel store within a stone's throw in the other direction. Within forty-eight hours the deal had been practically closed, and a week ago the buyers sailed for home. Yesterday came the "clincher" in the shape of the transfer of a large sum by cable to the City Investing Company.

The transaction, when its details became known yesterday afternoon, occasioned widespread comment in real estate circles, not only by reason of the amount involved, but also because the transaction marked the first out-and-out purchase of New York real estate in recent years by foreign interests—as distinguished from the mythical European syndicates which have been frequently reported to be on the way, but which have invariably failed to arrive.

MEAT INVESTIGATION BEGINS.

Ex-Inspector Harms's Request for Open Inquiry Into Plants Is Denied.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., June 17.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson's Board of Inquiry, appointed to investigate the charges of former Inspector J. F. Harms that the Government inspection system in the packing houses here is faulty, held a closed session this afternoon. Harms, after his request for an open investigation had been denied, withdrew from the room.

The board is composed of Dr. A. B. Melvin, Chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry; George P. McCabe, Solicitor for the Department of Agriculture; Dr. E. A. Behnke, an Assistant Inspector of the bureau; Dr. R. P. Stedden, Chief of the inspection division of the bureau, and George Ditwig, Traveling Inspector.

Dr. Melvin issued a statement that every man on the meat inspection force who is in a position to have any knowledge about the alleged occurrences will be a witness. The board heard the testimony of the fourteen witnesses whose names Mr. Harms furnished to the Department of Agriculture in his letter of charges.

Eighty witnesses are yet to be examined. The testimony will not be made public, but it is probable that the finding of the board will be announced here.

LAW STUDENTS GIVE REEVES AN OVATION

New York Graduates Follow Up Recent Protests Over Faculty Changes at Commencement.

TALK FROM JUSTICE CLARKE

He Advises Young Lawyers to Avoid Needless Words and to Play Straight with the Court.

An echo of the storm of protests with which the announcement that Prof. George C. Smith would be substituted next session as the lecturer on real property for Prof. Albert G. Reeves was recently received by the junior class of the New York Law School was heard at the school's commencement last night in Carnegie Hall in the prolonged applause and cheering which greeted Prof. Reeves when he started to read the names of the Masters of Law.

Prof. Reeves could not make himself heard for about a minute. He smiled but rapped for order, which was not restored until he began reading the names of the highest graduates of the Law School. When on Friday of last week Dean George Chase informed the junior class that at the beginning of next session Prof. Smith, his son-in-law, would take up the evening lectures on real property, the announcement was received with every sign of displeasure, one of the members, it is said, telling Dean Chase that he did not think his selection a wise one.

The junior class, without exception, it is said, wanted Prof. Reeves, and not Prof. Smith. Dean Chase explained at the time that he had decided on the change because of Prof. Reeves's unwillingness to continue teaching at night. He would meet the day classes next session, as usual.

Carnegie Hall was well filled with friends and relatives of the graduates of the Law School when Dean Chase presented Justice John Proctor Clarke of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court to deliver the annual address.

Justice Clarke talked very frankly to the young lawyers. He told them they must be not only financially honest but intellectually honest as well. He said that oratory was not dead, but he told them to omit meaningless words, as New York was too busy for them. He said he recalled a young lawyer who, in arguing a demurrer, which was about the most matter-of-fact thing he could think of, began with these words:

"Never since the blameless Son of Mary walked beneath the palms of Palestine." "Now leave all tha tout," continued the Justice. "The court smiles at that sort of eloquence, and when people begin to laugh at your eloquence it isn't very effective."

Following Justice Clarke's address Dean Chase conferred these degrees:

PARENTS MOB FOUR EAST SIDE SCHOOLS

Children and Their Elders Thrown Into a Panic by Rumors of Black Hand Threats.

STARTED BY A FIRE ENGINE

Clanging of the Bells Frightened the Pupils and Their Terror Spread to Their Homes.

The lower east side had its annual Summer panic of school children and their mothers yesterday afternoon. Before it was over about 8,000 children of four schools were stampeded, while their mothers—and some fathers—clawed at the school gate posts and each other in a frenzied struggle to enter the buildings and rescue their supposedly endangered offspring. A year ago when physicians were removing adenoid growths from the throats of school children, the report spread through the east side that the authorities were cutting the throats of the innocents. Then there was a panic. Yesterday rumor had it the terrible Black Hand was blowing up school buildings by the dozen.

All the trouble was due to a twenty-dollar fire in a store at Attorney and Houston Streets, which the excitable dwellers on the east side straightway interpreted as an attack by the Black Hand. The reserves from two station houses were called out before the police, together with the school authorities, could convince the terrified parents that their fears were groundless.

For several weeks there have been rumors among the school children of the district around Gouverneur Street and East Broadway that Black Hand letters had been received by the Principals of various schools, threatening to blow up the school buildings. Various causes were assigned for the sending of these letters; some said that a boy of one of the schools had furnished to the police information about the assassin of the late Lieut. Petrosino, and that the Black Hand was going to take vengeance upon the schools indiscriminately; others said that sums ranging from 50 cents to $50 for each graduating pupil had been demanded from the Principals.

Rumor had it that such letters had been received by William L. Ettinger, Principal of Public School 147, at Gouverneur Street and East Broadway; Miss Margaret O'Connell, Principal of No. 31, at Gouverneur and Monroe Streets, and Miss Julia Richman, Superintendent of the Second and Third School Districts. The rumor was vigorously denied as absurd in each case; but the children were still nervous. They communicated their uneasiness to their parents at home.

Shortly before 1 o'clock yesterday when the children were re-entering the schools after the midday recess, Engine Company 15 was called out to an alarm of fire at Attorney and Houston Streets. The engine house is just across the street from Public School 147, and it happened that the fire was in the neighborhood of Public School 4, at Rivington and Pitt Streets. This circumstance started a panic at both schools.

At No. 147 half of the 2,000 children were in the building, and the rest lined up outside ready to follow them. At the sound of the clanging bells and the screeching siren, some one of the children in the building shouted "Fire!" Others remembered the Black Hand rumors, and in a moment there was a panic. This was in nowise diminished when scores of mothers from the nearby homes ran to the gates of the school and clamored for their children with the cry, so common to the east side at the first symptom of panic: "Meine kinder! Meine kinder!"

Dr. Ettinger, Principal of the school, at once ordered out his force of assistants, who closed the gates and circulated among the frightened children, calming them down into a semblance of order. Then, while the mothers and fathers struggled and tore at each other outside of the barred gates, the children were marshaled into line and marched up to their classrooms. Thereafter the school authorities returned to the struggling mob of mothers outside, reassured them as to the wellbeing of their children, and, after making them, too, form in line, permitted such of them as desired to do so to visit their children in the classrooms or see them at the windows. They all desired to. Thereafter they went, rather shamefaced, though still very flushed, to their homes.

But this was only the beginning of the trouble. When the clanging and screeching engine reached Public School 4 at Rivington and Pitt Streets the same scene was enacted. Rumors of the Black Hand had been in circulation there that day, owing to the fact that the janitor, S. Thomassen, had appeared with an injured foot caused by striking his toe against an obstruction. The children insisted that the Black Hand had visited him at his home on the night before, and had cut off one of his fingers. Their panic when the engine neared was almost as bad as at the other school, and here the only injuries of the day were reported. One little girl, Yetta Greenberg of 18 Henry Street, was trampled on, several others were slightly scratched and bruised, while a few of their elders, when they extricated themselves from the struggling mass in the street, showed scratched arms and darkened eyes. None of the injuries was serious.

Meanwhile the rumors of danger threatening the children, spreading on the east side, had reached the mothers who had children at Public School 12, three blocks away from the first school. This collected the third maternal mob. One of the women before investigating sent in an alarm of fire from the box on the corner, and presently, only thirteen minutes after the first fire alarm, Engine Company 15 was upon this scene also. The firemen found no fire, but only a street blackened with struggling parents. Assisting the reserves of the Union Market Station, they formed two lines at the gates, through which the children were marched out by the Principal, Miss Elise Kornmann, and her staff, while the parents were kept back.

This second coming of the engine company woke a similar panic at Public School 31, at Gouverneur and Monroe Streets, four blocks away, and scarcely had the police reserves succeeded in calming the children of No. 12 when they were called to help the reserves of the Madison Street Station in quieting the mob at No. 31. The 1,500 children were marched, in forced order, out of the building, while the mothers were kept back by the police. In a few minutes the panic had been quelled.

The four outbreaks occurred within twenty minutes. Some uneasiness was manifested at Public Schools 22 and 88, at Sheriff and Stanton Streets and Lewis and Rivington Streets, but the Principals instilled order in time to prevent any nearer approach to panic.

HELD IN BERSIN MURDER.

Police Detain a Painter, but Have No Evidence Against Him.

After making a house-to-house search of the lower east side for the murderer of Samuel Bersin the police arrested Sigmund Goldberg, a painter, living at 188 Allen Street, yesterday afternoon as a suspicious person, and he was locked up at Headquarters for the night. Joseph Tortaro, the Italian boy in whose care the bundles containing Bersin's dismembered body were left, picked Goldberg out in the street as the man who asked him to watch the parcels while he went for an express wagon.

The boy was walking along Allen Street yesterday afternoon with Detectives England Whitman and Fogarty when Goldberg came out of a paint shop and England asked Tortaro if he looked like the man who had the bundles. The boy looked at the man closely and then replied: "Yes; that's the man."

Goldberg was then asked by the detectives to go with them to Police Headquarters, where he was taken up to the Homicide Bureau on the top floor and put through a severe examination by Capt. Carey and later by Inspector McCafferty. The man spoke English imperfectly and an interpreter had to be sent for.

The man said that he was a Roumanian Jew and had been in this country six years. The last two years he had been in business for himself and had a paint shop at 108 and 110 Second Street in the basement. He had no knowledge of Bersin he said. Persons who have told of seeing the man who carried the bundles containing Bersin's body were sent for, but they were unable to identify Goldberg. He was detained over night though for a hearing in the Police Court this morning.

Detectives searched the rooms occupied by Goldberg and his wife at 188 Allen Street and found two old rusty saws, a new suit of clothes, and two pawn tickets for goods pawned last April, but could not find any clue that connected him with the crime except the boy's identification. Inspector McCafferty said that he would have to hold him on that, and he will be in the Tombs Court this morning.

What appeared at first to be a promising clue to the identity of the murderer of Bersin came to light yesterday morning through Leon Feldman, a Roumanian tailor living at 89 Cherry Street. Feldman said that a Maltese sailor had called upon him on Tuesday of this week and tried to sell him a ring with a diamond in it that had a flaw like the one Bersin had in his possession when he left home on Wednesday week. The detectives searched Oak Street where the seaman was said to be lodging and found him. His name was Selim Zemindar and the diamond was made of glass.

Blue Serge Suits for Men

Garments of marked distinction at $15 to $33

"Familiarity breeds contempt," and the average man is so familiar with the usual aspect of the perennial serge suit that unless he is observant he will not know that there are serges—and serges.

We do not consider it essential to dwell at length upon the character of the materials we use in the creation of our Suits of blue serge. Our reputation is too well established to admit the possibility of a doubt upon that score.

Granted, then, that money cannot buy better serges, or greater perfection in dye or finish, you are invited to convince yourself that distinction rests with the designer and the tailorman—and that our craftsmen are fully equal to the task of producing blue serge Suits of distinction and finish most unusual.

We present a large assortment of serge Suits in both plain weaves and novelty effects—and in our own exclusive models.

The 1909 Series of Macy's Old-Fashioned Sales Continue

If you have never visited our Clothing department you probably have a very imperfect idea of the variety and character of the Suits we sell—and the quality of the economy represented by our prices. An "imperfect idea" on the subject means that you are guilty of a double-edged injustice. Unjust to yourself, if you belong to the frugal clan; unjust to us. Look at this advertisement—the figures, look at them. Are they not most attractive?

Men's $25.00 Suits at $17.75; Men's $20.00 Suits at $14.75; Men's $22.50 Two-piece Suits at $13.50; Young Men's $18.00 Suits at $12.75.

Men's Store, 5th Fl.

If you know Macy's, you know that the above figures are accurate. You don't have to make comparisons in order to be convinced. We print the claim. That's your assurance. But so long as the population grows, and so long as people delay testing the value of a Clothing store like ours, just so long will we have to offer concrete evidence of our policy. Like the following:

Men's $25.00 Suits at $17.75
They are single-breasted sack models, made of high-class fancy materials. The tailoring and finish will stand closest scrutiny.

Men's $20.00 Suits at $14.75 They are single-breasted sack models, made of reliable blue serge, shepherd checks and fancy mixtures. Trousers have open welts and are stitched down the seams; loops or side buckles.

Men's $22.50 Two-Piece Suits at $13.50

Men's Hand-Tailored Two-Piece Suits, made of tropical weight worsteds, cheviots and homespuns, in grays, tans, greens and stone shades; half or quarter lined with alpaca; some quarter lined with silk; values up to $22.50; special at $13.50.

Suits for Young Men. Values up to $18.00 at $12.75

They are made of pure worsteds and roughish unfinished fabrics in all the newest Summer colorings. Every Suit in the lot is the product of honest and finished tailoring. Test them at all points and nothing will be found wanting. Chest measures, 30 to 36 inches.

GLADSTONE EVADES RUIZ CASE INQUIRY

Says Questions Should Go to Existing Parliamentary Committee on Inquests.

PREMIER TO BE QUESTIONED

Labor Member Will Ask Him Whether Steps Are to be Taken to Prevent Similar Scandals Hereafter.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 17.—Pete Curran got his question about the Ruiz inquest, in its modified form, before Parliament to-day, and elicited an answer from the Home Secretary to the effect that the general subject of legislation on inquests was already before a Parliamentary committee, whose sittings were not yet concluded. The fact of the existence of this committee, however, seems to have been generally lost sight of until Mr. Curran's prodding of the Minister served as a reminder. But for that, indeed, the committee might possibly have slept on indefinitely. Now there seems some sort of prospect that it will report before long.

Mr. Curran also put to Mr. Gladstone the supplementary question to-day, "Whether he was aware that on the 19th of May an inquest was held over the body of Mrs. Agnes Ruiz; that neither press nor public was notified of the fact, and that the Coroner refused to communicate for publication the depositions taken in the case when asked to do so."

The Home Secretary answered that he did not see how this question was derived from the other one. However, he expressed the opinion that both should be referred to the committee.

Another Labor Party member, Charles A. Bowman, representing Deptford, intends to address a question germane to the Ruiz case to the Prime Minister on Monday. He will ask whether steps are to be taken at once to see that a like suppression of the facts elicited at a Coroner's inquest does not occur again. The Labor members declare they will not drop the matter even if the answer to this question is no more satisfactory than that of the Home Secretary to the one presented by Mr. Curran.

POPE NAMES CHAMBERLAINS.

Former New York Pastor Gives Dinner to Archbishop Farley.

ROME, June 17.—On the recommendation of Archbishop Farley of New York the Pope has appointed the Revs. James V. Lewis, Daniel J. Mackin, and James M. Connolly private chamberlains, and the Revs. James J. Flood and Francis H. Wall domestic prelates. These distinctions give the holders the title of Monsignor.

The Rev. John Dolan, for eleven years pastor of the Mount Carmel Church in New York, and now rector of the English Church here, gave a dinner to-day in honor of Archbishop Farley. The guests included Cardinal Vannutelli, Archbishop Seton of Newark, the Right Rev. Michael J. Hoban, Bishop of Scranton; Mgr. O. B. Corrigan, Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore; Mgr. John F. Kearney of New York, Mgr. John I. Barrett of Brooklyn; Mgr. W. G. Murphy, rector of the Church of the Immaculate Conception; the Rev. Francis H. Wall of New York, and M. Kugelmann, Rector General of the Pallottini Fathers. Toasts were proposed by Father Dolan, Archbishop Farley, Bishop Hoban, and Cardinal Vannutelli.

PANAMA STOPS LABOR EXODUS

Steamer That Was to Take Spaniards to Brazil Held Up.

COLON, June 17.—The Cuban steamer Oteri is tied up at this port, the Panama Railroad Company refusing it permission to come to the company's wharves and the Panama Government withholding clearance papers. Two hundred and fifty Spaniards are booked for passage on the Oteri bound for Brazil, but are unable to embark.

W. G. Spiller, a prominent hotel owner, recently contracted with and shipped 500 European canal laborers for construction work on a railroad on the Amazon River in Brazil. Fearing continued shipments would be seriously detrimental to the canal labor problem, and in response to strong representations on this subject, the Panama Government has just passed a stringent law making emigration to Brazil exceedingly difficult.

American Steamer Ashore in Samar.

MANILA, June 17.—According to telegraphic advices received here the American steamer San Juan is ashore at the mouth of Carangnian Harbor, Island of Samar.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 17.—The number of cholera cases here is increasing daily. A man who was stopping at a hotel in the centre of the city is among the victims of the disease.

BERLIN, June 17.—An agreement of amity, commerce, and navigation between Venezuela and Germany was assented to to-day by the Federal Council.

KIEV, Russia, June 17.—A band of armed men visited the estate of a local landholder to-day and demanded a large sum of money. This was refused, and the bandits thereupon shot the land owner, his mother, three peasants, and a servant, and made their escape.

CARACAS, June 17.—The High Federal Court has declared unconstitutional Castro's decrees of January, 1908, which annulled the salt and match monopoly concessions. The decision restores to the Ethelburga Sndicate, Limited, of London all its rights.

BLACKJACKED BY POLICEMAN.

Beaten Prisoner's Story Corroborated by Witness Arrested with Him.

Magistrate O'Connor will investigate on Saturday in the Essex Market Court the charge of Morris Miller of 194 Delancey Street that Policeman Miller of the Delancey Street Station beat him brutally without cause yesterday. The Magistrate postponed the case yesterday at the request of counsel for Morris Miller, who said he wanted to get other witnesses.

Miller was brought into court holding his hands ot his bruised head and face. Above his left eye was a large wound. his hands to his bruised head and face. was badly lacerated. His collar had been torn off, ripped out of the buttonhole in the neckband of his shirt.

Policeman Miller, unscarred, charged the prisoner with having assaulted him.

Miller told the court that he was standing in front of 62 Pitt Street, when the policeman ordered him to move on. Miller asked why he must move, when the proprietor of the store where he stood did not object to his presence. For answer, Miller said, the policeman grabbed him by the collar and jerked him across the street, telling him he was under arrest.

Then, said Miller, the policeman began beating him with a blackjack until, in self defense, he tried to break away. The beating continued until the station house was reached, he said, and he added that he was struck once inside the station in the presence of Capt. Handy.

With Miller was arraigned Jacob Link, a jeweler, of 92 Columbia Street, who was arrested after following Miller to the station. He said he saw the beating and followed, although he did not know Miller, the prisoner, to be a witness for him. The policeman said that Link tried to trip him up, and Policeman Reilly of Traffic Squad B corroborated this. He also corroborated the policeman's statement that he arrested Link twenty feet outside the station house.

Magistrate O'Connor sent for Lieut. McCallan to establish just where the arrest was made, Link charging that he had been arrested on the very threshold of the station. Sergt. Devlin and Policeman Hopkins responded, the Lieutenant having gone off duty, and both men testified that Link had been arrested not more than a foot outside the station house door. Thereupon the Magistrate discharged Link, and, shaking Devlin by the hand, exclaimed:

"I want to thank you, Sergeant, and you, Policeman Hopkins, for your truthful testimony. I am glad to know New York has some Sergeants and policemen who testify to the truth."

The arrest and blackjacking of Miller caused an angry crowd to follow him to the station, and the crowd did not disperse until the reserves were called out to drive them away.

Miller was held in $1,000 bail pending the hearing on Saturday. He furnished the bond.

ALDERMANIC FISTICUFFS OFF.

Doull Says Kenneally Is an Honorable Man—And So Says He of Doull.

There were no fisticuffs between Aldermen Kenneally and Doull as scheduled for yesterday's Building Code hearing. "Little Tim" Sullivan saw to that. Mr. Kenneally had accused Mr. Doull of "holding a man up" for $500. Doull had replied by calling Kenneally many different kinds of person to whom the shorter and uglier word might rightfully be applied.

The attendance consequently was large, for Doull had announced that Kenneally would apologize or there would be trouble. Befors the meeting, however, "Little Tim" had a serious heart-to-heart talk with both men, and occupied a seat well back in the chamber. Kenneally, presiding as Chairman, called the session to order. Then he arose and said:

"There has been a good deal of publicity about our last meeting. It has been stated that I made an open charge of graft against one of our number, Alderman Doull. I want to state now without fear or favor or prompting on any one's part that I know of no graft on the part of Alderman Doull. He and I may have words at times, but if Alderman Doull feels offended he knows what to do about it."

The end of the Alderman's statement was a bit lame, but Doull seemed to think it satisfactory, and, jumping to his feet, replied:

"I accept the amende honorable. There is a large difference of opinion in regard to the new Building Code, and it is right that there should be. But when it comes to personal charges of dishonesty I feel that I must object. I realize that my remarks at the last meeting were delivered in heat, but they were in a sense justified. I want to state, however, that I do not charge personal graft on the part of Alderman Kenneally. I think that he is sincere in this matter, and is trying to meet us half way. I want to withdraw the statements I made."

"Little Tim" smiled on, and the hearing was continued. It was devoted principally to the discretionary powers granted to the Superintendent of Buildings in the new code. These met with serious opposition, various speakers declaring that altogether too much leeway is given to the Superintendent in the code as drawn by the majority of the Revision Commission.

MORE BLACK HAND ARRESTS.

A Dozen Foreigners Taken In Raid by Post Office Inspector in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 17.—In a spectacular raid led by Post Office Inspector Oldfield to-night, a dozen inmates of a house on Sixth Street, in the downtown district, were placed under arrest. It is stated that the arrests are a result of previous arrests made in Marion, Columbus, and other Ohio towns in connection with the Black Hand organization. All of those arrested are foreigners.

CLEVELAND, June 17.—The cases against Antonio and Joseph Nusso, Black Hand suspects, were continued until June 29 by United States Commissioner Starek here to-day. District Attorney William L. Day asked for the continuance, saying that the Government has been unable to assemble its evidence.

MUTUAL MARKS UP CONTINGENTRESERVE

Increase from $16,500,000 to $21,656,886 Ordered by Insurance Department.

REALESTATE VALUE TOOLOW

Figures Showing Book and Not Appraised Values Used in Computing Contingent Reserve.

The contingency reserve of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, it was learned yesterday, has just been marked up from about $16,500,000 to $21,656,886 by order of the New York State Insurance Department. This increase in the reserve was ordered on the ground that the Mutual Life's real estate was not entered in its accounts at a sufficiently high figure, as it stood at its book instead of at its last appraised value.

The result of marking up the reserve has been to bring it $424,894 above the maximum permitted by the new insurance law. It became necessary for the company to apply for special permission to maintain this excess until the next distribution of dividends to the company's policy holders, when this sum will be taken into account in figuring the amount available for policy holders' dividends. This permission has been granted by the department.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company, in its last report to the Insurance Department in pursuance of the conservative policy of entering its real estate at its book value instead of at its appraised value gave $26,196,029 as the value of its real estate holdings on Jan. 1. The appraised value, according to the last appraisal made several years ago, was $31,853,078. This figure, as well as the book and cost value of its real estate was shown in its statement of real estate holdings, but in its statement of condition the book value was used in figuring the reserves.

The difference between the book value and last appraised value of the Mutual Life's real estate was $5,657,049. Some time last month, it was learned yesterday, the department took the stand that this was in effect a hidden reserve, and that under the law the company would be obliged to mark up its contingent reserve by this difference. The department also made an appraisal of the Mutual's holdings of bonds, and its figures showed a sum about $200,000 in excess of the company's figures. This was an insignificant amount applied to the Mutual's total holdings of bonds, but this, too, was ordered added to the contingent reserve, the two items bringing the reserve up to $22,071,779. Under the law the contingent reserve must not amount to more than 5 per cent. of the reserve held against outstanding insurance. Under this clause the Mutual would be entitled to a maximum contingent reserve of $21,656,886, or $424,894 less than the amount to which the company's reserve was brought up by this addition to the stated value of its real estate holdings and its holdings of bonds.

It has not been found practicable to distribute this as a supplemental payment to the policy holders who shared in last year's dividend, and hence special permission has been granted by the department to the company to continue to hold this excess of reserve. At the end of the year this amount will be added to the dividends accruing from this year's operations provided some reappraisal either of real estate or securities does not again alter the contingent reserve.

The slight difference in the value of the company's bond holdings was due merely to different estimates of value by those who appraised the bonds for the company and for the department, some slight difference being almost unavoidable in two appraisals of such a great amount of securities. The lower value stated for the real estate holdings was used advisedly by the company, with the object of keeping the stated value of its real estate within conservative figures, a practice commonly followed by most institutions owning real estate the real value of which is never definitely determined except when a sale is made.

FULLER CHARGES DISMISSED.

But Clerk of Special Sessions Court Is Found Guilty of Neglect.

At a meeting of the Justices of Special Sessions, held last night in Chambers, all the charges against Acting Chief Clerk William M. Fuller, except one of neglect of duty in not correcting the irregularities in connection with the contingent fund, were formally dismissed.

The original charges were embodied in a report, following a long investigation, submitted to the Justices last April by Assistant District Attorney Whiteside. Mr. Fuller made a sweeping denial at the time, and later compiled a pamphlet dealing with the charges individually and in detail.

The Justices also voted for a chief clerk to succeed Charles W. Culkin, who resigned, following a charge of grand larceny made against him by the District Attorney at the time of the investigation. They were unable to reach an agreement, however, the votes standing 2 for William M. Fuller, 2 for Edward S. Connell of the Commissioner of Accounts' office, 1 for ex-State Senator Samuel J. Foley, and 1 for James Cunnion, Jr., a member of the Catholic Club.

SUES WASHINGTON LIFE.

S. H. Wolfe Declares the Contract with the Pittsburg Life Is in Fraud.

S. Herbert Wolfe, a consulting actuary, has brought suit against the Washington Life Insurance Company, of which he is a policy holder, to recover the reserve held against two of his policies, on the ground that the so-called contract of reinsurance between the Washington Life and the Pittsburg Life, dating from Dec. 30, 1908, was in fraud of policy holders and a breach of his policy contract. This is the first suit of this kind that has grown out of the Washington Life-Pittsburg Life affair, but should it prove successful and the reinsurance of the Washington in the Pittsburg company continue, it is not improbable that others of the same character will follow.

Mr. Wolfe's suit was brought early in April, but until a demurrer was decided this week nothing was heard of it publicly. The demurrer was argued some weeks ago before Justice Greenbaum, and in the decision that has just come down he holds that it is within the right of a policy holder to maintain a suit for breach of contract and seek damages to the extent of his injury in an instance where the company has issued to him a policy of insurance with a guarantee that it will maintain against it the required reserve. Justice Greenbaum says:

"It seems well settled that a contract of life insurance carries with it the implication that the insurance company will continue its business and keep on hand the funds required by law during the term of the policy, and that its failure to do so necessarily results in a breach of the contract."

Mr. Wolfe's suit is brought upon two policies, one for $2,000, taken out in 1899, on which the reserve is computed as $358, and one for $10,000, taken out in 1900, on which $3,080 reserve has accumulated. His wife is named as the beneficiary, but the policies have been assigned to him.

CENTRAL FORGOT ITS TAXES.

Lien on Road's Plot Sold—Astors Pay Up $2.52 Long Due.

The sales of liens on property on which back taxes are due was continued yesterday by the Department of Finance. Among the most important sales was a parcel assessed to the New York Central in Thirty-first Street, between Tenth and Eleventh Avenues. The claim of the city was for $28,817.74, running back to April 22, 1854. The lien was bought by H. A. Frey, representing the Realty Associates, at 11⅛ per cent.

It was impossibe to learn last night why the Central allowed this claim to go by default of payment, but it was declared at the Department of Finance that the matter had probably been overlooked.

The average rate at which the liens were sold yesterday was a bit over 7 per cent.

Mr. Frey also bought several liens on other valuable pieces of property. I. Jackson paid 12 per cent. for a claim of $8,127.51 on a parcel in Grand Street, between Thompson Street and West Broadway. A lien on a parcel in Twenty-seventh Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, amounting to $4,055.68, also brought 12 per cent.

Just before the opening of the sale five checks were received by Daniel Moynahan, Collector of Arrears, from Lewis B. Austin, representing the Astor estate. They represented payments of arrearages on five parcels of Astor property of astonishingly small amounts. Four were for back taxes of 10 cents, with 46 cents interest each, and one for arrearages of 5 cents, with 23 cents interest. Liens on the property would have been sold had the amounts not been paid.

M. J. CUMMINGS HEADS G. A. R.

Defeats Gen. Loud for Commander of New York Department.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., June 17.—The election of officers of the G. A. R., Department of New York, was held this afternoon in connection with the forty-third annual State Encampment. With three tickets in the field, Michael J. Cummings of Brooklyn was elected Department Commander by a plurality of one hundred over Gen. George B. Loud of New York. The vote of the three tickets was as follows:

Michael J. Cummings, 443; George B. Loud, 343; William A. Boyd, 37.

The election of Mr. Cummings carried with him the following subordinate officers:

Senior Vice Department Commander James M. Watson of Binghamton; Junior Vice Department Commander, Llewellyn C. Morgan of Syracuse; Council of Administration, H. F. Tarbox, C. J. Westcott, Lewis A. Jones, John M. Beickert, Charles McBean.

The three auxiliaries of the G. A. R.—the Ladies of the G. A. R., the Daughters of Veterans, and the Woman's Relief Corps—met independently to-day and elected the following officers:

Ladies of the G. A. R.—Department President, Mrs. Sarah J. Ehrman of Yonkers; Senior Vice President, Mrs. Christina Brand of Brooklyn; Junior Vice President, Miss Henrietta Winter of Lincoln; Treasurer, Miss Harper of Fulton; Chaplain, Mrs. Charlotte E. Crowell of Utica.

PARIS, June 17.—The Federation of French Merchants have lodged with the Ministers of the Interior, Finance, and Foreign Affairs a protest similar to that of the Committee of the Forges of France against the listing of Steel common stock on the Paris Bourse.

RUSSIAN SHIP FIRES ON BRITISH VESSEL

Shells Pierce Boiler of the Woodburn and Engineer Is Wounded in Leg.

DUE TO ANXIETY FOR CZAR

Steamer Was Approaching Pitkipas Bay, His Rendezvous with Kaiser—Monarchs Spend Hours In Conference.

HELSINGFORS, June 17.—The British steamer Woodburn, Capt. Robertson of Newcastle, was fired upon last night off Wirolahti, Island of Biorke, by a vessel of the Russian squadron for approaching too close to Pitkipas Bay, the rendezvous of Emperor Nicholas and Emperor William.

A blank charge was fired first, but this was followed a few seconds later by two shells. Portions of the shells penetrated the bulkheads and the boiler of the Woodburn. The engineer of the steamer was wounded in the leg, and was taken aboard the Russian cruiser Asia, where his wounds were dressed. Later he was taken to a hospital at Viborg.

After making repairs the Woodburn sailed to-night for her home port.

The incident shows the extreme nervousness felt for the safety of Emperor Nicholas, even at sea. Russian torpedo boats have been patroling Pitkipas Bay, and it was one of these vessels that fired on the British ship.

The German imperial yacht Hohenzollern, with Emperor William on board, joined the Russian squadron convoying Emperor Nicholas on board the imperial yacht Standart at 10 o'clock this morning. Emperor Nicholas immediately went on board the Hohenzollern and welcomed Emperor William. All the ships present were dressed and manned. Emperor William returned the visit immediately, remaining on board the Standart until about 5:30 P. M. Lunch was served at 1 o'clock and tea at 5.

The German Emperor's party included Herr von Schön, Secretary for Foreign Affairs; Count von Pourtales, the German Ambassador to Russia, and Lieut. Gen. von Plessen. The Russian Emperor and Empress were attended by Premier Stolypin and Foreign Minister Isvolsky.

The meeting of the monarchs was most cordial. Later Emperor Nicholas made costly presents to Gen. von Plessen and Count Zu Eulenburg, and conferred high orders on Herr von Schön and the other members of the suite.

The German Emperor gave a dinner this evening on board the Hohenzollern, his guests including the Russian Emperor and Empress and their respective suites.

LONDON, June 17.—Neither the British Foreign Office nor the Russian Embassy here has issued any statement regarding the firing upon the British steamer Woodburn by a Russian warship in the vicinity of Viborg.

The owners of the vessel, Whitfield & Co. of Newcastle, have received a telegram from Capt. Robertson, dated Frederikshamn, confirming the reports of the attack on his ship.

BRITISH NAVAL MANOEUVRES.

About 350 Ships to Take Part, Divided Into Three Fleets.

LONDON, June 17.—The mobilization of the British fleet for the annual manoeuvres was practically completed this morning, and something like 350 warships are now making their way to their respective stations. The manoeuvres will be secret, but the general scheme is understood to be a repetition of the plan of last year, which, however, resulted in a fiasco, as, owing to the fog, the opposing fleets never came into contact.

The forces this year are divided into red, white, and blue fleets. The red represents a German force assigned to a position on the east coast of Scotland. Its duty is to bring the white or North Sea fleet into action before the latter can effect a junction with the blue fleet, which is patrolling the west coast of Scotland.

A condition of the manoeuvres is that the white fleet can pass only through Pentland Firth, or southward by way of Dover Straits. Eighteen flag officers are engaged. Vice Admiral Sir William Henry May is in supreme command.

OFFERS A PLAYGROUND FREE.

Brooklyn Man Wants the City to Accept It—School Yards Open.

The Playground Commission appointed by Mayor McClellan held a meeting yesterday afternoon at the City Hall. President McGowan of the Aldermen, as Chairman of the commission, read a letter from S. R. Guggenheim, Chairman of the Committee on City Property Now Available for Playgrounds, stating that a large piece of ground in Brooklyn had been offered for use as a playground until wanted by the owner.

Egerton L. Winthrop, Gen. George W. Wingate, and Bartow S. Weeks were appointed a committee to determine whether or not the city could legally accept the offer.

A report was received from Superintendent of Schools Maxwell stating that the plan of opening school yards as playgrounds in June had been successful. The average attendance for the first four days was more than 1,000 a day.

TO BATHE BABY PROPERLY

You need: A portable tin or porcelain bathtub, a washcloth or a piece of flannel, a sponge, a cake of Ivory Soap, a bath thermometer and a couple of very soft towels.

The water should be soft and of a temperature of 95° in winter and from 85° to 90° in summer.

Put baby in the bath. Moisten the washcloth and apply soap, first to the face and neck, then to the arms, next to the body, and last, to the legs and feet. Fill the sponge with water from the tub and squeeze its contents over the face, arms, body and legs, repeating this until all dirt and soap are removed. Dry by "patting"—not rubbing—with the towels. The best hour for baby's bath is ten in the morning, or in the evening, just before he is given his last bottle.

There is no "free" (uncombined) alkali in Ivory Soap. That is why it will not injure the finest fabric or the most delicate skin.

Ideal Vacation Trips

The Ideal Vacation involves a complete change of scene and living conditions, both of which will be obtained by making a trip to any of the following places:

Colorado The greatest summer resort state in the country, offers the greatest variety of outdoor activity and recreation in a dry, invigorating climate, amid inspiring mountain scenery. The Burlington Route is the shortest line, and with its five splendid daily trains, three of them electric-lighted one-night-on-the-road trains, offers the best service thereto.

Yellowstone Park the National Playground, containing the greatest collection of Nature's wonders, and where game animals are constantly seen in their native wild state, is unique. Through train service to Gardiner, the Official or Northern entrance to the Park, from Chicago and St. Louis, via the Burlington—the only route with such through train service.

Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition unique among expositions and the most beautiful and interesting ever held, where meet the Occident and Orient, the South Seas and Alaska. A trip to the Exposition offers great educational advantages and enables one to see at first hand the marvelous recent development of the great Northwest with its unlimited opportunities for investment in fruit farm, ranch or city.

The Burlington runs through trains to Seattle and Tacoma twice daily from Chicago and St. Louis, and is the only line offering through service to the Exposition City from either of these points.

I would like to tell you about the unusually low cost of any of these trips and send you Burlington Route folders on Colorado, the Yellowstone or the Exposition; they are the best published, are beautifully printed, profusely illustrated and contain the pertinent, useful information that the vacationist or tourist finds most helpful—also splendid maps of the country covered in each.

There are one hundred beach robes, made of fancy cheviots, at $1.95 instead of $2.95.

And one hundred pairs of slippers to match

At 45c instead of 75c

The clear-up of a maker's stock. In many of the coast towns laws have been passed forbidding men or women to walk from their cottages to the beach without a beach robe. So that these have an unusual value this year.

Fabric That Doesn't Wear

There is a very wide difference in silks, as you know.

We import the raw silk and make our own fabric to secure our durable weave.

Thus we can put a guarantee in each pair, and know that the gloves will fulfill it.

Yet every silk glove which lasts half as long costs the full Kayser price.

"The Kayser"

Patent Finger-Tipped Silk Gloves

Kaysers are the final result of 25 years of experience.

Since matrons were girls, the Kaysers have been the standard silk gloves of the world.

Every Kayser goes through 50 operations to secure its perfection in finish and fit.

Each finger has our patent tip.

You can get these gloves at the price of the poorest if you look for "Kayser" in the hem.

YANKS MISS GOLDEN NINTH INNING CHANCE

Hemphill Triples, but Three Men Fail to Bring Him in with Tieing Tally.

CLEVELAND WINS, 3 TO 2

"Naps" Make All Their Points Off Hughes in First Round, but Warhop Holds Them—Berger Strong.

WANTED—Experienced hands on pinch hits, sacrifice flies, and squeeze plays. Must be strong, alert, and willing to work. Short hours and long pay. Union shop. Steady jobs for good men. Apply at once to G. Tweedy Stallings, Broadway and 168th Street, side door.

That advertisement may not be in the classified columns this morning, but it ought to be. It might help Manager Stallings to win games. Pinch hitters are needed sorely on the hilltop, and squeeze-play specialists would be almost as useful. In the last ten days or so the Yankees have lost more near-victories than any other team in either League. Again and again the sad story has been—beaten by one run. It happened once more yesterday afternoon. Cleveland's stall-fed chest swellers, heavy with beef and bowed with the weight of years, counted thrice in the can opener against the comparatively youthful Yanks, and won by a score of 3 to 2. And that in spite of the excellent opportunities opening to the locals, who in the third started with a two-bagger, in the seventh had men on second and first, with one out; in the fourth had a runner on third and another on second, with one gone, and in the ninth had a fairly fast goer on third, with none down. In any of those crises ordinarily good swatting would have meant a run, but there wasn't a bingle in the bat bag.

Ninth inning tie, at the very least, inevitable, you'd say. Hemphill, batting for Knight in the getaway, led off with a shrieking triple to the green gate that almost stood Goode on his head and made Berger strike a Napoleonic attitude and glare from the box at the inoffensive outfielder. A good, clean, square three-bagger. And what of Kleinow and Cree and Dammitt? Oh!, ask the man! There was a glimmer of excuse for Honest Jack, since Turner, though falling, had the luck to hold his soil-scorcher and flip it to first. But Birdie, ashing for Warhop, saw ghosts, hop pictures, pink hippopotami—anything, everything save the sphere—and fanned like a freshman, while Dem sent a star-seeker to right centre that was shortcake for Hinchman in a moderately clever running catch.

Yet there was class to the contest. Engle, in the middle inning, made a gorgeous hotfoot haul of Lajoie's near-leaguer—a capture so unexpected that Bradley, starting from second, was half way between third and the rubber before he guessed it was made, and couldn't begin to get back to the far turn in time to prevent a double play to Laporte. There was a man on first as well when Larry cracked out that seeming safety, and it looked liked sure chalking, but the duplex coup retired the side.

The bulk of the classiness was contributed by Warhop, who, after Hughes was roughhoused by seven-ninths of the visiting team in the breakaway, held the Naps to four hits in eight innings, only two of which were bunched, and those harmlessly. Warhop placed six strike-outs to his credit, three of them at Hinchman's expense in galling sequence. He pulled himself out of a hole by his bootstraps in the fourth, when singles by Ball and Bemis followed Hinchman's first fan, for he fooled Lord into a force hit, and then, when Lord stole second, the pitcher with the provocative patronymic struck out Bullfrog Berger. Warnop hit two batsmen, but walked only one, and at all times he was master of the Blues.

But that first round was a heart breaker. Goode connected with Hughes's loose-jointed delivery right off the reel, crashing to left centre for three cushions. He couldn't count on Bradley's out at first, but he did on Turner's stab through short for a sack. Lajoie sacrificed downily, and Terrible Terry came in on Hinchman's double to Engleburg. Hinch registering on Ball's two-timer in the same territory. Then Dammitt ended the agony by getting under Bemis's horizon hunter, but there were three runs on the right board but in the wrong row, and those were all Cleveland needed.

New York's players dropped their Rip Van Winkle stickwork in the fourth, but too late and too brief. Engle, one down, blistered Bradley for a bag, the infielder doing well to prevent a two-bagger. Chase shot a hot one over third, and Claudius recorded from the midway when Laporte doubled down the same tunnel. Then Berger's scowl stretched to his chin, and with swift downshoots mixed with wide ones he fanned Knight and Kleinow.

The Yanks' second tally was due in part to a battery error. Engle once more hurled himself into the breach, this time with a two-sacker, but there was a man out, and Chase skied to Hinchman. A passed ball, however, put Claude on third, and he dusted home on Laporte's dexter drive, after which Stallings's long short stop went out weakly, and the Toppers' bolt was shot. The score:

BETWEEN THE INNINGS.

Cover the margin, you Yanks!

Oh, oh, for a punch in a pinch!

A Knight for a day is long enough.

"What says little Birdie?" "Strike—you're out," said Silk.

Warhop surely fooled 'em with those underhand shoots from the hip.

Berger's swardward slant and right and left hooks had the Toppers guessing, too.

Hughes, backing up Elberfeld, saved Knight from an error for a wild throw in relaying from Engle on Goode's triple.

Berger's left funnybone must have smarted when a Warhop break hit it in the second. But Bradley didn't make half as big a fuss over his wrap on the wrist in the fifth.

Keeler fell trying for Ball's teaguer in the fourth, losing the ball. Chase whipped it up, but Laporte was too slow in covering first for a hurl from Hal. Had Frank been alive, the runner probably would have been caught between first and second.

Ball twisted his ankle whirling in the alley for a dash back to first on that play, and the game was suspended so sympathy might be ladled out to him by a lay clinic. Painless Payne answered the call for a doctor, and fixed Larry's midfielder up in short order.

The Rules Committee ought to provide for batting errors to be charged against cudgel clutchers who make hopeless swings at absurdly wide ones, especially in pinches. Knight was that sort of an offender. He also went to sleep on his near-hit in the sixth.

George Stovall, his finger swathed daintily in nainsook, with Hamburg edging, yesterday took a train for the Forest City, where he will have a nice, long loaf. The finger was hurt in Wednesday's game, and Manager Lajoie is convinced his first baseman will have to stay in drydock several days.

This may seem like a tangle, but it isn't—

It simply illustrates the variety of clothing which a business like ours requires, and which a small business cannot afford.

Sizes 30 to 32 chest are boys' sizes, long trouser suits for boys of 14 to 16 years. All are now at revised prices, $12 to $16.

Sizes 32 to 35 chest are youths' sizes. Three distinct models here in summer suits, $16 to $28.

Sizes 34 to 42 chest are young men's sizes—suits of snappier, sprucer cut than older men desire, $20 to $32.

Sizes 34 to 54 are men's sizes—the regular suits which most men want to wear. $18 to $42.

Those who have used them say there's no underwear comfort like the comfort of union suits.

We have them in half a dozen fabrics of Summer weight, including Schlichten Ramie (pure linen).

Not expensive either, from $1 to $6.

No shortage of russet low shoes here.
$4 to $6.

Panamas, perennially popular.
$5 to $15.

Brooklyn Beaten by Cubs in a Listless Game at Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 17.—The locals won a dull and listless game to-day, enlivened only by Brooklyn's bunching of two two-base hits. Poor base-running on both sides lost chances for scoring, and two of the visitors' errors helped Chicago to a pair of runs. Score:

Devon Beats Rumson in Polo.

PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—In the semi-final game for the Woodcrest Cup to-day at Bala, the Devon polo team defeated the Rumson team of Seabright by the score of 7½ to 6¾. The teams and handicaps were:

Devon—E. L. Stokes, 1; E. M. Leach, 0; F. S. Conover, 3; W. H. Stewart, 1.
Rumson—W. S. Jones, 2; Walter McClure, 2; W. S. Borden, 3; C. H. Sabin, 1.

YACHTS DISABLED IN N. Y. Y. C. REGATTA

Adventuress and Winsome Break Their Topmasts in a Stiff Breeze on the Sound.

ISTALENA'S GRAND VICTORY

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Sailing Aurora, Loses Race by One Minute and a Half—"30s" Furnish Excitement.

Seldom has the New York Yacht Club been favored with a grander racing day for its annual club regattas than was the case yesterday, when the first club event of the year, for the Spring cups, was sailed over the Glen Cove courses. Sixteen boats were entered in six classes. The features from a racing standpoint were the grand victory of George M. Pynchon's Istalena by one minute and a half over Cornelius Vanderbilt's Aurora in a twenty-eight-and-a-quarter-mile race and the splendid sailing of the Altair by her owner Cord Meyer over the the Hanan brothers' Aspirant.

Two of the big boats met with accidents, both breaking their topmasts on the second leg of the course, while on a broad reach, with the wind blowing over 15 knots an hour, C. C. Rumrill's new Herreshoff's sloop Adventuress was the first to meet disaster, the topmast snapping off after covering about five miles. A few minutes later, when about three miles beyond the first mark, Henry F. Lippitt's Winsome had the same misfortune. The latter, for a time, appeared to be in distress, and Commodore Arthur Curtiss James's flagship Aloha, which was following the yachts, ran over to render aid, but the sailors were already aloft in the rigging, pulling in the flapping sail, and Mr. Lippitt sailed his disabled boat to her moorings.

The accident to the Adventuress was particularly regrettable, as it was her first appearance in a club regatta, the boat having only lately come to this port of the Sound from Rhode Island. Mr. Rumrill was on board and he was assisted at the wheel by R. W. Emmons, 3d, whose Avenger was a prominent competitor last year. The trim, racy appearance of the Adventuress evoked genuine enthusiasm among the members of the Regatta Committee and the guests on board the Commodore's flagship, including Col Appleton, Charles Lane Poor, Prof. Hallock, and James A. Sparkman. As the Adventuress had no competitor in her regular class she was racing on time allowance against the crack Boston sloop Dorello, allowing the latter eight seconds less than ten minutes, and at the time of the accident the two boats were making a fine race.

There were two courses. The two schooners, Eclipse and Miladi, and the fifty-seven footers going over the 28¼-mile course, the outer mark being off Long Neck Point, while all the other boats sailed the shorter course of 19¼ miles, the outer mark being off Woolsey's reef.

Cornelius Vanderbilt sailed his 57-footer Aurora, and with him was W. Butler Duncan, Jr. Mrs. E. F. Randolph was also a passenger. The Istalena got slightly the better of it at the start and broke out her spinnaker to port, while Aurora and Winsome broke out their spinnakers to starboard. Istalena gybed around the first mark a shade in the lead, but Winsome had overhauled Aurora, and when her topmast broke she was the second boat. Istalena rounded the outer mark 28 seconds ahead of Aurora, going around at 1:51:50 to 1:52:18 for Aurora. They split two short tacks on turning, but worked around to the long port tack home and made a glorious finish, Istalena gaining on the long beat slightly over a minute. Mr. Pynchon sailed his boat, and he was heartily congratulated by the committee for making one of the best races in the 57-foot class ever seen on the Sound.

The tug Edmund Moran was the committee boat, and the entire Regatta Committee was on board, including H. De B. Parsons, Ernest E. Lorillard, and Walter C. Kerr. The summaries:

Schooners—28¼ Miles.—Won by Eclipse, L. J. Callanan, corrected time, 3:04:09; Miladi, George W. Scott, 3:08:12.
Sloops—One-Design—28¼ Miles.—Won by Istalena, George M. Pynchon, elapsed time, 3:11:07; Aurora, C. Vanderbilt, 3:12:37; Winsome, H. F. Lippitt, disabled.
Handicap Class—19¼ Miles.—Won by Polaris, L. L. Allbuger, 2:56:56.
Sloops—19¼ Miles.—Won by Altair, Cord Meyer, corrected time, 2:16:45; Aspirant, H. W. and A. G. Hanan, 2:27:15.

CASTLE ROCK, Wyoming, (Via Ogden, Utah, June 17.)—After leaving Wahsatch, Wyoming, at 8:18 o'clock last night and when about one mile west of that point I fell and broke a bottle which contained liquid refreshments. The broken glass penetrated my clothing and cut me badly just above the stomach. I was very much frightened and returned to Wahsatch, where I was met by T.

THE COMMITTEE AND ITS WORK.

It is assumed that the Committee of One Hundred named at Cooper Union Wednesday evening represents directly the voting power of the people, the rank and file of the voters. It is visibly representative of the real estate interests. There are in its membership representative men of organized labor, social workers, and a few Socialists.

Both from the make-up of the Committee and from the declaration of principles it is evident that the One Hundred favor the building of additional subways with public money so far as "the Constitutional debt limit and the financial safety of the city" will permit. The real estate interests naturally desire new subways. Perhaps they have less solicitude than some other interests about the consequences of municipal construction. The Constitutional amendment exempting subway bonds and a certain other class of bonds from the debt limitation will necessarily be an issue in the municipal election this Fall. In that lies the possibility of a complication, of a conflict of interests among those who sincerely desire good Government for the city. Men representing the larger business interests and financial institutions look with apprehension upon the proposal to provide for the expenditure of new millions through debt limit exemption. The advocates of city-built subways will naturally favor the amendment. It was stated at the meeting that the organizers appealed in vain to a considerable number of representative men to become members of the Committee, and their overtures were declined. It would be interesting to know the names of those who put away the honor, since in its way that might be almost as illuminating as the actual list published.

The One Hundred begin their work under conditions that will permit them to indulge in no illusions as to its difficulty. To begin with, it was rather disheartening that a matter of this moment interested the community so little that an audience of hardly more than 300 assembled in Cooper Union to hear the names of the Committee and the declaration of principles read. There is an explanation, however. If we were trying to turn out a corrupt and unworthy Tammany Administration and elect a reform Mayor, it would be different. The public interest would be aroused, public resentment would be sharpened by recent memory and current knowledge of culpable acts of misgovernment. That is not the case. Although Mayor McCLELLAN was elected as a Tammany nominee he has not been on friendly terms with the organization, and his Administration has not been at all of the kind we have had at the hands of Tammany Mayors in the past. The McClellan Administration is chargeable with no faults that will provoke "popular uprising." It is against a system of Government, it is to provide defenses against future peril, that the reform movement was undertaken.

The real issue, the question that involves most of the other questions in the minds of the people, is that of the new City Charter. We regret to see that the Cooper Union meeting missed the opportunity to emphasize the importance of Charter revision. The best candidate it could name would, as Mayor, be baffled by the defective laws under which he would have to work. The faults of the Charter would make it impossible for him, as they have made it impossible for Mayor McCLELLAN, to fix responsibility, to assert and enforce control over departments and expenditures, and to prevent needless waste. Tammany will not urge the adoption of the Revised Charter, the Republicans will certainly oppose it, if we may assume that Mr. WOODRUFF represents their views. If the One Hundred show that they care nothing about the Charter, the Joint Committee sent down here by Mr. WHITE and Mr. WADSWORTH will find it very easy to send that instrument to its doom. It is astonishing, of course, but not at all unexampled, that the community should be so indifferent to a question of vital interest.

Three months will elapse before the Committee will be called upon to name a candidate. There is ample time for deliberation. A good part of that time will be profitably employed, we should say, in attentively considering means to elect the candidate; it is not enough merely to nominate him. The appeal of the declaration of principles to the voters will not elect him, either—far from it. Something more vital and compelling than the plausible and proper, but somewhat familiar, policies outlined in that declaration must be put before the people if the movement of which the One Hundred are in charge is to prosper.

BREATHITT COUNTY TO GO.

The Evening Gazette of Lexington, Ky., proposes to abolish bloody feuds in that State, to restore Kentucky's good name, and establish brotherly affection and forbearance among the inhabitants by wiping Breathitt County off the map. This does not mean, of course, the extinction of the physical features of the county or the annihilation of its inhabitants. The obliteration will affect purely imaginary boundaries and purely political conditions. It is easy to see that it might be very effective.

Breathitt County adjoins Wolfe, Lee, Owsley, Perry, Knott, and Magoffin Counties. By dividing it into six parts and giving one to each of these counties the relative political importance of the Breathitt folks would be nullified, the county town of Jackson would lose its distinction, unsympathetic Sheriffs and other county officers having no reverence for long-standing feuds would dominate the politically scattered Breathitters, and Breathitt would pass into history as a mere word, signifying bloody lawlessness.

A heroic remedy, but the malady that affects the whole State needs such treatment. The Evening Gazette fancies Kentucky could spare forty or fifty counties if necessary. A glance at her map indicates that she would still have plenty. With Breathitt abolished, the feud spirit might not altogether vanish from the spot on the map across which the name has been printed. But there would be no local politics to give it life. The Breathitters would not be county officers, and split up among other counties in the proportion of one to six they would soon, through wholesome humiliation, find common sense.

THE TRACTION OUTLOOK.

Amid the resounding clamor of those who wish to put public money into the traction morass arises the wail of those who wish in vain to get private money out of it. Addressing the Chamber of Commerce a few months ago against the proposition to depreciate the city's credit by removing the limit which prevents the city from building rapid transit roads, Mr. JACOB SCHIFF asked, unanswerably: "Who thought only as far back as five years ago that the traction bonds of the surface railroads of the City of New York would not be good?" Now come those with the best right to know to tell not only why those bonds are not good, but why they never can be good under conditions imposed by laws which produce results the reverse of those intended.

Reference is made to the report of the committee of bondholders of the Metropolitan Street Railway, now in foreclosure. The conclusion is that the committee reluctantly faces the possible necessity of liquidating the property, taking possession and selling out for whatever it will bring. That would mean the disorganization of the system, and the disappearance of the last vestige of the transfer system. The loss to the bondholders would be grievous, and the loss to the company's passengers would be greater. Cumulative losses would be endured by those who own real estate, the value of which would be depreciated. Much inconvenience would result to renters of real estate who would have to live where their riding could be done upon one fare.

The committee sets forth that the taxing officers claim between 35 and 40 per cent. of net earnings. As a large part of these taxes has not been paid it cannot be claimed that they caused bankruptcy, but the prospective necessity of payment of such an amount before interest is paid is a conclusive factor in estimating the values remaining after such payments. This is simple confiscation in cases in which payment is exacted, and is unendurable competition in cases in which payment is escaped. If the city foregoes taxes either upon its own subways, or in aid of privately owned subways, taxpaying routes compete under conditions necessitating bankruptcy.

Even more important is the compulsory transfer system. Even the saving of the total given [illegible]y in transfers would not have made the system solvent in its waterlogged condition, but it would make it solvent regarding interest payments. The bondholders might feel it worth while to operate the system if they could collect a fare for each passenger, or even perhaps if they were allowed to issue transfers in a manner to evade cheating by passengers, rivaling what might be called robbery by the Legislature, as mentioned above. But the law admits no exceptions. Passengers have a right to ride to the end of the route, and to claim transfers over all roads in any transit system.

The result is that the companies receive an average of 3 cents instead of 5 cents per passenger. While their selling price is thus reduced, their buying prices, the cost of operation, have been rising in the manner too familiar to all. The mere fact that the operating concern is a street railway company does not exempt it from the necessity of keeping a credit balance to profit and loss. In the committee's words that "a careful analysis of the earning power of the properties has developed that under existing conditions the income applicable thereto is not sufficient to pay any fixed return on either the 5 per cent. or the 4 per cent. bonds of the company."

The question of capitalization is excluded. Not a cent is allowed in the committee's calculations for share capital, or for leases. The roads cannot earn interest. The committee states facts rather than explains them. The explanation is that the companies were thought to be making too much money, and it was resolved deliberately to make them less profitable in the interest of their passengers. The transfer system is perhaps workable upon some commercial system. It is not workable upon a system which causes cash receipts to decrease as transfers increase. The roads must earn their living before they can give transfers, and instead of the passengers receiving their favors by enacted law they lose them by economic law. Recriminations are useless. The question is not who is to blame, but what is to be done about it? The committee passes it up to the bondholders, they pass it along to those who would profit if the system were kept together, and all together are likely to pass it up to the next Legislature. The beginning of better things for all is the repeal of well meant but injurious legislation.

VOTES FOR WOMEN, HATE FOR MEN

The truth is out at last, and the embattled hosts of anti-suffrage tremble in their fastnesses. The cause of woman suffrage has long needed a leader and a formula. Everybody saw that. The suffragists' declarations of principles have been too diffuse, quite unconvincing, and presented really no cause of action—at least, no cause of such "actions" as those with which the sisterhood in London have been conspicuously chargeable. Now we have a concise and astonishingly frank avowal of what the suffragists are driving at. The new platform has been put forth by Mrs. O. H. P. BELMONT, a recent but zealous convert to the cause. The Evening World of June 14 reports that lady to have made these remarks:

> Oh! do you think women care for men? I think that if most women over 18 told the truth they would say that they hate men. But, of course, under the present unjust and unequal conditions they conceal their feelings. How many wives would dare to tell their husbands what they really think of them? How long would the husbands live with them if they did?

Men have long recognized the state of affairs here confessed to by Mrs. BELMONT. The bread-and-butter misses are approachable enough, but as they near the age of 20 there comes a change. It is universal experience that "women over 18" shun the society of men, and feel for them a positive repugnance but imperfectly dissembled. Men have been unable to account for it. Mrs. BELMONT's statement does not explain, it merely sets forth the fact, and that, Heaven knows, is enough. From this datum the procedure recommended by Mrs. BELMONT is perfectly logical. She would have "every woman take an oath not to marry until woman suffrage is granted." This is Aristophanic, it must be terrifying to the opposition, and, of course, if they only stick to it it will be effective.

We feel sure that the seasoned laborers for the cause of woman suffrage, those who have for years painfully striven in the gaining of point after point, will rejoice at the coming of this new leader, so full of resource, so courageous, so tactful. We have thought it of doubtful advantage that fashion and the long purse should ally themselves with the suffrage cause. Fashion is fickle, and proverbially given to the choice of new toys after it is tired of the old ones. But the cause gains here constructive leadership and strategic skill. Nothing, we suppose, could advance it so much. Nothing could so fill with joy the hearts of its sincere advocates as the new convert's proclamation of the doctrine of hate to men as the underlying principle of the demand for votes for women. Victory is in sight.

TO ASPIRING YOUNG MEN.

Recent comments on the chances of a career in the Diplomatic and Consular Service for aspiring, well-educated young men, and on the demand for more cadets at the United States Military Academy, have brought to THE TIMES letters of inquiry from young men who would like to enter on a diplomatic, consular, or military career. Appointments to West Point are still made by the Senators and Representatives in Congress, and in the case of the Consular Service and minor diplomatic appointments, made by the Executive, a good education is necessary, which must be supplemented by a year or two of training in some school of commerce where the applicant may prepare himself for the State Department's examination, which he must pass before he can have his name placed on the list from which assignments are made to the small places. In the case of the Diplomatic Service, a new course of study, for men who have received appointments, in international law and other important subjects, has lately been instituted at the State Department. A sound knowledge of at least two modern languages besides English, one of them preferably French, is essential to appointment in either service, and a mastery of French, German, Italian, and Spanish would be most helpful. Naturally a young man looking to such a career needs an income to support himself while he is preparing for it.

The reason the quota of the Military Academy at West Point is not full is that so many of the boys appointed fail to pass the preliminary examination and so many more fail of graduation. Each United States Senator, each Representative in Congress, each Territory, the District of Columbia, Porto Rico, Alaska, and Hawaii have one appointment yearly to the Academy. Forty appointments at large are made by the President. Some of the members of Congress arrange for competitive examinations in their districts, open to boys and young men of the prescribed age, 17 to 22, from which one candidate for admission to West Point is selected. Each member may also nominate two alternates who are entitled to examination at the Academy. The physical examination is thorough, of course, for the army wants no weaklings, and the applicant must make a good account of himself in grammar, composition, English literature, algebra through quadratic equations, plane geometry, descriptive and physical geography, and the history of his own country. This seems reasonably easy for a bright youth, with all the facilities for free education American youths enjoy. Yet one-fourth of the applicants fail to pass, and one-half of the remainder generally disappear from the Academy's roster long before the four years' course is finished. Discipline is strict at West Point, and doubtless a new cadet has strongly enforced upon him a sense of the inequalities of life. It is wholesome training for the right sort of men. A cadet is paid $709.50 yearly, and, with economy, can live on it.

Probably many bright, willing youngsters who would like to go to West Point, and might make a good record there, are denied the chance, while purely political appointments cause the many failures and the scarcity of cadets. But all Senators and Representatives have appointments to make; it is their fault, chiefly, if the Academy lacks pupils, and probably an energetic, determined youth who kept his name and ambition persistently in the mind of the Representative of his district would not fail of a chance to get as far as the preliminary examination.

"Caught again!" exultingly cries our neighbor The Outlook by way of headline to its summary of the proceedings which resulted in the decision of the Sugar Trust to give up $2,000,000 as the easiest way out of a bad scrape. Nowhere in this otherwise able and competent summary of the case, however, do we find any allusion to the fact that Receiver EARLE repeatedly appealed to the Attorney General of the Roosevelt Administration to begin criminal proceedings against the Trust on the evidence he was prepared to furnish in abundance. However, as we continue our perusal of the current number of The Outlook, we come upon an article by its distinguished editorial contributor, Mr. THEODORE ROOSEVELT, entitled "The Thraldom of Names," in which we find this observation:

> No movement ever has done or ever will do good in this country where assault is made, not upon evil wherever found, but simply upon evil as it happens to be found in a particular case.

In truth, somebody has been "caught again."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A List Hard Indeed to Understand.

It is easy to foresee a very whirlwind of adverse criticism as the welcome which will greet the partial announcement of the books warranted by Dr. ELIOT to supply the full material for a liberal education. The critics, however, before finding either indignant or derisive fault with his selection, had better agree among themselves on a definition of the extremely vague phrase upon which his justification or their condemnation depends, and the time it will require for them to unite on what "a liberal education" means and ought to mean—not necessarily the same things, by any means—will at least give him a long period of comparative peace.

With all our charity, we cannot deny that the list, as presented, seems to us most mysteriously made up. That merely means, probably, that it does not contain the books we expected to find in it and does contain many in which we can find no competency to serve the desired end—or any other end, for that matter, except that of amusing the idle hours of a man interested in the curiosities of literature and the monuments of literary progress. Certainly the majority of these books are dead and have no relation, not historic, with modern conditions, necessities, or purposes. Any liberally educated man will have read some, perhaps most, of them, but his intellectual debt to none of them is large enough to be measured.

As for any implication that the man who hasn't read this, that, or the other book on the list, or even any of them, lacks a liberal education, nothing could be more amusing. Take, for instance, "The Journal of John Woolman." Are they illiterate or uncultured who never heard of the tailor-preacher and who couldn't be hired to read his magnum opus, which bears the graceful title "Considerations on Pure Wisdom and Human Policy, on Labor, on Schools, and on the Right Use of the Lord's Outward Gifts"? And why was "The Changeling" chosen from MIDDLETON'S plays, instead of "The Witch," which is just a little cleaner and does have a certain relation to a subject of current discussion? Grave would be the disillusionments in store for him who ventured nowadays to talk evolution with no other instruction in it than he could get from "The Origin of Species," and we can't for the life of us see how anybody who has read only these twenty-five books is going to read "Canterbury Tales" at all. We wouldn't ourselves have imposed upon a hated enemy the dreadful task of reading "The Compleat Angler," nor upon a friend that of wading all through the deep waters of MILTON. The truth is that Dr. ELIOT has attempted the impossible and that the books he advises are mostly of the sort "without which no gentleman's library is complete," and at the same time of the sort which most gentlemen will let severely alone unless they happen to be literary specialists—in which case the probabilities are that they will not be liberally but specially educated.

Promotion Proved His Ruin.

Again it is the model bank teller who has gone wrong—the man who stuck close to his desk and did his work with such tireless industry and unvarying accuracy that nobody had any excuse for examining his accounts, and the trust of his employers in him was limitless.

ENDEMANN'S case is familiar in every detail except one—the manner in which his defalcation came to light. Apparently his manipulation of the accounts could have gone on indefinitely had he not displayed so many of the superficial banking virtues that what was supposed to be the well-earned reward of a managership in a newly-established branch was forced upon him. With that his ingeniously constructed and laboriously maintained edifice of fraud came tumbling down, and the books that had seemed to be so beautifully kept, at the first glance of other eyes than his, convicted him of a long series of thefts.

The lessons of the episode are so obvious as to need no recapitulation, and yet the chances are that they will have little effect. In the future no more than in the past will the man who gets to work early and stays at work late be the object of a special suspicion on that account, and even from the defaulter's own standpoint there would be no added safety in an occasional display of the natural human liking for a holiday. He simply cannot refuse promotion when it is offered to him. His only dependence is on—just the traits to which ENDEMANN owed his long immunity from detection.

Merchants and Soldiers.

Sir EDWARD MOSS, on his way home to England from the Far East, repeats the familiar statement that as business men the Chinese are thoroughly trustworthy, while the Japanese are so tricky that dealings with them are unsatisfactory and unprofitable. This comparison of the two races has been made so often that it can be taken as having at least a foundation in fact, and yet, of the two, the Japanese are undoubtedly the nearer to our sympathies and comprehension, the readier to accept what is called civilization, and the likelier both to teach and to imitate the Occidental world.

The apparent lack by the Japanese of commercial honesty has been well explained by the circumstance that until recently their trading class was a low and despised one, while the fighting man was highly honored and naturally developed the virtues that are as much the effect as the cause of general respect. In China the conditions were reversed, the merchant being there the noble and the soldier the pariah. Both countries are readjusting their social standards. Soon the Chinese soldier will learn that it is shameful to run away from the enemy, and the Japanese merchant that it does not pay to break contracts.

Meanwhile we might remember that it is not so long ago that Occidental notions as to the relative merits of war and commerce were more like those of the Japanese than like those of the Chinese. Indeed, "a nation of shopkeepers" is still a term of reproach in Europe, and we do not ascribe "the tradesman's instinct" to a man when we want to be kind.

THE NURSE'S DISCOVERY.

Doctors Indignantly Resent Intimation That They Would Suppress It.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter in this morning's TIMES, entitled "A Question for Doctors," a truly astounding example of unsound reasoning and ignorance or misrepresentation of simple, common knowledge, should not go unanswered. In the face of what the medical profession has done and is doing in smallpox, diphtheria, cerebro-spinal meningitis, rabies, tetanus, cretinism, and the extensive field of asceptic surgery, how can any sensible individual who desires to play the role of a benefactor to humanity make such a groundless accusation as the following:

> The doctors naturally argue that it would not profit them to reduce a six weeks' case to one of three days. Humanity would be immeasurably benefited by the elimination of typhoid fever, but the revenue of every doctor would be seriously impaired. Every Board of Health is controlled by physicians, and the head of such a board will generally say to you frankly, "I do not desire to do anything to harm the medical profession."

The very fact that the reputable part of the profession will not tamper with proprietary remedies(nor for that matter will the enlightened public) and that no truly great medical discoverey ever has nor ever can be turned into a source of private profit and gain, show, if they show anything at all, that the charge is false and the conclusions erroneous.

If the nurse's discovery is what your correspondent claims for it, there is but one course open, and that is to make it public. There is not a physician who would dare refuse to use it any more than one would dare treat a case of diphtheria without antitoxin, although by so doing the case is changed from a serious, long-drawn-out malady to a short, simple, almost trivial affection. Yes, let the discoverer make known her discovery, contenting herself, if need be, with the glory of it, and the honor of having her name associated with those of Jenner, Harvey, Lister, Koch, Ehrlich, Behring, Kitasato, Roentgen, Pasteur, Flexner, and Metchnikoff, company to be more proud of than that of Kings, Queens, and multimillionaires. LOUIS H. SCHWARTZ, M. D.

New York, June 16, 1909.

Desires Proof of Medicine's Efficacy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The quotation of "L." regarding the opinion of one or two doctors merely connotes a reasonable conservatism on their part. We have been "fooled" too often by alleged "discoveries" of remedies for this or that disease—yet give us the proof of a positive efficiency in extract, serum, antitoxin, &c., from whatever source derived, we will welcome it, and use it when indicated. Personally, I hope that "L.'s" statement regarding the virtues of this typhoid discovery is well founded, and that the lady discoverer will secure the recognition she deserves, if her remedy be shown to possess a positive efficiency. Might Win Nobel Prize.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If the trained nurse of whom "L." writes in to-day's issue of THE TIMES has found a remedy for typhoid fever, I suggest that she communicate the nature of the remedy to the Surgeon General of the United States Army and also to the house physicians of the leading hospitals in Boston, Baltimore, Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, and Washington, D. C. Let her also offer to have the remedy tried on herself. I think there is no doubt that her cure would be speedily adopted, if found to be effective. As to compensation, she would probably receive the Nobel prize.

HUMANITARIAN.

An Incredulous Doctor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

What a pity you did not get the letter from "L.," relative to the wonderful specific for typhoid infection, which appears in your columns this morning a few days earlier! It is such a fit companion to the mushroom tale that you would undoubtedly have linked them in yesterday's editorial on hot weather crops.

The temperature is rising!

EXCHANGE BALKS AT REFORM.

Special Committe Tells Commission Its Proposals Are Impracticable.

No official recognition of the report of the Wall Street Investigating Commission was taken yesterday by the Stock Exchange authorities. The Governors held no meeting, and for the time being, at least, it was said the Stock Exchange would not say what action if any it would take regarding the suggestions for reform made by the Hughes Commission.

An official of the Exchange said that the Exchange rested on the position it took in the replies submitted to the questions propounded to the special committee appointed by the Governors to appear before the commission. What those answers were the officers of the Exchange would not say.

From another quarter THE TIMES has obtained the questions submitted to the Governors through their special committee, and the answers which they made to the commission. From the replies it appears that the Stock Exchange is opposed to the adoption of most of the suggestions made by the Hughes Commission.

The attitude of the Exchange toward the proposed changes is indicated by the replies made to questions covering suggestions embodied in the final report of the commission to Gov. Hughes. Among these suggestions are that the Exchange establish a system of periodical examinations of the books and accounts of its members, and that margins of at least 20 per cent. be exacted by brokers on margin accounts. This question was put by the commission:

> Would not a system of confidential general inspection of accounts as a regular function of the Exchange tend to prevent or limit the disastrous effects of failures?

The Stock Exchange's reply in part was:

> The establishment of a fixed rule for the confidential general inspection of accounts of books belonging to members of the Stock Exchange would strongly partake of an inquisitorial nature, and would go far toward depriving the individual of his rights.
>
> It would have to be made universal, and extend from the smallest to the most important firms or individuals connected with the Exchange.
>
> It would be bitterly resented by the strong and solvent members, and would involve litigation, which would be carried to the courts of last resort.
> It is open to doubt if such a castiron and universal requirement would produce the results to be desired, while it would betray the confidential relations not only of brokers with their own affairs, but with the members of the Exchange in connection with their clients and depositors.

In respect to the suggestion that margins of at least 20 per cent. be required by brokers, the Exchange Committee took a stand against it. In the original question put to the committee by the commission 10 per cent. was suggested as the minimum margin, this percentage being raised in the final report to 20. In reply, the Exchange Committee said it would be difficult to frame a rule compelling a specified percentage of margin, and, moreover, the fact that the brokers have their own financial position to safeguard is a strong incentive to them, as matters now stand, to obtain, whenever possible, the fullest protection in the way of margin.

The commission's suggestion that the method of loaning on stock as collateral be changed, so that the price at which the securities are accepted for purposes of collateral would be an average taken from the previous month instead of the price on the day the loan is made, was declared by the Exchange to be impracticable, and, moreover, productive of results which would be dangerous, if not disastrous. The suggestion that the Governor be empowered to fix a settlement price when a corner has developed in stock would serve, the Exchange Committee said, to put a limit on losses on the short side of the market and thus to encourage short selling.

The suggestion that the unlisted department be done away with brought out from the committee a statement that the Exchange is now and for some time has been endeavoring to have transferred to the regular list the securities traded in in the unlisted department, with the exception of mining stocks. There has already been transferred, the committee said, American Snuff, Rubber, Union Bag and Paper, Butterick Company, and Vulcan Detinning, and the committee added that most of the active stocks remaining in the unlisted department furnish as complete reports of their condition as would be required if they were in the regular list.

"In respect to the exceptions," the committee said, "Amalgamated Copper, American Sugar, and Great Northern Ore, the committee has given much thought to the matter. The right of the stockholders it has considered to be the vital thing, and to discontinue quotations in these active securities would undoubtedly work injury to stockholders who have made their purchases on the Exchange, and have a right to expect that they will not be arbitrarily deprived of their market. This committee will continue its efforts to bring about the entire change outlined above, and if not successful will bring the matter before your committee again for your support in whatever action is proposed."

The Governors of the Stock Exchange will meet next Wednesday, when it is understood that the commission's report will be considered.

President Charles H. Badeau of the Consolidated Stock Exchange made this statement regarding the report:

> I think that the report of the Horace White Committee to Gov. Hughes, taken as a whole, conforms well with the methods of stock trading as conducted in Wall Street, and places them before the public in a clearer light than has ever been done before. The recommendations made by the committee should bear fruit in many instances.
>
> As to the Consolidated Stock Exchange, it is organized to deal in small lots, and while speculation in such lots is possible, the Exchange offers the best place in the United States to small investors to make purchases of securities at the market.
>
> The commission houses of the Consolidated Stock Exchange handle a heavy investment business constantly in small lots of stocks and bonds, besides doing a speculative business for their customers.

This notice was issued yesterday by the agent of the Curb market:

> On and after this date all mining companies will be required to file at this office regular statements of their conditions. In event of failure to do so they will be refused quotation on the regular lists.

This step is said to have been taken as a measure of reform to placate the commission.

SPENCER TRASK, CHAIRMAN.

Heads the State Mineral Springs Reservation Commission.

SARATOGA, N. Y., June 17.—Spencer Trask of New York was to-day elected Chairman of the State Mineral Springs Reservation Commissioners appointed by Gov. Hughes to supervise the acquirement by the State of the Saratoga mineral springs.

The commission announced that a public meeting would be held in this village on June 25 for the purpose of obtaining an expression of public opinion from residents of the State relative to plans for carrying out the provisions of the Spring Reservation bill recently enacted.

Lowenthal Freed Before Morse.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of this morning I noticed that, in reporting the admission to bail of the defendant in the case of Abraham L. Lowenthal, plaintiff in error against United States, pending appeal, THE TIMES says:

> "The only argument made in opposition to the motion by Assistant United States District Attorney Pitkin was to call the attention of Judges Lacombe, Coxe, and Noyes to the refusal of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to grant bail to Morse. This contention was quickly disposed of by the announcement that Morse would get his liberty on $125,000 bail."

This last statement is inaccurate, for Lowenthal was admitted to bail one whole day and a half before bail was granted to Morse. If the statement had been made that the argument in the Lowenthal case had helped the Morse case it would have been much nearer the fact. I urged in the Lowenthal case that the United States Supreme Court ruling in Hudson vs. Parker, 156 U. S. 277, should be followed; and stated that even in the McKnight case, 113 Fed. 438, (where the appellant had been convicted three times, and was on his third appeal,) the court allowed bail.

In the Lowenthal case the defendant was admitted to bail within eight days after conviction, whereas the defendant in the Morse case had to wait nearly one year.

GRANDFATHER'S WILL UPSET

Property Worth $2,000,000 Disposed Before Tonnele's Birth—Justice Ingraham's Opinion.

The possession of $2,000,000 worth of property in the heart of Manhattan Island, three valuable lots in the business section of Brooklyn, and ten acres of land in Oswego, N. Y., as well as the position in law of an afterborn child in an action in which his father, by breaking his own father's will, comes into ownership of property which under the will would have gone to the child, are among the matters involved in the suit of Laurent J. Tonnele against Francis S. Wetmore and others, just decided in favor of the defendants by the Court of Appeals.

The present question of the rights of a child, then unborn, but now the plaintiff in the suit, was said by lawyers yesterday to be extremely rare, with little in the statutes and few legal opinions bearing on it.

When John Tonnele of North Bergen, N. J., died in 1852 he left an estate then valued at perhaps $500,000. By his will, admitted to probate the year of his death, his widow was to have a life interest in the property, and at her death the net rents, income, and profits of all sorts from the undivided estate were to be divided among the eight children, but they were not to have possession of the property. Upon the death of the children the estate was to go to the grandchildren, they to have full possession and do as they pleased with it.

He directed that the trustees should not divide the estate until after 1867, and on the ground that the provisions of the will, because suspending the power of alienation beyond the period the statute permits, were void, Mrs. Eloise Gedney, one of the daughters, brought suit in 1874 to break the will, the effect of the suit, if won, being that the entire property would at once be divided among the then living children, just as if their father had died intestate, instead of going to the grandchildren as the elder Tonnele had intended.

The living children were Mrs. Gedney, the plaintiff; Mrs. Julie Emilie Wetmore, Mrs. Adelaide Jane Mitchell, Mrs. Laurencine S. Gedney, Mrs. Margaret Longinotto, and an only son, Laurent J. Tonnele. Their interests and the interests of their children were directly antagonistic, for if they won their children would get only what they chose to leave them, but if they lost they could use only the income of the estate which went to the children unconditionally at their death.

The hearing took place before Justice Westbrook without a jury, the Justice appointing Everett P. Wheeler to represent the grandchildren. The children succeeded in breaking the will, and in 1878, by order of the court, the property was divided among the children and sold.

Among the houses and lots disposed of were the entire block front in Sixth Avenue, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth Streets, being Houses 209, 211, 213, 215, and 217 Sixth Avenue; also 103 West Fourteenth Street and 237 East Tenth Street, in Manhattan; Houses 23, 25, and 27 Tompkins Place, Brooklyn, and ten acres in the business section of Oswego.

At that time Laurent J. Tonnele, the only son, had but recently married, and it was not until nearly a year later that his son, Laurent, the present plaintiff, was born. Laurent's father died several years ago, and the son at once began an action to recover the property which would have come to him under his grandfather's will, property which for nearly thirty years had been in the possession of those who had bought it at sales ordered by court.

His attorneys contended that as he was then unborn he was not represented in the suit brought by the children, and that the court, on technical grounds, had jurisdiction in the matter. Ex-Justice Joseph F. Daly, appointed referee, finally recommended judgment in favor of the defendants. His attorneys appealed, and the Appellate Division, First Department, reversed the judgment of the lower court by a vote of two to three, Justice Ingraham writing the prevailing opinion.

In his opinion Justice Ingraham used this language, which the lawyers in the case regarded as almost remarkable:

> The plaintiff has never had his day in court. Before he was born, by a judgment in an action to which neither he nor any one representing him was a party, where the interests of his father and himself were antagonistic, and to get an interest in the property, the father in effect consented that plaintiff should be despoiled, without provision to protect his rights, and in which no relief was asked for except an adjudication that a will which devised real property to him be declared void, his property has been taken from him, and those who have got it seak to have that judgment stand as a bar to his recovery of what belongs to him.

This made the outlook for the new owners of the property gloomy. But William Temple Emmet and Grenville T. Emmet of 52 Wall Street, counsel for Francis S. Wetmore, owner of the property at the northwest corner of Fourteenth Street and Sixth Avenue, and others, carried the suit to the Court of Appeals.

The Messrs. Emmet said yesterday that the court had just handed down an opinion reversing the Appellate Division and in favor of the present owners of the property.

A copy of the opinion has not been received yet, but it is understood that the Court of Appeals simply affirms the decision of the court in 1874, that the will was invalid.

THE RUSH TO EUROPE.

(As it appears to the heir-apparent.)

There's simply nothing but our trip
To talk about at home;
The price of staterooms on each ship,
The best hotel at Rome,
The way to get to Rigi-Kulm,
Old Masters—in a crowd!
The Grand Canal,
The Bois, et al.—
No other theme's allowed!

Mother knows the blooming
Baedeker by heart.
Calls it education—
Sister calls it Art.

At breakfast it's cathedral towns,
Or famous scenery,
At lunch it's Worth and Paquin gowns,
It's galleries for tea;
With Corot and Correggio
Their classic thirsts they quench,
Much interspersed
With thrice-accursed
Excursions into French.

Mother calls it culture,
Sister calls it Art.
Father can't be quoted
Wholly, or in part.

MISS IDA M. WYNNE WEDS LIEUT. FRENCH

Ceremony Takes Place Quietly in Brompton Oratory, as Bridegroom Is a Protestant.

FOREIGN CONSULS PRESENT

Bride Is Given Away by Her Father, the Retiring American Consul General—Reception Largely Attended.

LONDON, June 17.—Ida M. Wynne, second daughter of Robert J. Wynne, the outgoing American Consul General in London, was married in this city to-day to Hugh Ronald French, a First Lieutenant in the Seventh Dragoon Guard, one of the crack regiments of the British Army.

The ceremony took place quietly in Brompton Oratory, only relatives and personal friends of the bride and bridegroom having been invited. Among the latter were a number of the foreign Consuls here and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, wife of the American Ambassador. Mr. Reid is confined to his room with a cold and could not attend.

The services at the church, of which the bride is a member, were necessarily brief, as the bridegroom is a Protestant. The wedding, nevertheless, was very pretty, and the social prominence of the principals aroused considerable interest, especially in the American colony.

The bride was becomingly dressed in a handsome costume of white lace embroidered with roses over soft liberty satin. She wore a Court train of Chantilly lace over cloth of silver, and a lace veil held by a wreath of orange blossoms. She was accompanied by her father, who gave her away, and attended by her sister Ruth as bridesmaid. The bridegroom was attended by Ernest Helme of London.

The marriage ceremony was celebrated by the Very Rev. H. W. Cater. After the services there was a reception at the Savoy Hotel attended by many friends of the couple.

Mr. Vernon will give her in marriage.

Sydney Porter, better known under the pseudonym of O. Henry, will be the best man, and the ushers will be Charles A. Meade, Henry S. Beardsley, and Dr. George C. Hall of New York and Carroll Burton of Philadelphia.

The reception will be held at 58 West Fifty-seventh Street, where Mr. and Mrs. Griffith will be at home after July 15.

SEHERR-THOSSES IN BERLIN.

After Luncheon with the Hitts They Start for Silesia.

BERLIN, June 17.—Count and Countess Seherr-Thoss arrived here to-day from their honeymoon.

They had luncheon with R. S. R. Hitt, Secretary of the American Embassy, and Mrs. Hitt, and left this afternoon for Silesia to visit the Count's father and mother.

MISS OPPENHEIM A BRIDE.

She Weds Maurice Joseph at Long Branch—Breakfast in Tents.

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., June 17.—Miss Dorothy Oppenheim, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myron H. Oppenheim of 771 Madison Avenue, and Maurice Joseph of 37 Wall Street, New York, were married this afternoon at the bride's country home in Park Avenue. The Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman of Temple Emanu-El, New York, officiated. Three hundred guests were present.

The ushers were Alfred W. Stein, Arthur S. Wiener, M. F. Toplitz, Max Hesslein, Robert H. Mainzer, William L. Hernstadt, Sidney Loeb, and Dr. Eugene Elsing. The best man was Louis Elsing.

The matrons of honor were Mrs. Elsing and Mrs. Simon Fink, all of New York. The bride wore white satin and real point lace. Following the marriage, a wedding breakfast was served in tents.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph will spend their honeymoon abroad. They will return late in the Summer and spend several weeks at the bride's country estate.

'TAMING OF THE SHREW' SEEN.

Cordial Reception to Sothern and Marlowe in the Comedy.

As the final attraction of their season in Shakespearean repertoire at the Academy of Music, E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe and their company presented "The Taming of the Shrew" last night.

A more suitable vehicle for the wind-up of their successful season could not have been chosen. The farce has always been a favorite with Shakespeare lovers, and both Mr. Sothern's Petruchio and Miss Marlowe's Katherine have long been admired. The attendance, too, for the final week, if last night is to be taken as a criterion, shows that the interest in Shakespeare as presented by those two artists is not diminishing. The playhouse was jammed and the reception to Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe was most cordial.

"The Taming of the Shrew" lends itself thoroughly to the ability of both Mr. Sothern and his co-star. Miss Marlowe makes of the turbulent but chastened heroine a thorough woman and not merely a termagant. She throws such a sweetness and charm about the character that one does not wonder why the fiery Petruchio takes such trouble to tame her. She portrayed the growing change in the temper and character of Katherine under the masterful hand of her pugnacious husband with a charm that was irresistible.

Miss Marlowe's Katherine is not a high, haughty, aristocratic lady, but just a sweet human woman with a temper of her own, who apparently is perfectly willing to be brought under the lash of such a purposeful lord and master as the Petruchio which Mr. Sothern portrays.

Mr. Sothern invests Petruchio with magnetism that strikes keen and quick sympathy from the audience. The play has more humorous situations than most of Shakespeare's comedies, and the company last night managed to extract a great deal of fun out of their lines.

AMERICAN PLAYWRIGHTS BEST

So Says Daniel Frohman on His Return from Abroad.

Daniel Frohman, who went abroad in April, returned yesterday on the White Star Line steamship Adriatic. He said he had been abroad resting at Kissingen with William H. Crane and William Gillette.

"The sensation in Paris at present is the Russian Opera Company and its wonderful ballet," he said. "They are now appearing at the Théâtre du Chatelet. The theatrical outlook is as dark in Paris as it is in London. This is in great part because the authors are not making good. There are too many theatres for which to supply plays of the highest grade, and not enough really good plays to supply them.

"The American playwrights are turning out the best work. Of course there is this in the situation—because of the demand for plays many an author whose work is unknown is getting a hearing, and from this good is sure to come."

Rain Stops a Y. M. C. A. Circus.

Although it has been long understood that the West Side Y. M. C. A. was a dry institution, it belied its reputation last night, for the fourth annual circus for the benefit of the Emergency Relief Fund had scarcely commenced in the large yard just east of the building when big drops of rain began to fall. More than two thousand people had come to see the circus, but they all secured rain checks. It is intended to give the performance to-night, unless it rains again.

New Dancer for the Savage Shows.

Miss Louise Lassalle, known on the stage as Nalico, the Spanish dancer, who is under a two-year contract to appear in the Savage productions, was a passenger on the White Star steamship Adriatic, which got in yesterday. Nalico's dances are said to be both artistic and novel, and are said to interpret both song and story.

Friars Dine Retiring Abbot.

The Friars gave a dinner last night to the retiring Abbot, Charles Emerson Cook of the Belasco forces, at the Hotel Astor. About 160 members of the club were present. Among the speakers were Daniel Frohman, Augustus Thomas, and De Wolf Hopper.

Blaney Rents Third Avenue Theatre.

The Charles E. Blaney Amusement Company has taken a five years' lease of the Third Avenue Theatre at an annual rental of $13,500. The property is owned by Thomas J. McMahill.

Social Notes.

Mrs. Clarence Mackay and her daughter, Ellin Mackay, are due to arrive here on June 29. Mr. Mackay, who has not been at all well, will remain abroad some weeks longer.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish have decided not to return to this country before the middle of July, and the Crossways, their Newport villa, will not be opened before the latter part of July.

Mrs. J. Montfort Schley and her daughters, the Misses Katharine and Marguerite Schley, have gone to Lake Mohonk for part of the Summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kennedy are at the Hotel Wolcott.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis C. Van Horne and Mrs. Walter Norman Eldridge have gone to Washington.

E. C. Benedict of 10 West Fifty-first Street is giving a large luncheon to-day at his country home at Greenwich.

Mr. and Mrs. William Oothout of Santa Barbara, Cal., have arrived in town and will spend the Summer at Upper Saranac in the Adirondacks, leaving for there to-morrow.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Gertrude J. Leavitt of Woodbury, Conn., and Carl H. Hanna, a grandson of Mark Hanna.

The engagement is announced of Miss Gladys L. Peck of Lamsondale, West Haverstraw, N. Y., to Otis Norton Shepard of Boston and New York.

The marriage of Miss Ethel Foster, daughter of Mrs. Eleanor A. Foster, to William Nelson Valk, will take place on June 30 at the Dutch Reformed Church, West End Avenue and Seventy-seventh Street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Allen Townsend and their daughters, the Misses Viola and Adeline Townsend, will sail for Europe on Wednesday, June 30. They will make a tour through England and Scotland, and return in the Autumn to their country home at Ardsley-on-Hudson.

BIDE-A-WEE DOGS ORDERED TURNED OUT

But They're Safe in Jersey and the Health Board Relents a Bit to Their Home.

CAN BE RECEIVING STATION

If Barking Dogs Are Banished and Few Kept There—Morning Rush to Rescue—Funds Needed Now.

The Bide-a-Wee Home for Animals, at 36 Lexington Avenue, was peremptorily closed on short notice by order of the Board of Health yesterday morning. Subsequently, however, after Mrs. Harry Ulysses Kibbe, President of the women's society, which maintains this shelter and a country home for animals at Harrington Park, N. J., had interviewed Dr. Walter S. Bensel, City Sanitary Superintendent, they obtained permission to reopen the house as a temporary receiving station on condition that no barking dogs were kept there. The dogs received are to be shipped at once to the country.

The first notice the Bide-a-Wee Society had that its home had been declared a nuisance because the dogs barked and annoyed the neighbors was when a Health Department policeman appeared at the home at 8 o'clock yesterday morning with an order from Dr. Bensel to close the shelter at once and turn the fifty-five dogs it contained into the street. The rival S. P. C. A. Society seems to have known all about it the evening before, however, for wagons of that society were already backed up in Lexington Avenue ready to take the dogs away to its shelter and put them out of the way in accordance with S. P. C. A. rules.

There were in the home both cats and dogs, left there by their owners while temporarily absent from the city, in addition to the strays gathered in until homes could be found for them. Among these was a little fox terrier known as "the Daughter of the Regiment," belonging to an officer recently returned from the Philippines. These dogs, at any rate, couldn't be turned loose. Supt. Henry Buel, on whom the order was served, stood to his guns and called up Mrs. Kibbe on the telephone.

"I have refused to give up the dogs," said Buel, "and the policeman says he will be obliged to arrest me."

Mrs. Kibbe got the policeman to the telephone. She told him to arrest the Superintendent if he wanted to, but she couldn't turn out the dogs on the instant. The telephone soon told Mrs. Kibbe that Policeman Cahill had gone away from the home, saying that he was off to get a warrant.

Mrs. Kibbe did some quick telephoning and ordered two moving vans sent to the home at once. Then with her lawyer, Samuel Wandell, she hurried to the home. Mr. Wandell pointed out to the policeman that he couldn't take away dogs from private property without some preliminary court proceedings. Anyway, the dogs would undoubtedly be removed from the home to New Jersey as soon as the wagons arrived.

Presently two large covered moving vans appeared and men about the home set to work nailing wire netting to boards to make doors at the ends, so that the dogs should have plenty of air on their trip.

"Everything was proceeding amicably when an S. P. C. A. veterinary appeared. He found fault with the accommodations for moving the dogs. Mrs. Kibbe motored around to the S. P. C. A. quarters in Madison Avenue and explained to Col. Wagstaff, the President, who sent Supt. Freel back to the home to help. Freel found the arrangements proper, so the dogs were put into the vans and started Jerseyward. The cats were allowed to stay, but the only dog left was "Tiddlewinks," the mascot of the home.

"Last night after it was all over Mrs. Kibbe said that the home had intended to send all of the dogs to the country, but the weather had been cold until the last few days.

"I felt at first that the Health Department might have given us longer notice of what they were going to do," she said. "We might have been told that we were a nuisance, but Dr. Bensel, after the facts were properly presented to him, was most kind."

The Health Board's action has put an additional burden on the Bide-a-Wee Society, which just now is trying to pay off the last $2,000 of the mortgage on its country home. There is a tax of $1 a head on its dogs in New Jersey, due at the end of the month, and there are more than 200 of them, so that it now needs money badly. Many women prominent in society are interested in the institution. Among the officers are Mrs. William Sakee Hofstra, Mrs. George H. Gould, and Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant.

Another Circuit for Klaw & Erlanger.

An agreement was entered into yesterday between Klaw & Erlanger and Albert Weis of the American Theatrical Exchange whereby Klaw & Erlanger receive the exclusive booking rights of the Greenwall Theatrical Circuit throughout Texas, including all the cities in that State except El Paso, and of all the other territory controlled by the American Theatrical Exchange, which includes all the houses in Oklahoma and the Cities of Little Rock, Pine Bluff, Hot Springs, and Helena, in Arkansas. The agreement is for ten years.

Yale Man Dies of Old Injuries.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., June 17.—Asher H. Vreeland, 22 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand H. Vreeland of Jersey City, died to-day at his country home here as a result of internal injuries received a year ago last September while a student at Yale. He was run down by an automobile in New London. The chauffeur escaped. Young Mr. Vreeland was seized with convulsions on Monday.

DR. RAINSFORD HOME.

St. George's Former Rector Spent 13 Months Hunting Game in Africa.

After an absence of three years and seven months the Rev. W. S. Rainsford, former rector of St. George's Church, in Stuyvesant Square, returned to New York yesterday on the White Star liner Adriatic. Dr. Rainsford, who suffered a nervous breakdown, sailed from here in search of health in November, 1905. He returns looking robust, and he said that he had fully recovered. He has been in England, Italy, France, Egypt, and for thirteen months was in East Africa hunting big game.

Dr. Rainsford made two hunting trips—the first in the Spring of 1908, when he hunted game on the Nzoia Plateau, in British East Africa. In both expeditions the ground over which Col. Roosevelt is now hunting was covered. Dr. Rainsford is to publish a book of his experiences and observations this Fall. "The Land of the Lion" is the title, and it will be from the press of Doubleday, Page & Co.

Dr. Rainsford's son Ralph, a mining engineer, is ill with typhoid fever in a mining camp in California, and Dr. Rainsford is going to him immediately. Mrs. Rainsford remained in Paris, where later her husband will join her.

"I am in pretty good health now," said Dr. Rainsford, "though it took me most of my first two years abroad to get a measure of my strength. My present plans are rather uncertain. I shall, of course, carry on my work, but I will not be as active in it as I was before my breakdown. I am coming to America to live, for this is my country."

Of his hunting trips Dr. Rainsford said: "I entered Africa through Mombasa, and I have been all over that hunting ground. I do not believe Mr. Roosevelt will cover all the territory I did, for he will not have the time. Part of the time I was with John White of this city. We found the hunting splendid.

"It is a mistake to say that hunting in Africa is attended by no more danger than hunting in one's back yard. There is always an element of danger. A hunter may go along for weeks and find everything smooth sailing and the going easy. Then, on a sudden, comes a scrap, and the hunter is fighting for his life, and not always successfully at that. Many a time life depends on a quick, well-aimed shot or an alertness in meeting a charge. While I was there seventeen men were mauled and two killed by lions.

"I consider the lion the most dangerous of wild beasts. He will attack, and often a man in hunting a lion is compelled to shoot for his life. The rhinoceros as a dangerous antagonist has, in my opinion, been exaggerated. He is easily killed and is not a terror. In considering the dangers to which the hunter is exposed in Africa one must consider the climate, which is one of the gravest of the many dangers.

"I do not believe that Mr. Roosevelt is in any danger. His party is well equipped and he has with him R. C. Cunningham and Leslie Tarlton, two of the best of men and hunters."

Obituary Notes.

The Rev. AUGUSTIN LANGCAKE, S. J., of St. Francis Xavier's Church, in West Sixteenth Street, died in St. Vincent's Hospital on Wednesday of a complication of diseases in his 77th year. He came to St. Francis Xavier's in 1900 from St. Mary's Church in Boston, where he had long been pastor. He was born in London, and had taught in many Jesuit schools.

SAMUEL WILSON MURRAY, founder of the Milton Car Works and the Milton Iron Company, died on Wednesday in Milton, Penn., aged 80 years. He was formerly connected with various locomotive works in Portland and Philadelphia.

Capt. JOHNSON VIVIAN, a wealthy mining man, died on Wednesday at his home in Houghton, Mich., aged 80 years.

WILLIAM E. MAGEE, a retired farmer, died on Wednesday at his home, 349 New Lots Road, Brooklyn. He was born in New Lots fifty years ago and was a son of Charles Magee, an old-time farmer of that section. A son survives him.

Mrs. FRANCES H. FRANCIS, widow of William T. Francis, who was a Captain in the service of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, died on Tuesday at her home, 352 Bergen Street, Brooklyn. She was born in Greenwich, Conn., in 1822. Two daughters survive her.

SARAH D. MOSBY, 44 years old, who boarded with the family of Miss Euphemia Sanbys at 408 West 115th Street, was found dead in the bathroom yesterday, death being due, according to Coroners' Physician O'Hanlon, to apoplexy. Miss Mosby came to New York three years ago. She was a distant relative of Col. John S. Mosby, leader of "Mosby's Guerrillas" in the civil war. Her home was in Memphis, Tenn.

Growing Every Day

One excellent reason why everybody, in town and out, is so enthusiastic about ARTHUR GOODRICH'S new novel,

The Lady Without Jewels

is the sheer story of it. Incident follows incident in bewildering yet logical succession, always varied with good, human humor. There is a thrill and a chuckle on almost every page. Jane Spencer says: "Simplicity's the thing, Mary Ann. You must take off those rings and that necklace of yours."

BULLDOG MAROONS ARTIST IN HIS AUTO

Car Broke Down Late at Night and the Brute Wouldn't Let Kurtz Fix It.

STOOD GUARD TWO HOURS

Rescuing Auto Tried to Run Him Down, but the Dog Came Up Smiling—Stuck Till Master Came.

Samuel B. Kurtz, an artist, of 1,015 East Nineteenth Street, Manhattan Terrace, Flatbush, spent all day yesterday trying to find a brindle bulldog which for two hours on Wednesday night kept him a prisoner in the tonneau of his automobile after the car had broken down in such a way that to fix it Mr. Kurtz must have lain down beneath it.

That was what he was doing when the bulldog hove in sight, and he escaped into the tonneau of his car only after the loss of a bit of trousers leg and much dignity.

Mr. Kurtz and his wife and young daughter, Virginia, had gone for a long ride on Wednesday, and were returning home at 11 o'clock at night when the car became disabled in East Seventeenh Street, near Newkirk Avenue, about half a mile from the artist's home. Mrs. Kurtz, realizing that it was long past the bedtime of her small daughter, told her husband that she would take Virginia home by trolley car, there being a line near by which passed the Kurtz home.

Mr. Kurtz agreed, and, divesting himself of his coat, spread his repair tools conveniently on the ground, and stretched himself under his car to effect repairs.

The arrival of the bulldog followed closely upon the departure of Mrs. Kurtz and her daughter, and when the artist had scrambled into the tonneau to safety his wife and daughter were too far away to hear a call for help. All Flatbush was asleep at this hour, so Kurtz tried to cajole the dog.

With a growl the dog lurched forward, and with a yell the artist sprang back into the tonneau, the dog's jaws snapping together less than an inch behind him. By this time it was 11:30 o'clock, and from then until nearly 1 the artist sat in the tonneau hoping that the dog would weary and go away. With his tools all in the road there was nothing in the car that Mr. Kurtz could throw at his captor.

After nearly two hours in the car Kurtz heard the sound of an automobile's exhaust down the road. As it drew near he yelled to the driver:

"For heaven's sake run over that brute. He's got me treed here."

There was a laugh from the other car and the driver backed away and rushed at the bulldog full speed. The dog disappeared under the car, but arose behind it barking and unhurt. Again the automobile was aimed at him and again the dog emerged unharmed. At last the newcomer grew tired of his job, and, declaring that he couldn't hit the dog, put on power and drove away.

For a half hour or more Mr. Kurtz sat a prisoner, and then along the street came a belated citizen whistling merrily. At the sound the dog pricked up its ears and dashed to the newcomer, springing up and showing, as only a dog can, how glad he was to see him.

The artist called to the man who admitted that the dog was his and then Mr. Kurtz recounted his night's experiences. The man laughed loud and long, and when the artist asked his name refused to give it. However, when he walked off in the darkness the dog went with him, and after an hour's more work the artist repaired his car and drove home.

He slept late yesterday, but his waking hours were spent in a hunt for the dog. It was unsuccessful, but the artist declares he will continue to hunt until he finds that canine if it takes all Summer.

White Committee Report Arouses No Apprehensions on Exchange—Time Money Rates Easier Again.

For the rather violent decline in prices on the Stock Exchange yesterday, maximum losses running from 2 to 4 points in a great many issues. Wall Street had a wide choice of explanations. The range embraced such matters as the report of Gov. Hughes's committee of inquiry into speculation and the Exchanges, President Taft's special message recommending a tax on the net income of corporations, and the reported firing by a Russian torpedo boat, accompanying the Czar's yacht, upon a British ship. As for the Hughes committee report, it is very doubtful, indeed, if that document had the least influence upon the day's business on the Exchange. All open-minded readers of the report familiar with the financial district recognized the evidences of care and fairness which had all along been expected owing to the make-up of the committee, and for the conclusions reached and the recommendations made there was general approval. These conclusions and recommendations simmer down to very frank advice to the Stock Exchange to institute a certain number of reforms which are necessary, and which, as the committee well says, can best be put into effect by the Exchange itself. Failure to act upon such frank advice can only bring upon the Exchange the censure which it will deserve. Mr. Taft's recommendation of a tax upon the net income of corporations is in many respects a more important matter, for, quite aside from the question of revenues, it calls into being the more serious subject of almost universal corporation investigation. It is unfortunate, at least, that there is not made a more serious effort toward economy in Government administration, for it is believed, and not without reason, that such economy strictly enforced would obviate the necessity for devising new and not altogether satisfactory forms of taxation. The European war scare, which a number of eminent jurists on the Stock Exchange foresaw yesterday as a result of the reported Russian attack upon a British ship merits no serious consideration, of course, but it serves as an illustration of the sort of material which speculators will make use of when they are endeavoring to accentuate the fall in a reactionary market. Short selling yesterday was on a substantial scale, and this, coupled with the fact that prices were down from 5 to 7 points from the high levels of last week, may indicate the near-by termination of the present market phase. Two interesting features of the financial news of the day were the increase of $838,000 in Baltimore & Ohio gross earnings for the month of May and the increase of 1 per cent. per annum in the Louisville & Nashville dividend rate. Wheat prices were firmer.

Time money rates were inclined to ease off again, the liquidation in stocks having released funds previously locked up in securities. Foreign exchange quotations moved up to a point inviting a renewal of the gold export talk without stimulating actual engagements. The Bank of England made an excellent showing in its weekly statement, reporting a reserve percentage of 50⅝, the highest figure attained at this season since 1905.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Third Day of Liquidation.

Yesterday was the third consecutive day of heavy liquidating sales in the stock market, and experienced operators called attention to the fact that very frequently a sharp break in stocks culminates on the third day of declining prices. Sometimes a day or two intervenes, when recoveries are in progress, but as a rule, it was pointed out, the throwing over of long stock in large quantities takes place on three distinct occasions, before the turn comes. After the last day of big liquidation, the market often continues unsettled for a short time longer, while the less pressing liquidation goes on, representing accounts which barely stood the decline, but are called upon to be straightened up as soon as the market again begins to lift its head. On the theory that yesterday's drop marked the culmination of the fall, temporarily at least, many operators bought stocks liberally in the afternoon, and brokers reported what is generally termed "good buying." Commission houses, however, said that thus far the reactions, which nearly everybody had been waiting for, had failed to stimulate any large amount of outside participation in the market.

"War Scare" Helped.

From the amount of war talk which was being indulged in in the lobby of the Exchange one might suppose that open hostilities had already been declared between England and Russia. Before noon cabled reports reached Wall Street that a Russian torpedo boat had fired on a British freighter. Under the circumstances this was fine ammunition for the bears, who had already got the bulls on the run, and, needless to say, they pressed the advantage to the utmost. Three weeks ago it is more than likely that the event would have passed unnoticed, but since the beginning of the week the market has been extremely sensitive to adverse news. At such times as these the old theory that accidents favor the bears invariably comes true. When the market happens to have a strongly bullish tone there is no time or disposition on the part of traders to take into account accidents, unless on their face they present really serious aspects. At other times the "seriousness" of the accident is made to fit the occasion.

Decline in Reading.

Liquidation of a large line of Reading by an individual closely associated with the hard-coal crowd was the explanation of the sharp drop in the price of that stock, which went to 150. The heavy slump in the shares incidentally served to revive the familiar comments to the effect that as a 4 per cent. dividend payer Reading common was selling beyond all reason. When it was several points higher, one was told that even if the dividend rate was only 4 per cent. the company's great equities were sufficient to justify a price of 175 or even 200. But that was when the Reading "plan" was being so actively agitated. Yesterday those who were enthusiastic buyers of the stock at a higher level were saying that there was not much chance now of any extraordinary developments in the affairs of the company to excite speculative interest for at least another six months. Consequently they could not see any reason why they should devote any more of their attention to it at present. Later the same people will probably begin to tell about the "heavy absorption by insiders" and suddenly rediscover the wonderful intrinsic merits of the stock. Having been one of the leading speculative favorites on the recent rise, books of the specialists contain probably a larger amount of stop-loss orders than in any other stock.

Old Copper Accounts Sold Out.

Within a week Amalgamated Copper has dropped about 7 points, falling more than 3 points yesterday, to 79¾. There had been a good deal of complaint before because Amalgamated was apparently not rising as easily as the rest of the market, but finally it was recalled that the stock was one of the first to start up last Spring and had a fairly good lead before the standard railroad shares fell into line. Incidentally it appears that a large stale bull account had accumulated. It was said yesterday that some of the tired holders finally lost patience and courage as well, dumping their stock on the market. To be sure, for the last two days the price of copper metal has been declining in London, and that led to the suspicion that perhaps there might be a halt of some duration before the price of copper here takes another upward spurt.

Louisville & Nashville Dividend.

Louisville & Nashville responded to the increased dividend declaration raising the rate from 5 to 6 per cent. by a net advance of three-fourths of 1 per cent. The dividend increase had been confidently expected for some weeks, and might be included in the events which Wall Street would say had been discounted. In any event, there was no violent speculation in the stock during the day, the total transactions amounting to only 1,400 shares. Louisville is one of the stocks which in the last few years has largely been absorbed by investors, there being scarcely an individual of any pretensions living along the company's line who has not at least a few shares to his credit. When dividend increases occur during a declining market they attract comparatively little attention.

NEW BOND ISSUE FOR INTERBOROUGH

Asks Permission to Put Out $10,000,000 at 5 Per Cent. to Retire 1907 Gold Notes.

A $55,000,000 MORTGAGE

Bonds Are to be Sold or Exchanged for the Notes at Not Less Than Par.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company applied to the Public Service Commission yesterday for permission to issue $10,000,000 in bonds under the $55,000,000 mortgage approved by the commission last year to retire an issue of three-year-gold notes, dated March 1, 1907, and maturing March 1, 1910. The bonds are to bear interest at 5 per cent. and are to be sold or exchanged for the three-year notes at not less than par. The petition is signed by August Belmont, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Interborough Company, and Richard Reid Rogers, counsel for the company.

The petition shows that on April 24, 1908, the commission authorized the execution by the company of a mortgage upon its property to the amount of $55,000,000, and on the same date authorized the immediate issue of the $30,000,000 in bonds to secure three-year 6 per cent. notes, dated May 1, 1908, in the amount of $25,000,000. It is further alleged that on March 1, 1907, the company issued $10,000,000 of three-year 5 per cent. gold notes, with a provision that the notes might be retired upon any interest date at 101 and accrued interest. The mortgage authorized the reservation of bonds to retire the three-year 5 per cent. gold notes, and that the company might at any time tender to the trustee any of the gold notes in exchange for bonds reserved, and that the trustee should receive and cancel the notes and deliver to the company an equal amount of reserved bonds.

The mortgage also provides that the company may deposit with the trustee cash equivalent to the face value of the notes and that the trustee shall in return deliver an equal amount of bonds. Yesterday's application sets forth that the company deems it essential to the protection of its interests to have the power to arrange for the exchange of these notes into bonds or to make the deposit necessary to retire the said notes or to otherwise finance the refunding of them as far in advance of their maturity as possible.

The petition gives the financial statement of the company on March 31, 1909, and for the year preceding, and shows the amount of dividends it has paid on its capital stock of $35,000,000 since the Subway was opened, in October, 1904. These dividends were 5 per cent. in 1904, 7⅜ per cent. in 1905, 8¾ per cent. in 1906, and 9 per cent. for 1907 and 1908.

The prayer of the petition is that the commission now authorize the issue of $10,000,000 of the bonds reserved to purchase or retire the three-year gold notes dated March 1, 1907, under the terms of the mortgage, to bear interest at not exceeding 5 per cent. a year and to be sold or exchanged for cash or the 5 per cent. notes of the company at not less than par, so that the trustee under the mortgage may be in a position to carry out the terms of the covenants, and that the company may be in a position to provide for the retirement of the notes.

The commission will have a hearing upon the application in the future.

CALL FOR TRANSFER CHANGE.

Metropolitan Bondholders' Committee Says System Precludes a Profit.

The necessity for a modification of the transfer system and of the limitation of fares to 5 cents on the traction lines in this city before any satisfactory plan of reorganization can be devised for the Metropolitan Street Railway system is urged in a circular to the company's refunding bondholders issued by the committee headed by Edwin S. Marston.

An exhaustive analysis of the earning power of the system, the circular says, shows that the income is not sufficient to pay any fixed return on either the 4 per cent. or the 5 per cent. bonds of the Metropolitan Street Railway. This situation has resulted from the fact that in the last fifteen years the fare for each passenger carried has been reduced from 5 cents to an average of practically 3 cents by the transfer system, while taxes in less than ten years have been increased fully 100 per cent.

The policy of enlarging the system by taking over other lines on long-time leases, often at exceedingly large rentals, the committee says, proved most burdensome, for not one of the leased lines produces an income sufficient to pay its operating expenses and taxes and yield a return equal to the amounts specified in the lease.

The remedy of the transfer wrong rests with the public, the committee says, and the matter of taxes also demands readjustment at the hands of the authorities. The impression that the property yielded large profits in excess of a fair return on the capital invested was doubtless chargeable in part, the committee says, to those who formerly managed the company, but the effect is that now over 35, and probably 40, per cent. of the company's net earnings are claimed as franchise taxes and other public charges.

Regarding the committee's attitude toward a reorganization of the system, the circular says:

After most careful study and thought the conviction is forced upon your committee that a reorganization which shall be more than a mere temporary makeshift leading before long to a renewed collapse, but which shall provide a sufficient amount of new capital, be fair and reasonable to the community at large and the legitimate claims of security holders, and safeguard with a reasonable degree of assurance against disaster in the future, cannot be effected unless and until a change shall have been brought about in the fundamental points which we have enumerated, and at least two of which depend for their correction upon appropriate action by the public authorities.

If such action is not had your committee may be called upon to face and to present to you the question whether under such circumstances it will not be the wisest course and one which in the end will involve a minimum of financial sacrifice on your part to take title to and possession of those properties (real estate and others especially pledged as security for your bonds, and to convert the same into cash for your benefit—a course of action which with due consideration for your interests and even more for those of the public should be resorted to only as a last resource, inasmuch as it would mean a total disorganization, if not actual disruption, of the street railway system and service in much the greater part of New York City.

The company is also confronted with the necessity of providing a large sum for the rehabilitation of the system and applying a large part of current earnings for maintenance and depreciation.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

American Securities Close Irregular on the London Exchange.

LONDON, June 17.—Money was plentiful and easier on the market to-day, and discounts were weak.

Trading on the Stock Exchange generally was quiet, with pronounced weakness in Kaffirs and copper shares early on further liquidation. Continental houses turned buyers later and caused Kaffirs to close well above the worst. Copper shares, however, were still weak on unfavorable statistics. Consols hardened a fraction on the good bank statement, and foreigners were firm.

American securities opened at irregular price changes.

Later the market advanced, but this improvement was not maintained, and at noon the tone was dull, with values ranging from ¼ above to ⅛ below yesterday's New York closing. The New York advices in the afternoon were uninteresting and prices moved uncertainly and closed irregular.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—The wheat market was irregular within a cent, range yesterday, closing firm. It opened about ⅝c higher on unexpected steadiness of English markets and wet weather in Southwest harvesting districts. Liverpool at the New York opening, was only ⅛ to ⅜d lower, but closed ½ to ⅝d lower. Only 165,000 bushels were received at interior points, compared with 322,000 bushels a year ago. On the late Curb July was bid up to $1.23⅝ and September, to $1.15. Cash wheat in New York was quoted, No. 2 red, $1.51, elevator, for old and $1.18⅜ for new, free on board, afloat, and August: No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.37⅛, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.34⅛, free on board, afloat, both old.

CORN.—Shipments at Chicago exceeded the receipts and this, coupled with a better Eastern cash demand, gave a strong undertone, yesterday, especially for July. Receipts continued light, the West getting only 377,000 bushels, compared with 531,000 bushels last year. Liverpool was ⅛ to ½d net lower. Wet weather in the Ohio Valley and Southwest was considered unfavorable for cultivation. No. 2 corn in New York was quoted, 85c nominal in elevator and 83c, free on board, afloat for old and 93½c, free on board, afloat for new Winter shipment. Other grades were nominal.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

At the Metal Exchange yesterday further weakness was shown in copper. Lake was unchanged, but electrolytic was down ¼c in both the bid and asked prices and castings were ¼c off. Tin was off ⅛c, while spelter was up 2½ points. Lead was unchanged.

In London yesterday, on the Metal Exchange, copper, for both spot and future deliveries, made a recession of 12s 6d from the final figures of Wednesday. The market finished easy, last prices ruling at, spot, £58 7s 6d; futures, £59 5s.

Pig tin, after a weak opening, recovered somewhat, but ended with a loss of 10s for spot and 12s 6d for futures, at £133 7s 6d and £134 15s, respectively. Lead was unchanged, at £13 1s 3d. Spelter was off 2s 6d, at £21 17s 6d. Cleveland warrants were lower, at 48s 3d.

The closing bid and asked prices for copper and other metals for spot delivery on the New York Metal Exchange yesterday compare as follows with those of Wednesday:

FIGHT ON OVER COLLINS WILL.

Grandchildren Start a Contest—Daughter the Chief Heir.

Three grandchildren of Mrs. Marie J. E. Collins of 2,242 Valentine Avenue, the Bronx, have brought suit through their guardian to break her will.

Mrs. Collins, upon inheriting from her husband an estate valued at $125,000, intrusted its management to her son, Charles Henry Collins, a lawyer of 280 Broadway. Later she brought suit to have the conveyances set aside and won it. As the years passed she grew weaker, and her daughter, Mrs. Marie J. Carey, broke up her own home to look after her.

Just before her death, some six months ago, the mother conveyed the bulk of her property, valued at more than $100,000, to the daughter. In her will she affirmed this action, dividing the remainder of her estate among the other three children, the son, Charles Henry Collins, to receive his part on a contingency involving a repayment of about $1,500 to the estate.

The suit to break the will is brought by William F., Margaret, and Nathalie Collins, all of whom are under age, the children of a son of Mrs. Collins, now dead. Through their attorney they assert that the conveyances to their aunt, Mrs. Carey, were made through undue influence.

The hearing will come up to-day before the Surrogates' Court.

FARMERS' TRUST ELECTION.

Promotion for Some Officers—Two New Assistant Cashiers.

At the annual meeting of the Trustees of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company yesterday several officers were moved up in rank and two new assistant cashiers were named. The institution's official staff is now as follows: Edwin S. Marston, President; Samuel Sloan, Vice President; Augustus V. Heely, Vice President and Secretary; William B. Cardozo and Cornelius R. Agnew, Vice Presidents and Assistant Secretaries; Robert E. Boyd, Assistant Secretary and Registrar; William A. Duncan and Horace F. Howland, Assistant Secretaries; J. Kenneth MacAlpine, Cashier, and J. Courtney Tally, Francis A. Wilson, Herbert Wellington, and Harry D. Sammis, Assistant Cashiers.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders last week Frank A. Vanderlip, Percy A. Rockefeller, John W. Sterling, and Augustus V. Heely were elected Trustees to fill vacancies, one of which was caused by the death of H. H. Rogers.

Milwaukee Operates to the Coast.

CHICAGO, June 17.—Announcement was made yesterday that the first transcontinental railroad ever built through from Chicago to the Pacific Coast under one management, the 1,400 mile extension of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, is now ready for business. The formal notice was contained in a telegram received at the Chicago headquarters of the road from President A. J. Earling, who wired from Seattle. The first consignment from Chicago to Seattle was started during the day on its 145-hour journey.

Felix E. Kahn Now on the Exchange.

Felix E. Kahn, a brother of Otto H. Kahn of the banking house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., was elected a member of the New York Stock Exchange yesterday. Mr. Kahn is with the Stock Exchange firm of Herzfeld & Stern. His sponsors were Mortimer L. Schiff and Otto Lowengard. Rector K. Fox was also elected to membership in the Exchange yesterday.

L. & N. Dividend Back to 6 Per Cent.

The Directors of the Louisville & Nashville declared a semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent. yesterday, payable on Aug. 10 to stockholders of record on July 20. This is an increase of ½ of 1 per cent. over the previous semi-annual dividend and restores the rate to the 6 per cent. a year from which the dividend was reduced in August, 1908.

Broker A. R. Specht Arrested.

Augustus R. Specht, an investment broker at 35 Nassau Street, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Sullivan yesterday on an order issued by Supreme Court Justice Guy, in a suit brought against him by Robert M. G. Walford to recover $4,600 on a stock deal. He gave bail in the sum of $2,500 and was released from custody.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 17.—Booth Fisheries shares were again active in the local market, and the common stock recovered from 13 to 15 before midday, when it paused. American Radiator showed a loss of ⅞, while Biscuit common gained a point and the preferred 2 points in the early trading. Title and Trust sold at 133, a gain of a point. In the late trading Booth Fisheries common advanced to 14⅞, but the preferred eased off to 49½ again. People's Gas showed a loss of 1¼, and Street's common 1⅜ points. Telephone sold off a point. Biscuit shares, however, were advanced to 125, and were in good demand.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Half-million Dollar Deal for Sixth Avenue Corner—Purchase Near Pennsylvania Station—Buying in Many Sections.

Samuel Goldsticker has sold the Union Dime Savings Bank Building, at Broadway, Sixth Avenue, and Thirty-second Street, for the City Investing Company to Charles Kaufman and Edward Hedley Cuthbertson of London. The transaction is referred to in more detail in another column.

Sixth Avenue and 45th Street Deal.

The Alliance Realty Company, E. Clifford Potter, Benjamin Mordecai, Daniel B. Freedman, and Heilner & Wolf, comprising the Sixth Avenue Realty Associates, have sold the southeast corner of Forty-fifth Street and Sixth Avenue, a rectangular plot fronting 125.10 feet on the avenue and 120 feet on the street, and having an area of about 15,000 square feet. John P. Kirwan was the broker in the transaction. The buyer's name is withheld, but in an announcement made yesterday concerning the deal he is described as "the senior member of a well-known corporation doing a retail business in specialties." This concern will occupy the premises. The Alliance Realty Company holds a 51 per cent. interest in the selling corporation.

The property was purchased by the Sixth Avenue Realty Associates about March 1, and the sale is now made at a fair profit, the selling price being considerably in excess of $500,000. The use of this property for retail business will, it is believed, have an important effect upon the future of Sixth Avenue north of Forty-second Street.

Tucker, Speyers & Co. have sold for the Charles E. Blaney Amusement Company to William H. Wheeler 865 Sixth Avenue, adjoining the southwest corner of Forty-ninth Street, a two-story business building on lot 25 by 100.

Thomas H. Mitchell has sold for the Diefenthaler estate 822 Sixth Avenue, a four-story building on lot 20 by 101 and irregular, between Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh Streets.

Deal on "Pennsylvania Lane."

Parish, Fisher & Co. have sold for Ralph L. Spotts to an investor the property 144 West Thirty-second Street, 20 by 49, with old brick dwelling thereon. The property is one of small fractional lots in the street that is coming to be known as "Pennsylvania Lane," because it leads from the Broadway and Sixth Avenue retail trade district directly to the main passenger entrance of the new Pennsylvania Station. This is the third time this parcel has been sold within the last two years by the same brokers, each resale showing a substantial profit.

Lexington Avenue Purchase.

Pease & Elliman have sold for Miss J. P. Draper 357 Lexington Avenue, a four-story brownstone dwelling, 19.6 by 85. The new owner will occupy the house.

Folsom Brothers, in conjunction with William Henry Folsom, have also sold for John H. Jones 137 and 139 East Twenty-sixth Street, on plot 46.8 by 98.9, with the buildings thereon, to Millie Segal for improvement.

Herman R. Limberg is the buyer of 31 and 33 East Twenty-eighth Street, 45.6 by 98.6, the sale of which by N. A. Berwin & Co. for Mrs. von Beverhout Thompson was recently reported. The property had not changed hands for over thirty years.

Louis B. Cryder is the buyer of the dwelling 113 East Seventy-eighth Street, sold recently.

$225,000 for Fulton Street Corner.

By two deeds, each conveying a one-half interest, the lot at the southeast corner of Fulton and Nassau Streets, 31.2 by 51, was transferred yesterday to Gyulo Armeny, owner of the building. Each transfer was made for a consideration of $112,500, or a total of $225,000.

Mr. Armeny has mortgaged the property to the Title Guarantee and Trust Company for $200,000, due June 17, 1930, and bearing 5 per cent. interest. He has also given a three-year 6 per cent. second mortgage on the property for $12,000 to Harris Solomon.

Buyer of Riverdale Tract.

The Whitehall Realty Company, of which Stuard Hirschman is President, is the buyer of the Samler farm, at Riverdale, the sale of which was reported yesterday.

New Buildings at Fort Washington.

M. Schwitzer has sold for Milton Oppenheimer to Grossman & Michael the plot, 127 by 100, at the southeast corner of Pinehurst Avenue and 178th Street. The buyers will erect three five-story apartment houses.

The Meister & Bache Realty Company and Levy & Starr are the buyers of the plot, 100 by 100, at the northeast corner of Riverside Drive and 181st Street, sold by the Minoma Realty Company. The buyers will erect a six-story elevator apartment house on the site.

D. Lang has sold for Bernard Alexander 30 and 32 Macomb's Place, southeast corner of 151st Street, two six-story apartment houses on plot 51 by 60 by 44 by 100.

Apartments Sold on 116th Street.

S. Simon & Son have sold for Bolton Hall 369 West 116th Street, a seven-story elevator apartment house, known as the Richmond, on plot 28 by 100.11; also, for T. M. Borst, 419 and 429 West 117th Street, two five-story dwellings, each 18 by 100.11.

George Alexander Macdonald has sold 212 West 128th Street, a three-story brownstone dwelling, on lot 16.8 by 100. George R. Read & Co. were the brokers in the sale.

The Taylor-Sherman Company has sold 121 West 133d Street, a five-story flat, on lot 27 by 99.11, for A. C. Quarrier.

The Frank L. Fisher Company negotiated the recent sale of the dwelling 155 West Eighty-seventh Street. The buyer, Dr. William L. Bailey, will occupy the house.

Senior & Stout have rented the three-story private dwelling 296 Manhattan Avenue to Mrs. J. Q. A. Ward; also, the three-story dwelling 148 West Forty-eighth Street to Leopold Grossberg.

The Sisterhood of St. Mary has been granted leave by Justice Guy in the Supreme Court to sell its property on the south side of Forty-sixth Street, 160 feet east of Fifth Avenue, 40.8 by 100.5, to Amos R. E. Pinchot for $200,000. The proceeds of the sale will be used to clear the church of existing indebtedness and for the completion and furnishing of the new buildings at Peekskill, N. Y., for the combined schools of St. Mary's and St. Gabriel's.

D. Lang has sold for a client the leasehold property 1,204 to 1,210 Broadway, 68 by 120 and irregular, between Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth Streets. The building is occupied by Shanley Brothers.

Operators Buy on Greenwich Av.

Sandford & Green have bought 29 Greenwich Avenue, near Tenth Street, a four-story building on lot 21 by 75, from William H. Donaldson and others. The property has been in the possession of the Donaldson family since 1867. The deal.

E. Francis Hillenbrand, formerly of Hillenbrand & Nassoit, has sold for the estate of James J. Ryan the plot, 70 by 100, on the north side of Third Street, 111.6 feet west of Macdougal Street, to Lowenfeld & Prager, who give in part payment 324 and 326 East Sixty-sixth Street, a six-story tenement, 41.8 by 100.

Folsom Brothers have sold for Herbert S. Ogden, as executor, the two buildings 394 and 396 East Houston Street, on plot 40 by 70.9, to J. W. Bright.

West 52d Street Purchase.

David Vogel has sold for a client of Joseph P. Day to Robert Wick 556 and 558 West Fifty-second Street, a five-story building, on plot 50 by 100.5.

Upper Second Avenue Transaction.

Maier Brothers have sold the four-story double flat 2,032 Second Avenue, 25 by 75, and have bought 223 West Sixtieth Street, a four-story apartment house, 25 by 100.

Justice Guy, in the Supreme Court, yesterday, granted the application of the Congregation B'Nai Paiser to sell its property on the north side of Eighty-second Street, 325 feet east of Park Avenue, known as 157 East Eighty-second Street, to the Chebra Kadischa Talmud Thora, for $22,500.

The Van Norden Trust Company has made a building loan of $76,000 to the Ironmasters' Realty and Construction Company on the property, 137.4 by 100.11, on the north side of Ninety-seventh Street, 162.6 feet east of Madison Avenue.

Tenants for New Loft Building.

Heil & Stern have leased for Henry Corn, in the new building now being erected at 54 to 62 West Twenty-first Street, the eighth, ninth, and tenth lofts, a total floor space of about 35,000 feet, to various tenants for long terms, at a total rental of over $100,000.

Warren & Skillin have leased for Thomas E. Greacen 5,000 square feet in 17 to 27 Vandewater Street to Lutz & Sheinkman; also the first loft in 201 Fulton Street for Bernard Kreizer to George Remus for a term of years.

PRISON SENTENCES FOR TWO SMUGGLERS

White and Kilgannon Must Serve Time, While Mrs. Kilgannon Pays $5,000 Fine.

MRS. WHITE FAINTS IN COURT

Prosecutor Tells Judge Ray That the Late Mrs. Osborn Was in a Smuggling Plot.

Severe sentences were meted out yesterday by Judge Ray of the United States Circuit Court in the White-Kilgannon smuggling case. All three of the defendants, George C. White, William H. Kilgannon, and Mrs. Kilgannon, entered pleas of guilty and asked for mercy. Judge Ray was merciful to the extent of letting Mrs. Kilgannon off with a $5,000 fine, but he sentenced her husband to one year in the Blackwell's Island Penitentiary and White to two years in the Federal prison at Atlanta. Mrs. Kilgannon paid her fine.

In the argument which United States Attorney Wise made before sentence was passed it came out that while the offenses for which the trio were sentenced occurred two years ago, evidence is in the possession of the Government showing that they worked also for the smugglers responsible for the importation of $52,000 worth of fine laces and dresses which have just been sold out at the Custom House.

Mr. Wise did not go further in this connection, but he did say, when counsel for White mentioned the fact that his client had worked for the late Mrs. Osborn, the modiste, that if she were living now she would be before the United States courts along with others.

The making of the pleas and the sentences created something of a sensation in the Federal Building, where the smuggling cases have been the subject of much gossip for weeks. The White case came up first, and George Gordon Battle made an extended plea for leniency. He said that White had never been in trouble before, and that he had worked, among other places, at Mrs. Osborn's and with Austin F. Montayne, a silk importer, who was convicted of smuggling and is now serving a term on the island.

"I don't think that association with either of those individuals is particularly to his credit," remarked Mr. Wise, "and I may say that if the woman mentioned were still alive she would be here with him, facing another charge of having worked a systematic method of swindling the Government out of its just revenue."

Mr. Wise said that White was evidently the master mind of the combination and the Kilgannons his tools. He added that White had become acquainted with Lorne B. Walker, a former customs employe, who was connected with the smuggling cases some time ago, and that Walker had fallen his easy victim. Mr. Wise estimated that the Government had lost between $6,000 and $8,000 through the offenses of which White and the Kilgannons stood convicted.

At this point White interrupted the proceedings to say that it was he who had been a tool of the Kilgannons, and not they of him; that he had never realized any profits from his partnership with Kilgannon, and begged to have a chance to begin life over again. This moved Mr. Wise to add that White had furnished no information to the Government in the case and that he believed he knew all about the relations of Walker, the ex-Customs Inspector, with Montayne. Judge Ray agreed that White seemed to be the head of the combination.

"In view of all this," said the Judge, "I can't have much respect for you. I am not going to impose the full penalty of the law, but it is only on account of your wife and children that I am lenient, and not upon yours. Two years in the Federal prison at Atlanta."

As Judge Ray passed sentence Mrs. White rose from her seat in the rear of the courtroom and cried out:

Oh, Judge."

Then she swooned, and even after she was revived she was in a hysterical condition as her husband was led away to the Tombs to await transfer to Atlanta.

Next Francis Hamilton, who used to be solicitor to the Collector, made a plea for Kilgannon and his wife. In the case of Mrs. Kilgannon he remarked that he believed that 95 per cent. of the women of this city who travel more or less in Europe did not regard smuggling as a crime. He called attention to the fact that in the past hundreds of cases have been disposed of by fines without imprisonment, and asked that only fines be imposed on his clients.

Judge Ray, however, was only disposed to accede to Mr. Hamilton's request in the case of Mrs. Kilgannon. In imposing a fine of $5,000 on her he said that it was time that all people, particularly women, realized that the customs laws meant something, and that inasmuch as they were framed in part to give employment to various classes of citizens a violation of them amounted in an indirect way to grand larceny.

The court added that he wanted it generally understood that he proposed to see the customs laws enforced in the future. He then fined Mrs. Kilgannon and sentenced her husband, telling the latter that he was sorry for him on account of his wife and children.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Horseshoe Calks and Ball Bearings Must Pay Duty at Rate of 45 Per cent.

Judge Platt in the United States Circuit Court has affirmed a decision of the Board of General Appraisers in the cases of Maldonado & Co., and Hensel, Bruckmann & Lorbacker. The merchandise concerned relates to the classification of horseshoe calks and ball bearings.

The Government assessed duty on the articles at the rate of 45 per cent. ad valorem as "manufactures of metal," whereas the importers maintained that the merchandise should be classified at various specific rates as being "steel in all forms and shapes." The difference in the rate of duty is considerable. In finding for the Government Judge Platt said: "There is no doubt about these importations, steel horseshoe calks in the one case and ball bearings in the other, going into Paragraph 193, unless Paragraph 135 is more specific. The importers insist that 'steel in all forms and shapes,' found in Paragraph 135, describes them. We then go to gun barrel molds, then to steel castings, then to sheets and plates, and then immediately to 'steel in all forms and shapes.'

"It is true that Congress must have had in mind in this last phrase forms and shapes, and shapes upon which a large degree of labor had been expended in addition to that required to produce sheets and plates. But, as the board says, every manufactured article must have form and shape it is not conceivable that Congress intended to provide in Paragraph 135 for such distinctively finished products as those now at issue. Decisions affirmed."

Sulloway to Play Seaver.

BOSTON, Mass., June 17.—An accident to his opponent in the first set gave F. J. Sulloway of Franklin, N. H., the final match against C. F. Johnson of this city in the Massachusetts tennis championship at the Longwood Cricket Club to-day. Sulloway will meet R. C. Seaver of Boston in the challenge match to-morrow. Sulloway and Johnson were four games all in first set, when Johnson sprained his ankle and was forced to retire.

HARVARD CREW FAST, TOO.

Crimson Eight Equals Yale's Time Over the Four-Mile Course.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 17.—Harvard's rowing stock took a sudden jump this evening, when her 'Varsity eight pulled up the four-mile course and equaled the time of 20:35, made by Yale's crew Wednesday evening.

The conditions on the course on both occasions were practically the same. Yale had a lighter wind to help her boat along, but was favored with smooth water, Harvard's shell plowing through a choppy surface for the first half of the trial.

Harvard started at a 36 stroke, which was lowered to 32 after an eighth of a mile was covered, and Sargent did not spurt until the three and a half miles were rowed, but then the stroke was gradually raised until the finish, when the crew was rowing at 42.

Every man in the boat is in fine shape," remarked Dr. Worthington. He had carefully examined the oarsmen after their four-mile test, and declared all free from any weakness.

The Crimson freshman eight rowed up stream two miles a few minutes ahead of the 'Varsity boat, and their time was given out officially at 10 minutes 16 seconds.

Yale's crews were not worked hard in their practice to-day, the 'Varsity eight taking things easy after their fast spin last night. The water was rough near quarters in the morning, nearly swamping the boats. In the evening all the crews confined their practice to the upper half of the course.

Francis Peabody, a prominent lawyer of Boston, with Julian W. Curtiss and Benjamin Thomas of the 'Varsity four of 1901, were arrivals at Broadview to-day and interested spectators on the Eli launch this evening. George Mumford, a former Crimson coach, was a visitor at Red Top this afternoon.

RICE SHAKES UP COLUMBIA.

Capt. Cerussi Falls to Hold Place as Stroke in 'Varsity Boat.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 17.—There was another shake-up in the Columbia 'Varsity eight to-day, and the crews were boated very much the same as when they rowed against Annapolis in May. Capt. Cerussi, after a two days' trial at his old seat as stroke, was replaced with Murphy, who has been stroking the crew most of the time since Columbia rowed at Poughkeepsie. Robinson, No. 2, was moved to No. 6, displacing Ryan, who went to the second 'Varsity, while Hanman was put in at No. 2.

The practice of the Cornell and Columbia crews on the river this afternoon was the first opportunity that observers have had for a comparative view of the contestants. Both crews rowed over the full course down stream after a shower had left the river smooth, with a strong ebb tide running. They rowed about half a mile apart.

Cornell had something the better of the comparison, and, while Courtney does not say that the boating of his crew is permanent, impartial observers are of the opinion that the Ithacans' work is further advanced than that of the New Yorkers.

Wisconsin is due here to-morrow, Pennsylvania on Sunday, and Syracuse on Tuesday.

MOTOR BOATS GET HOME.

Ilys Beats Heather in Return Race from Bermuda by Over One Hour.

Two of the three motor boats that left St. David's Head, Bermuda, at 10:00 o'clock last Monday morning in the race home for a trophy offered by the Crescent Athletic Club, arrived off the clubhouse dock at Bay Ridge last evening. The leader was J. G. N. Whitaker's Ilys, commanded by Thomas Fleming Day. She finished at 5 o'clock, making her homeward run for the 670 miles in 78 hours 51 minutes, a big improvement over her run to Bermuda, which took 96 hours. The Ilys had engine trouble in the first race and got third place, the scratch boat Heather winning.

The latter boat finished last night at 6:33 o'clock, taking for her homeward trip 80 hours and 24 minutes, showing very consistent running time, as her trip to Bermuda was made in 80 hours 53 minutes. She is owned by Richmond Levering of Cincinnati. The third boat, William C. Proctor's Insp, had not been sighted up to the late hour. The Nereides, which got second place in the race from this city to Bermuda, did not compete in the race home.

The crews of the two boats reported a good run from Bermuda without any unusual incidents. They were entertained at dinner last night at the Crescent Athletic Club.

TWO TIE IN MOTOR HUNT.

Unique Auto Feature of Queensboro Bridge Celebration.

The Motor Hunt, one of the automobile features in connection with the Queensboro Bridge celebration, was held yesterday over a course within a radius of thirty miles of Long Island City. Sixty controls were hidden in different places within this territory, and the prize went to the car discovering the largest number of these controls.

William Allen Kissan of Queens and C. W. Landers of Garden City tied for first place, both men locating all but a very few of the controls. Mrs. Joan Newton Cuneo was third. There were about twenty-five entrants.

Landers also took the bronze trophy for sighting the quarry car the greatest number of times. This car ran all day over the roads within the thirty-mile radius, and when encountered by a competing car had to register the driver as having located it once. Landers only met the quarry car a few times, but they were sufficient to win the trophy for him.

The prize for which he and Kissan tied is also a bronze trophy, and the award will be made to-day after some agreement has been reached as to how to break the tie.

Keene and Whitney Horses Win.

ASCOT, June 17.—The forty-seventh New Biennial Stakes of 15 sovereigns each, with 500 sovereigns added, for two and three year olds, distance five furlongs, was run here to-day and won by Jams R. Keene's Wedding Bells II. The All-Aged Stakes of 5 sovereigns each, with 300 sovereigns added, for two-year-olds and upward, distance six furlongs, was won by H. P. Whitney's Hillside III.

HORSES AND HORSEMEN.

Jockey Eddie Dugan paid a fine of $100 before he was permitted to ride at Gravesend yesterday, as one of the results of his winning ride on Joe Madden in the Brookdale Handicap. The fine was imposed because Dugan, riding May Florence in the last race Wednesday, slashed Glass, riding Cindy, across the face with his whip at the post; but the trouble started in the Brookdale, and Dugan struck Glass because the lighter boy had complained of Dugan on Joe Madden riding Glass's mount, Affliction, on the rail in the Brookdale. The crowding was just before the horses turned into the back stretch, and though it could be plainly seen from the stand that Dugan rode Glass close, the boy made no complaint until questioned by James Rowe, trainer of Affliction. Then it developed that Glass's leg had been cut and Affliction's side scraped against the fence. Had Glass made prompt complaint of the foul, the offending horse must have been disqualified, under the rules, and the disqualification of Joe Madden would also have disqualified his stable mate, Restigouche, which ran second, and Affliction, the third horse, would then have been placed first. It was a complication to make the Stewards shudder, and though they escaped being called upon to make such a decision, Trainer Rowe required Glass to put in a late complaint. Dugan's fine settled only the attack on Glass Wednesday. The Stewards of The Jockey Club will decide the complaint for the fouling of Affliction.

George Odom bought from Walter B. Jennings, on private terms yesterday at the Gravesend track, the three-year-old Prince Gal, a winner of the day before, and the two-year-old Follie Levy, a winner in California.

Hammerless, a high bred and winning three-year old, entered by Frederick Johnson to sell for $1,300 in the first race at Gravesend yesterday, was bid up to $3,000 in the interest of the owner of the second horse St. Joseph, and then was bought in for her owner.

The weights for the Parkway Handicap to be run Monday were announced yesterday, with the top weights as follows: King James, 130; Restigouche, 126; Live Wire, 124; Jack Atkin, 119; Master Robert, 114; Fitz Herbert, 114; Joe Madden, 112, and Harrigan, 111.

An extra race has been announced for the Saturday programme at Gravesend, a handicap for all ages, over the short six furlongs course.

MASKETTE EASILY WINS THE GAZELLE

J. R. Keene's Filly Gallops in Front All the Way for the $5,195 Stakes.

EFFENDI TAKES HANDICAP

Bigot, at 60 to 1, Lands the Longest Odds of the Season in the Race for Maidens at Gravesend.

It was hardly more than a matter of form for Maskette, the best filly of her age, to gallop over the mile-and-a-sixteenth course for the $5,195 Gazelle Stakes at Gravesend yesterday, for the race was conceded to her on every side, and in front practically every foot of the distance, Maskette won just as the crowd expected her to. So far as the winning was concerned, there was hardly the appearance of a contest, the only contest being for second place, with Lady Bedford and Petticoat as the contenders, Petticoat shaking off Lady Bedford on the last turn and finishing second to the cantering Maskette, three lengths behind the winner and two lengths before Lady Bedford.

The victory in the Gazelle made an addition to the winnings of the James R. Keene stable for the season that brought the total up to $41,000 and made the contest for first place on the winning list very close between the present leader, S. C. Hildreth, with a total of $43,000, and the Keene establishment.

The two horses which divided public opinion in the mile and a quarter handicap, fourth on the card, had the finish between them, the others of the field being beaten far off, while Effendi, in front all the way, won straightened out through the stretch by two lengths from Norbitt.

The first handicap for two-year-olds that has been run this season made a close and pretty contest for the second race, five and a half furlongs, with Medallion and Pretend the only two horses of the five starters who ever figured as contenders. Medallion led, with Pretend in hot pursuit, and, carrying a hot pace from the lifting barrier, the first furlong in 0:11 1-5 and the quarter in 0:22 2-5, Medallion lasted in front to the end, winning ridden out by a neck from Pretend, which closed steadily.

The longest-chance winner of the year, Bigot, at 60 to 1, cropped up in the maiden race, last on the card, Bigot, well up in a big field from the start, drawing out and finishing first before a field of fifteen horses, with neither of the two equal choices, Sampeon and Choirmaster of Chesterbrook, placed. The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—Per three-year-olds and upward; selling allowances; one mile and a sixteenth.

TELLS OF TYPING FOR BRANDENBURG

Stenographer Says the Cleveland Article Was Written in Part In Her Office.

SIGNATURE IN QUESTION

Witness Explains Efforts Made by The Times to Make Sure It Was Genuine—Kidnapping Indictment.

Assistant District Attorney Nott, at the trial of Broughton Brandenburg in the Criminal Part of the Supreme Court before Justice Fitzgerald for grand larceny in the second degree, began yesterday to explain the manner in which according to the People's case Brandenburg produced the Cleveland article, which he sold to THE NEW YORK TIMES, and which appeared in its Sunday edition on Aug. 30, 1908.

He called Miss Bacon, who has a typewriting business in the Marbridge Building, 47 West Thirty-fourth Street, to prove that Brandenburg went to her in August with an article partly written and sat down at her table and wrote passages that were incorporated in it, while one of her employes copied the article on the typewriter.

Mr. Nott also produced a witness to show that Miss Bacon had had the particular machine used in her office for only a few weeks after July 1, while Mr. Cleveland died on June 24. This evidence was introduced immediately after the reading to the jury of Brandenburg's own evidence before the Grand Jury, in which he swore that he had typewritten the article on his own machine in March.

In the morning the defense cross-examined Charles M. Lincoln, Sunday editor of THE TIMES, on the exact course pursued in the handling of the manuscript and as to the signature which was cut from it. They succeeded in bringing out clearly that THE TIMES did not publish the article solely on the representations of Mr. Brandenburg, but because F. S. Hastings, executor of the Cleveland estate, seemed then to be convinced of its genuineness. The two letters written by Mr. Hastings to THE TIMES before publication were put in evidence to support this line of defense.

The day's proceedings were opened with the reading of the Cleveland article, and then Mr. Lincoln was handed over to Mr. Jacoby, counsel for the defense. The witness said he had known the defendant for some time as a writer of fiction and as a writer of interviews with eminent persons. After receiving from him the Cleveland article he sent Mr. Ybarra of THE TIMES staff on two occasions to Mr. Hastings in relation to its authenticity.

The Hastings Letters.

Mr. Jacoby then read to the jury the letters of Mr. Hastings to THE TIMES, both of which were received prior to the publication of the article. The first was:

Indian Harbor, Greenwich, Conn.
Aug. 21, 1908.

Dear Sir: I am cognizant of an article written by Grover Cleveland, which by oral agreement he assigned to Mr. Brandenburg, and, with Mrs. Cleveland's assent, I have given Mr. Brandenburg a formal written assignment by which he has the exclusive right to said article, including the right to dispose of it as he may see fit. Yours very truly,
F. S. HASTINGS,
Executor Estate G. Cleveland.

The second letter said:

Indian Harbor, Greenwich, Conn.
Aug. 29, 1908.

Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES:

Dear Sir: I have examined the signature submitted to me by Mr. Ybarra and compared it with others of Mr. Cleveland's, and believe that the one submitted by Mr. Ybarra is genuine. I have talked with Mrs. Cleveland since she telegraphed you yesterday. Her telegram was sent you under a misapprehension, and she authorizes me to say that the agreement with Mr. Brandenburg is valid.

I have no reason to believe that the article furnished you by Mr. Brandenburg, purporting to have been written by Mr. Cleveland, is not genuine. I am sending you a signature of Mr. Cleveland's in order that you may compare it with the one submitted by Mr. Brandenburg. Yours very truly,
F. S. HASTINGS.

Mr. Lincoln then explained the writing on the first page of the manuscriot of the article and said that he had sent out between ten and fifteen proofs of it for publication in other newspapers.

Mr. Jacoby inquired with great minuteness into the care taken of the manuscript before publication.

Q.—Where was the article between the time you received it and clipped the signature? A.—In my desk, if not on its way to and from Mr. Hastings.

Q.—Were there any visitors in the reception room when Mr. Brandenburg gave you the article? A.—I don't remember. There generally are.

Q.—Had you much conversation with the defendant? A.—No; it was hurried and brief.

Q.—When you saw him again on Aug. 22 did you say in substance: "It's a great article. We will accept it if you will substantiate it?" A.—Yes.

Q.—And he said: "All right; go ahead?" A.—Yes.

Q.—How many inmates are there of your room? A.—My two principal assistants beside myself, Mr. Merriwether, and Mr. Thompson.

Q.—And they have been on the paper some time? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do other men have free access to your room? A.—Yes.

Q.—Is there any watch kept to prevent things being taken? A.—There is always some one there, or my desk is locked.

Its Genuineness Doubted.

Mr. Lincoln went on to say that he showed the article the day it was received to Mr. Reick, and the question of its genuineness was raised at once. He gave it to Mr. Ybarra that afternoon to take it to Mr. Hastings. Mr. Jacoby then inquired into the possibility of the article Mr. Ybarra returned to Mr. Lincoln not being the same as produced in court.

"I am positive it is," answered the witness with decision.

He was equally certain that there had never at any time been a typewritten copy of the manuscript made in THE TIMES office. Mr. Jacoby then turned his attention to the signature which was cut off the bottom.

It appeared that Mr. Lincoln had kept this in an envelope in his desk for several days, and then handed it without further examination to Mr. Reick a day or two before the article was published. He could not remember whether the envelope was sealed or if Mr. Ybarra took it to Mr. Hastings on his second visit.

Then ensued a line of questions which brought out clearly that in publishing the article THE TIMES had taken steps on its own account to authenticate it.

Q.—Did you ask Brandenburg if the signature and article were genuine? A.—Mr. Brandenburg said so without my asking him.

Q.—Did you rely on any representation made by the defendant that the article was written by Mr. Cleveland? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you rely on any representation made by the defendant that the signature was genuine? [Objection by Mr. Nott was overruled.] A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you in determining the genuineness of the article and signature rely on Mr. Hastings's letters of Aug. 21 and Aug. 29 and what he said to Mr. Ybarra? A.—I did. [Objection by Mr. Nott, because the article was accepted before Aug. 29, overruled.]

Mr. Jacoby brought out the fact that the article was returned to the defendant a few days after publication, and then asked:

"And did he not voluntarily return it to you at your request, and was not the article obtained by the District Attorney from you?"

"I don't know," replied Mr. Lincoln.

Several questions followed on the position Brandenburg took when the article was returned to him without the signature. He was told that THE TIMES would keep this temporarily, in case any question of the authenticity of the article was raised.

Mr. Lincoln said that the Republican National Committee had called up THE TIMES and asked permission to issue the article in pamphlet form, giving due credit to the newspaper. He gave as his reason for cutting off the signature the necessity of safeguarding it from autograph hunters.

The Signature Clipped Off.

Mr. Nott began his redirect examination by turning his attention mainly to the attitude THE TIMES took in determining the genuineness of the article.

Q.—Was not the defendant anxious to get the signature back into his own possession? A.—Yes.

Q.—When the article was accepted, did you think the signature genuine? A.—Yes.

Q.—If you had then known the article was not genuine, would you have accepted it? [Objection sustained.]

Q.—When you had finally accepted the article you thought the signature genuine? A.—I did.

Mr. Lincoln was then excused and Mr. Nott read from the minutes the evidence given by the defendant before the Grand Jury, in spite of objections on the part of the defense. In this the defendant professed his desire that the whole truth should come out. He told of his negotiations with Mr. Cleveland about writing articles and acknowledged that he had typed the article, which the ex-President afterward signed.

Mr. Cleveland, he asserted, had no intention of exerting any influence in what he wrote on the campaign then about to begin, but wished to write something that would be as good ten years hence as then. What he handed to Brandenburg at an interview on March 5 consisted of a number of small sheets of paper hardly legible. They dealt with several subjects, but did not touch on the tariff.

Two paragraphs dealing with Mr. Bryan were not complimentary, and in order to make his article more acceptable to magazines afraid of offending their readers Mr. Brandenburg asserted that he induced the writer to leave them out. He said that he made a copy of these slips and took it to Mr. Cleveland, who corrected it. Then Brandenburg made a second copy and took it to Mr. Cleveland, and he signed it. This, he contended, was the article which appeared in THE TIMES.

Brandenburg drew a pathetic picture of the ex-President sitting alone in a room at 1 Madison Square at a big desk, with very few papers before him. He seemed, he said, to be merely a figurehead, and it touched him to note how much gentler, kinder, and broader he seemed to have grown. The rest of his testimony was taken up with his attempts to sell the article and his negotiations with newspapers and publications, which refused without reading it to pay the price he wanted until he came to THE TIMES.

The Typewriter's Testimony.

After the recess Edward Heggi, assistant cashier for THE TIMES, testified to the payments to Brandenburg of $100 on Aug. 24 and $400 on Sept. 2 Fitz Herbert Lewis, a negro shipping clerk for L. C. Smith & Bros., a typewriting concern at 311 Broadway, was the next witness. He established the fact that he had shipped to Miss Bacon in July a typewriter, which was returned on Aug. 25. The contention of the People is that it was on this machine that the Cleveland article was written, and that as Miss Bacon had at that time no other Smith machine, the date of the production of the article is fixed.

When Miss Lillian M. Bacon of 47 West Thirty-fourth Street took the stand she was examined about this machine and corroborated Lewis about receiving it on trial in July. It was the first of the make she had had and she sent it back in return for two new ones on Aug. 24.

"Do you know the defendant?" asked Mr. Nott.

"I did some typewriting for him on Aug. 10 last year," she replied. "He had been in a day or two before to make arrangements.

Q.—What did he say? A.—He wanted a manuscript copied quickly.

Q.—Say what it was? A.—Most of it was in longhand, but some was typed.

Q.—What did he say it was? A.—A conversation he had with Mr. Cleveland. It was just a mass of stuff he wanted put in shape for publication.

Q.—What did he do? A.—He helped my assistant, Miss Fearon, decipher the handwriting and wrote at my desk.

Q.—Then some of the work you did was from manuscript he brought in, and some from manuscript he wrote in your room? A.—It was.

It appeared that Brandenburg paid $1.40 for the original copy and two carbon copies. Miss Bacon produced cards to show her record of the work. She had received payment for an article nine pages long, Mr. Nott pointed out to the jury, in spite of the defense's protests that the manuscript of THE TIMES article was the same length.

Miss Bacon identified the article, written in her office, as the one which appeared in THE TIMES, and said that the only other work she had done for Brandenburg was of a non-political nature, being an article on hunting in Africa.

Mr. Thomas took the witness in charge for cross-examination. He wanted to know if when Brandenburg came in and Miss Bacon fixed a price for her work he had the article with him. She maintained that he had not, but on further pressing was not quite certain about it.

Q.—When he sat down at the desk what was he doing? A.—He was writing at the end of the article.

Q.—Are you sure of this? A.—I have every reason to be, because as fast as he wrote the sheets they were copied.

Q.—Are you sure he was originating what he wrote? A.—I don't know if he knew it by heart or not; I only saw him writing.

The witness was then examined about an affidavit she made at the request of a private detective named Dixon, who had an office next to hers and asked her to make it. Dixon told her, she testified, to make the affidavit because the article had had a great influence on the campaign, and it was right that everything about it should come out. He paid her nothing for it, and she placed in it all she knew about the article.

In answer to further questions, Miss Bacon repeated that Brandenburg had told her that the article was good stuff, and that he had been closely associated with the ex-President so that he could get from him the material for a series of articles.

She could not remember that the defendant had said anything to her about making additional copies of the article in order to send them to England to preserve the foreign rights. Mr. Thomas tried to introduce the affidavit she gave to Dixon, but, as he had only a copy of it from THE TIMES, it was not admitted.

The case was adjourned till 10 o'clock this morning.

The District Attorney's office was notified yesterday by the Chief of Police of St. Louis that an indictment had been found against Brandenburg there for the kidnapping of James Shepard Cabanne, 3d, and requesting that he be held in any event until the St. Louis authorities could send for him. Brandenburg did not seem at all put out by this, and merely remarked that he would fight that case, too.

Ex-Judge Armstrong Acquitted.

CAMDEN, N. J., June 17.—Ex-Judge E. Ambler Armstrong was acquitted in the Criminal Court here to-night of the charge of converting to his own use certain stock alleged to have been owned by the defunct State Mutual Building and Loan Association, of which he was President. The verdict was ordered to be entered by Judge Thomas A. Davis on the ground that the prosecution had not been begun within the two years required by the statute of limitations.

Rockefeller Not to Go to Old Home.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., June 17.—An invitation for him to attend the Tioga County "Old Home Week," to be observed in Owego during the week of Aug. 1, was sent recently to John D. Rockefeller. He has written a reply, saying that he has "pleasant recollections" of his boyhood in Tioga County, but he fears he will not be able to attend.

PUSHING THE HEINZE CASE.

Government to Urge a Trial Next Week—Defendants for Postponement.

The defendants named in the latest Heinze indictments—those growing out of the disappearance of certain books of the United Copper Company and the hurried trip that Tracy Bunkingham made to Canada just about the time that United States Attorney Wise got on the trail of the missing volumes—will have until this afternoon to file demurrers to the charges of conspiring to block the administration of justice. They are F. A. Heinze, his brother, A. P. Heinze; Sanford Robinson, one of the Heinze attorneys; Carlos Warfield, a friend of F. A. Heinze, and Calvin O. Geer, a clerk in A. P. Heinze's office.

United States Attorney Wise expects to push these cases to trial next week so as to get them cleared up before the June term of the United States Circuit closes. It is probable that the defense will seek delay until Fall.

MUST FEED HUSBAND WELL.

Court Orders Mrs. Ward to Provide Plenty and Substantial Food.

William Ward of 56 Brill Street, Newark, N. J., who says he is a hard-working man, summoned his wife before Judge Hahn in that city yesterday to make her tell what she did with that $7.50 he gave her last Friday." Ward explained that on Tuesday Mrs. Ward had only 20 cents left, and he though that the meals his wife had served him in the meantime warranted no such extravagance in table expenses.

Judge Hahn listened to Mrs. Ward's explanation that besides Ward she had five others to feed out of the money he allowed her, in addition to meeting other household expenses with it.

"I don't expect you to furpish your husband with champagne suppers," the Judge told Mrs. Ward, "but as he is a hard-working man you must give him substantial food and plenty of it."

Mrs. Ward promised to do the best she could, and left the court with Ward, who seemed satisfied.

A Great Picture in The Times Next Sunday

SIR JOHN COLLIER has been called a "Problem Painter." Readers of The Times will recall the re-production of the striking canvas, "A Forced Marriage," which appeared in the Picture Section of THE SUNDAY TIMES some weeks ago. In the Picture Section of The Times of next Sunday there will be reproduced another of Sir John Collier's paintings. It is entitled "Sentence of Death." The picture portrays a medical specialist and a patient—a young man—at the conclusion of a conference. It is a painting of remarkable interest. A full page will be given to its re-production. Other pages of the Picture Section will contain photographs of graduation days at West Point and Vassar; pictures of attractive women well known in New York society; pictures of the long-distance balloon contest; photographs of the Meadow Brook polo team in its successes abroad; a remarkable photograph of the battleship Michigan making twenty knots an hour; photographs of the new home of the American Embassy in Berlin, and many other pictures—all interesting, all timely.

The Magazine Section of The Sunday Times will contain an unusually attractive collection of timely articles and features of interest. "A Veteran Diplomat" will analyze the highly important meeting between Kaiser and Czar. A Justice of the United States Supreme Court will discuss the world-wide craze for the biggest battleship and the trend in this respect of the United States. There will be a capital article telling what becomes of the graduates of the girls' colleges of the country. Another feature, with striking illustration, will describe and portray the Government's great six-hundred-foot tower of concrete for wireless telegraphy. There will be a timely and illuminating article on the West as a Summer resort, with some rather surprising information about the number of thousands who are going West. Interesting descriptions of the successful plays running in London; a talk with Winthrop Ames on the New Theatre; a clever satire by Thomas L. Masson; another of the "Letters of a Japanese Schoolboy"; an article on the School for Diplomats at Washington; a story that tells most interestingly just what it means to be Collector of the Port of New York and how Mr. Loeb has gone at it—these are the subjects of a few of the many other features.

Readers of THE TIMES Are Reminded of the Advisability of Ordering the Sunday Edition in Advance of the Day of Publication.
